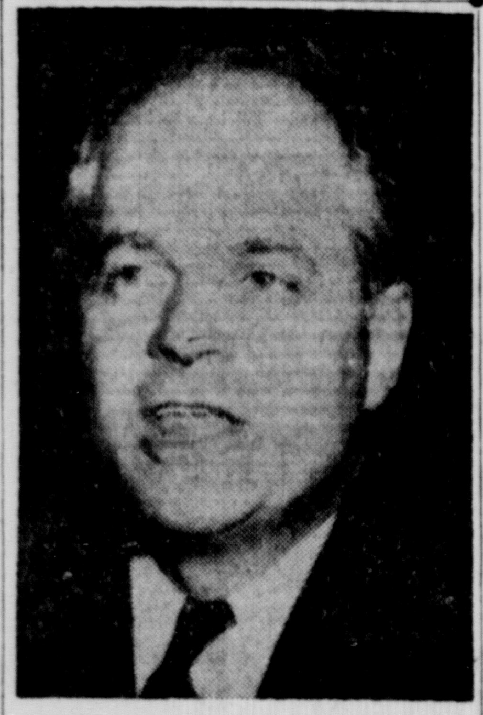
Dawson Admits Accepting Free Vacation At Luxury Hotel Which Got RFC Loan



DAWSON QUIZZED — Donald S. Dawson, President Truman's patronage adviser, is shown as he was questioned yesterday by members of the Senate Banking subcommittee investigating the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. He denied he influenced the granting of big loans by the RFC. (AP Wirephoto)

Truman Aide Denies He Influenced Agency

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP) — White House Aide Donald Dawson acknowledged today that he and two other members of President Truman's staff took free vacations at a $30-a-day luxury hotel in Miami Beach, Fla., after the hotel borrowed $1,500,000 from the government.

But Dawson told senators he understood some lawmakers themselves have accepted similar on-the-cuff courtesies from the same hotel, the Saxony.

He named the other two presidential staffers as David K. Niles and Col. Charles Maylon, deputy White House military aide.

Admits "Social" Contacts

Making his long-awaited appearance as a witness in the RFC inquiry, Dawson swore he never abused his White House prestige by attempting to sway multi-million dollar federal loans.

Quietly but with intermittent flashes of anger, Dawson acknowledged he had "social" contacts with members of what senators call an "influence clique" operating around the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the government's big money-lending agency.

He insisted, however, that he had "no influence" with the RFC.

At the end of Dawson's long testimony, Chairman Fulbright (D-Ark) of the Senate inquiry committee told newsmen:

"I Did Nothing Improper"

"Maybe Mr. Dawson isn't conscious that sitting next to the President, as he does, is regarded as a place of great significance. He sees nothing wrong with what he did in the Saxony case. I do."

Under questioning, Dawson contended that he did not know the Saxony had borrowed money from the RFC when he accepted free lodging at the hotel for himself, Mrs. Dawson and their daughter in December, 1949.

Besides that 13-day visit, he said, he took expenses-paid holidays at the hotel on two other occasions.

"I did nothing improper," he said, "but I would not do it again."

The White House aide was instructed to return for further questioning tomorrow.

Congress Votes Medical Benefits For Korea Vets

Truman's Request Speedily Granted

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP)—One day after a veteran of the Korean fighting was denied admission to a government hospital, Congress today passed legislation to give Korea veterans the same medical benefits as survivors of other wars.

The legislation went to President Truman for his signature late today, only hours after he had asked for a change in the present law. He and Congress agreed that men fighting in Korea should not be discriminated against because their war is an undeclared one.

Unanimous Votes

Unanimous votes in the Senate and House pushed through two slightly different versions. Then, to speed matters even more, the Senate agreed to the House version and thereby completed congressional action. The agreed-upon version was a little broader than the Senate's original.

As it reached Mr. Truman, the legislation provides that Korean war veterans are entitled to these World War II privileges:

1. Medical, hospital and domiciliary benefits; 2. burial benefits; 3. compensation and pensions for the veteran and his dependents.

It was only yesterday that ex-Marine David R. Arellano, 21, was denied treatment at a Veterans Administration hospital at Tucson, Ariz., because he had not served in a recognized war.

Capitol Responds Quickly

Washington was quick to respond, in this sequence:

1. President Truman told a morning news conference that the law which barred Arellano from treatment at federal expense ought to be changed. He followed up with letters to the House and Senate presiding officers.

2. With the bi-partisan backing of Sen. George (D-Ga) and Taft (R-Ohio), the Senate Finance Committee waived hearings on the request and the Senate passed by voice vote a resolution granting the Korean veterans the benefits enjoyed by those of World War II.

3. The House, likewise by voice vote, followed suit.

More Steel Will Go For Defense

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP)—Officials disclosed today that more than half of the nation's record-size output of steel may be set aside for defense and defense supporting programs in July—and still more in August.

That will mean a 10 to 15 per cent greater defense bite into supplies of that basic metal and, conseqeutly, a proportionate reduction in the amount of steel available for producing civilian goods.

The upshot is likely to be a further cut in production of autos, refrigerators and other consumer goods along with additional cutbacks in construction for non defense purposes.

Production of durable consumer goods in general is already down to a rate about 20 per cent below the level of a year ago.

The National Production Authority previewed the July-August picture for its steel products industry advisory committee, composed of major steel company executives, then issued a statement saying:

"Steel set-aside for defense and defense-supporting programs may exceed 50 per cent of the total output of ingots in July. This percentage may run much higher than 50 per cent on some products such as plates, tubes and steel alloys."

Man Cures Snoring In Vain; Wife Seeks Divorce Anyway

CHICAGO, May 10. (AP)—Richard Michalak, the man whose snore wrecked health and home, is cured—too late.

The 25-year-old egg inspector came jubilantly into Superior Court today to reclaim the affections of his wife, Florence, 20, an attractive blonde.

She agreed a month ago to hold up her suit for separate maintenance while he sought a cure for his big snore. Richard's night noises, she maintained, had wrecked her health.

Richard fought his affliction with gusto. He moved into a small room in a YMCA hotel. He pored over more than 500 suggested cures submitted by snore-wise folk in many cities who had learned of his plight.

Richard enlisted "snore listeners" in adjacent rooms to listen while he slept.

With a hopeful sidewise glance at his pretty wife, the young man informed Judge F. Desort today that his snoring days were over.

But before he could elaborate his wife's attorney, Charles C. Cooley, intervened.

He told the court Mrs. Michalak felt she could not live up to her agreement and return to Richard whom she married two years ago. He said she intended to file suit for divorce.

Panama Police Subdue Arias In Bloody Fight

At Least 9 Killed In Palace Battle

PANAMA, Panama, May 10 (AP)—Deposed President Arnulfo Arias was arrested and jailed today after a bloody four-hour stand against the nation's armed forces driven to action by the greatest civil resistance movement in Panama's history. At least nine persons were killed and scores wounded.

Entrenched with hundreds of followers in the presidential palace overlooking picturesque Panama harbor, Arias fought to stay in office in the face of impeachment by the National Assembly and popular clamor against him. He lost—and was thrown behind bars.

The nine dead and the scores wounded in today's fighting added to a toll of three deaths and 110 wounded or injured in the violent disorders touched off by Arias' act Monday night switching the country's constitutions by decree.

Arias was flushed out of the third floor residential quarters of the palace by national police who fought their way in with machine guns, rifles and tear gas. He came out in a bloodstained white suit but was not wounded.

Col. Jose Antonio Remon — the same man who put Arias into power Nov. 24, 1949 in a bloodless police coup—said Arias was being held at the orders of the National Assembly. Wednesday night the Assembly impeached Arias for abuse of his constitutional powers and called on First Vice-President Alcibiades Arosemena to take over the presidency. The Assembly's action was held legal today by the Supreme Court.

The Panama radio said Arias was taken to national police headquarters with his wife, former Government Minister Jose Clemente De Obaldia, and former Finance Minister Norberto Zurita. Arias was described as "pale and fearful" at the end of what police had called a "state of revolution."

Shortly before his arrest was announced, the Panama radio reported the Arias men were surrendering in large groups and "the people, as represented by the national police, have won a great victory."

But civilians were warned to stay indoors and let the police deal with the situation because some Arias supporters still were shooting.

The radio said two of the men killed at the palace were Maj. Alfredo Gomez and Lt. Juan Flores of the national police.

Drought, Insects Cut Wheat Crop

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP)—The Agriculture Department reported today that drought and insects have destroyed about a fourth of this year's prospective winter wheat crop. As a consequence, some users abroad may have to get along with less.

Last December the crop was forecast at 899,000,000 bushels, but the department's May estimate today cut prospects to 682,196,000. The loss in April was put at 44,000,000 bushels. Previously, the agency reduced its December estimate by 173,000,000 bushels.

Last year's winter crop was 750,000,000 bushels and the 10-year average 791,000,000.

Unless there is a sharp upturn in the condition of the crop between now and early summer harvest, it is quite likely that the combined production of winter and spring wheat will be the smallest since 1943 and the first crop of less than 1,000,000,000 bushels since the same year.

Officials are hoping for a spring crop of at least 300,000,000 bushels. No estimate was given for this type inasmuch as planting has not been completed.

Ridgway's Promotion Confirmed By Senate

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP)—The Senate today approved the promotion of Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway to the rank of four-star general in his posts as successor to Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

The action was by unanimous non-record vote, after Sen. Cain (R-Wash) had praised Ridgway as a man who "in the sight and presence of the enemy" on Korean battlefields has "answered conclusively every possible question about his courage and capacity for leadership."

Dewey Urges Total Embargo Against China

Suggests 11-Point 'Stop Russia' Policy

NEW YORK, May 10 (AP) — Gov. Thomas E. Dewey tonight urged an "absolute and total" embargo by the free world against trade of any kind with Communist China.

It was one of 11 planks in a global policy which he said is most urgently needed to stop Russia from taking the world "bit by bit."

In the Far East especially, Dewey accused the Truman administration of courting wars by "weak-kneed wobbling" and added:

"I suggest that now is the time for the force of public opinion to compel our government to formulate a policy for the whole Far East — a policy that will stop the spread of Communism and start turning it back."

Address N. Y. GOP Committee

The speech — a major foreign policy address by a two-time candidate for president — was prepared for the third annual dinner of the New York State Republican Committee.

Dewey's 11 points covering both Asia and Europe were:

1. No appeasement or retreat from Communism anywhere in the world.
2. No recognition ever of Red China and use of the veto if needed to keep her out of the U. N.
3. A free Formosa never permitted at any time to fall into Communist hands.
4. More aid for Chiang Kai-Shek's Nationalists and releasing his troops for any use he wants to make of them against the Chinese mainland.

Embargo Against China

5. A total trade embargo against Red China.
6. Continued bi-partisan support for a Japanese peace treaty.
7. A policy aimed at an eventual United States of Europe.
8. Admittance of Turkey, Greece, Spain and Yugoslavia into the North Atlantic treaty alliance.
9. A solid front of free nations, guarded against any Soviet attempt to split them apart.
10. Universal military training at once.
11. A speedup in production of tanks and airplanes no matter what it costs.

Russia, West Agree On Incomplete Agenda

PARIS, May 10 (AP) — Russia agreed with the three Western Powers tonight on an incomplete agenda that would leave to the Big Four foreign ministers the question of how to discuss disarmament.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko also insisted that the question of the Atlantic pact and American bases in Europe be submitted to the foreign ministers as a "disagreed item."

This means that the foreign ministers of the United States, Great Britain, Russia and France—when and if they meet—would have first to decide on the wording of the agenda items dealing with armed forces and arms and on whether to take up the Atlantic pact.

Patrolman's Game Uncovers Violation

LAFAYETTE, Ind., May 10 (AP)—Patrolman George Salts plays a sort of solitaire cribbage with auto license numbers while he cruises in a squad car. The digits represent the face value of each hand.

Hitting the same point total within a few blocks yesterday, he doubled back to see whether it was mere coincidence.

It wasn't. Two cars were sharing one pair of license plates.

Salts had them towed to headquarters.

Britain Cuts Off Rubber To China

LONDON, May 10. (AP)—Britain's Labor government today halted rubber shipments to Communist China for the rest of 1951. Aroused American public opinion and whipsawing attacks by Winston Churchill's Conservatives provoked the decision.

The rubber ban was announced in the House of Commons a few moments after Churchill had thundered a demand for the change at once "on the grounds of national safety and even survival."

Churchill also attacked Britain's maintenance of diplomatic relations with Red China, saying these ties had brought no advantage to Britain or the United Nations "and they have become a reproach against us in wide circles in America."

A revival of isolationist sentiment in the United States, he warned, might lessen American help for Europe, which could lead to the ruin of "the whole free world."

He said the Labor government should avoid giving the United States the impression that, while Americans carried the heaviest load in Korea, Britain "pulled at their coat tails and read them moral lessons in statecraft and the love we ought to have for China."

Israel Celebrates

JERUSALEM, May 10 (AP) — Israeli troops paraded today in celebration of the third anniversary of Israel's nationhood. The show was the biggest of its kind ever seen in this 3,000-year old city.

House Group OKs Corporation Tax Hike Of 2 Billion

Would Increase Rate 5 Percentage Points

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP)—The House Ways and Means Committee voted today to levy an additional $2,080,000,000 a year taxes on corporations, by adding five percentage points to their normal tax rate.

The administration had asked for eight percentage points, and increase which Secretary of the Treasury Snyder estimated would bring in an additional $3,300,000,000 annually.

Altogether, the committee has raked together an estimated $5,460,000,000 in additional revenue during the past two weeks deliberations behind closed doors. The biggest single increase, voted yesterday, would take nearly $3,000,000,000 more from individual income taxpayers.

Decisions Are Tentative

Chairman Doughton (D-NC) emphasized that all the decisions are tentative and are subject to later reconsideration.

Although the vote was not officially announced, the motion to add five percentage points to the corporate rate was reported to have been supported by the 15 Democrats on the committee and opposed by the 10 Republican members.

Here is how today's decision will affect corporations, if the increase is upheld by the House and Senate:

Ceiling Would Rise

The normal rate on the first $25,000 of taxable corporate income will go up from 25 to 30 per cent. On income over $25,000, the rate will be 52 per cent rather than the existing 47 per cent. On income subject to the excess profits tax (30 per cent on top of the combined normal and surtax rates) the effective rate will be 82 per cent instead of 77 per cent.

However, Congress has fixed a ceiling on the total taxes the federal government can take from a corporation in all kinds of income taxes. That ceiling, now 62 per cent of net income, would rise to 67 per cent.

Otto Of Hapsburg, Princess Wed In Regal Pomp Of Old

NANCY, France, May 10 (AP) — Archduke Otto of Hapsburg, whose followers call him ruler of the Austro-Hungarian empire, today married German Princess Regina of Saxony-Meiningen in the lavish pomp of old.

Barred from Austria by the law of that republic which was once the center of his family's dominion, the 38-year-old pretender and the 25-year-old blonde, blue-eyed Princess went throug civil and religious ceremonies in this ancient city. Nancy was once the capital of Otto's French ancestors, the Dukes of Lorraine.

Only the flag of the Duchy of Lorraine flew from the balcony of the ornate City Hall, where the civil ceremony required by French law was performed. The religious ceremony was held in the Roman Catholic Cathedral of the Ropemakers, where many of Otto's Lorraine ancestors are buried.

Communist - inspired students marred the wedding procession by hurling a few badly-aimed eggs. The eggs missed by 10 yards and failed to ruffle the royal couple. Police said three persons were arrested for handing out Communist leaflets protesting the absence of the French flag.

American guests at the ceremony included David K. Bruce, ambassador to France, and Mrs. Perle Mesta, minister to Luxembourg.

U. N. Patrols Meet Stiffer Resistance

Ridgway Says Tide Turns Against Reds

TOKYO, Friday, May 11 (AP)—Fresh Red forces streamed into buildup areas along the western and central fronts today. Resistance against aggressive Allied patrols stiffened generally across the peninsula.

An Eighth Army spokesman reported "a considerable amount" of Red movement east of Munsan, some 10 miles below parallel 38 and 20 miles northwest of Seoul.

AP Correspondent George McArthur, on the west-central front, said Allied bombers ran into heavy antiaircraft fire last night in attacks on a buildup in the Kapyong area.

Kapyong is 12 miles south of the parallel and 32 miles northeast of Seoul. McArthur reported the Chinese evidenly have shifted east after withdrawing north of the old Korean capital.

Turning Of Tide Ridgway Says

Field commanders expect a renewal of the big Red spring offensive at any time in this battle of Korea.

Gen. Matthew R. Ridgway said Thursday the battle marked a turning of the tide against world communism.

Ridgway, United Nations commander, said that because of Allied successes in Korea, history might record "that the crest of the Communist wave has been broken."

His message was addressed to Lt. Gen. James A .Van Fleet, Eighth Army commander whose armored patrols punched into Munsan, 21 miles northwest of Seoul and 10 miles south of the parallel.

Van Fleet had congratulated Ridgway on his nomination to full general by President Truman. Ridgway told Van Fleet it was "quite possible" history would show that the flood of Communist aggression, "reaching its high mark on your front, thereafter began its recession."

Van Fleet had said earlier that he felt more confident of whipping the Reds now than he did at the outset of the Chinese and Korean Red offensive April 22. After 10 days and losses of an estimated 75,000 men, the Reds began a withdrawal that—in most sectors—still continues.

Chinese "Wilting On Vine"

Lt. Gen. Edward M. Almond, commander of the U. S. 10th Corps, observed that the Chinese armies along Korea's mid-section were "wilting on the vine" for lack of supplies.

Red supply lines have been hit 'round-the-clock by Allied fighters and bombers. More than 650 sorties were flown by dusk Thursday.

Almond cautioned that the Reds presumably will try to renew their offensive, however.

The tank-infantry column stabbed into Munsan and withdrew Thursday after South Korean troops erased a threat by 6,000 Korean Reds to flank Seoul from the west.

An Eighth Army spokesman said the Reds were killed or routed in three days of fighting.

Red Trade Ban Put In Money Bill

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP)—The Senate voted tonight to cut off economic aid to any nation which permits shipment of arms or other war-useful materials to Communist areas.

It wrote this ban into a $431,127,477 appropriation bill, which it passed by a voice vote. The money is to finance several government agencies in what remains of the fiscal year ending next June 30.

The measure now goes to conference with House, which had passed the measure in different form. The Senate ordered its conferees to yield no ground on the ban on aid to nations trading with the Communists.

It acted after Sen. Wherry of Nebraska, the Republican floor leader, recalled that in a similar situation last year, the House blocked in the conference an "identical" proposal, and insisted on substitute language which merely made such a ban permissive.

He demanded, and the Senate went along with him, that the conferees this time refuse to approve "watered-down, permissive legislation."

Sen. Kem (R-Mo) led the fight in the Senate for the outright ban. He left no doubt he was aiming at Great Britain primarily, although he said many other beneficiaries of U. S. aid also have shipped vital materials to Communist nations.

1. Medical, hospital and domiciliary benefits; 2. burial benefits; 3. compensation and pensions for the veteran and his dependents.

It was only yesterday that ex-Marine David R. Arellano, 21, was denied treatment at a Veterans Administration hospital at Tucson, Ariz., because he had not served in a recognized war.

Capitol Responds Quickly

Washington was quick to respond, in this sequence:

1. President Truman told a morning news conference that the law which barred Arellano from treatment at federal expense ought to be changed. He followed up with letters to the House and Senate presiding officers.

2. With the bi-partisan backing of Sen. George (D-Ga) and Taft (R-Ohio), the Senate Finance Committee waived hearings on the request and the Senate passed by voice vote a resolution granting the Korean veterans the benefits enjoyed by those of World War II.

3. The House, likewise by voice vote, followed suit.

More Steel Will Go For Defense

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP)—Officials disclosed today that more than half of the nation's record-size output of steel may be set aside for defense and defense supporting programs in July—and still more in August.

That will mean a 10 to 15 per cent greater defense bite into supplies of that basic metal and, conseqeutly, a proportionate reduction in the amount of steel available for producing civilian goods.

The upshot is likely to be a further cut in production of autos, refrigerators and other consumer goods along with additional cutbacks in construction for non defense purposes.

Production of durable consumer goods in general is already down to a rate about 20 per cent below the level of a year ago.

The National Production Authority previewed the July-August picture for its steel products industry advisory committee, composed of major steel company executives, then issued a statement saying:

"Steel set-aside for defense and defense-supporting programs may exceed 50 per cent of the total output of ingots in July. This percentage may run much higher than 50 per cent on some products such as plates, tubes and steel alloys."

Man Cures Snoring In Vain; Wife Seeks Divorce Anyway

CHICAGO, May 10. (AP)—Richard Michalak, the man whose snore wrecked health and home, is cured—too late.

The 25-year-old egg inspector came jubilantly into Superior Court today to reclaim the affections of his wife, Florence, 20, an attractive blonde.

She agreed a month ago to hold up her suit for separate maintenance while he sought a cure for his big snore. Richard's night noises, she maintained, had wrecked her health.

Richard fought his affliction with gusto. He moved into a small room in a YMCA hotel. He pored over more than 500 suggested cures submitted by snore-wise folk in many cities who had learned of his plight.

Richard enlisted "snore listeners" in adjacent rooms to listen while he slept.

With a hopeful sidewise glance at his pretty wife, the young man informed Judge F. Desort today that his snoring days were over.

But before he could elaborate his wife's attorney, Charles C. Cooley, intervened.

He told the court Mrs. Michalak felt she could not live up to her agreement and return to Richard whom she married two years ago. He said she intended to file suit for divorce.

Panama Police Subdue Arias In Bloody Fight

At Least 9 Killed In Palace Battle

PANAMA, Panama, May 10 (AP)—Deposed President Arnulfo Arias was arrested and jailed today after a bloody four-hour stand against the nation's armed forces driven to action by the greatest civil resistance movement in Panama's history. At least nine persons were killed and scores wounded.

Entrenched with hundreds of followers in the presidential palace overlooking picturesque Panama harbor, Arias fought to stay in office in the face of impeachment by the National Assembly and popular clamor against him. He lost—and was thrown behind bars.

The nine dead and the scores wounded in today's fighting added to a toll of three deaths and 110 wounded or injured in the violent disorders touched off by Arias' act Monday night switching the country's constitutions by decree.

Arias was flushed out of the third floor residential quarters of the palace by national police who fought their way in with machine guns, rifles and tear gas. He came out in a bloodstained white suit but was not wounded.

Col. Jose Antonio Remon — the same man who put Arias into power Nov. 24, 1949 in a bloodless police coup—said Arias was being held at the orders of the National Assembly. Wednesday night the Assembly impeached Arias for abuse of his constitutional powers and called on First Vice-President Alcibiades Arosemena to take over the presidency. The Assembly's action was held legal today by the Supreme Court.

The Panama radio said Arias was taken to national police headquarters with his wife, former Government Minister Jose Clemente De Obaldia, and former Finance Minister Norberto Zurita. Arias was described as "pale and fearful" at the end of what police had called a "state of revolution."

Shortly before his arrest was announced, the Panama radio reported the Arias men were surrendering in large groups and "the people, as represented by the national police, have won a great victory."

But civilians were warned to stay indoors and let the police deal with the situation because some Arias supporters still were shooting.

The radio said two of the men killed at the palace were Maj. Alfredo Gomez and Lt. Juan Flores of the national police.

Drought, Insects Cut Wheat Crop

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP)—The Agriculture Department reported today that drought and insects have destroyed about a fourth of this year's prospective winter wheat crop. As a consequence, some users abroad may have to get along with less.

Last December the crop was forecast at 899,000,000 bushels, but the department's May estimate today cut prospects to 682,196,000. The loss in April was put at 44,000,000 bushels. Previously, the agency reduced its December estimate by 173,000,000 bushels.

Last year's winter crop was 750,000,000 bushels and the 10-year average 791,000,000.

Unless there is a sharp upturn in the condition of the crop between now and early summer harvest, it is quite likely that the combined production of winter and spring wheat will be the smallest since 1943 and the first crop of less than 1,000,000,000 bushels since the same year.

Officials are hoping for a spring crop of at least 300,000,000 bushels. No estimate was given for this type inasmuch as planting has not been completed.

Ridgway's Promotion Confirmed By Senate

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP)—The Senate today approved the promotion of Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway to the rank of four-star general in his posts as successor to Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

The action was by unanimous non-record vote, after Sen. Cain (R-Wash) had praised Ridgway as a man who "in the sight and presence of the enemy" on Korean battlefields has "answered conclusively every possible question about his courage and capacity for leadership."

Octogenarians Will Be Married

Mrs. Ellen O'Reilly Anderson, 80, and Louis J. Bissinger, 81, both retired from show business, applied for a wedding license at Los Angeles yesterday. They said they first met in Brooklyn as schoolchildren and have been married twice before. Recently, they renewed acquaintance at a club.

Dewey Urges Total Embargo Against China

Suggests 11-Point 'Stop Russia' Policy

NEW YORK, May 10 (AP) — Gov. Thomas E. Dewey tonight urged an "absolute and total" embargo by the free world against trade of any kind with Communist China.

It was one of 11 planks in a global policy which he said is most urgently needed to stop Russia from taking the world "bit by bit."

In the Far East especially, Dewey accused the Truman administration of courting wars by "weak-kneed wobbling" and added:

"I suggest that now is the time for the force of public opinion to compel our government to formulate a policy for the whole Far East — a policy that will stop the spread of Communism and start turning it back."

Address N. Y. GOP Committee

The speech — a major foreign policy address by a two-time candidate for president — was prepared for the third annual dinner of the New York State Republican Committee.

Dewey's 11 points covering both Asia and Europe were:

1. No appeasement or retreat from Communism anywhere in the world.

2. No recognition ever of Red China and use of the veto if needed to keep her out of the U. N.

3. A free Formosa never permitted at any time to fall into Communist hands.

4. More aid for Chiang Kai-Shek's Nationalists and releasing his troops for any use he wants to make of them against the Chinese mainland.

Embargo Against China

5. A total trade embargo against Red China.

6. Continued bi-partisan support for a Japanese peace treaty.

7. A policy aimed at an eventual United States of Europe.

8. Admittance of Turkey, Greece, Spain and Yugoslavia into the North Atlantic treaty alliance.

9. A solid front of free nations, guarded against any Soviet attempt to split them apart.

10. Universal military training at once.

11. A speedup in production of tanks and airplanes no matter what it costs.

Russia, West Agree On Incomplete Agenda

PARIS, May 10 (AP) — Russia agreed with the three Western Powers tonight on an incomplete agenda that would leave to the Big Four foreign ministers the question of how to discuss disarmament.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko also insisted that the question of the Atlantic pact and American bases in Europe be submitted to the foreign ministers as a "disagreed item."

This means that the foreign ministers of the United States, Great Britain, Russia and France—when and if they meet—would have first to decide on the wording of the agenda items dealing with armed forces and arms and on whether to take up the Atlantic pact.

Patrolman's Game Uncovers Violation

LAFAYETTE, Ind., May 10 (AP)—Patrolman George Salts plays a sort of solitaire cribbage with auto license numbers while he cruises in a squad car. The digits represent the face value of each hand.

Hitting the same point total within a few blocks yesterday, he doubled back to see whether it was mere coincidence.

It wasn't. Two cars were sharing one pair of license plates.

Salts had them towed to headquarters.

Britain Cuts Off Rubber To China

LONDON, May 10. (AP)—Britain's Labor government today halted rubber shipments to Communist China for the rest of 1951. Aroused American public opinion and whipsawing attacks by Winston Churchill's Conservatives provoked the decision.

The rubber ban was announced in the House of Commons a few moments after Churchill had thundered a demand for the change at once "on the grounds of national safety and even survival."

Churchill also attacked Britain's maintenance of diplomatic relations with Red China, saying these ties had brought no advantage to Britain or the United Nations "and they have become a reproach against us in wide circles in America."

A revival of isolationist sentiment in the United States, he warned, might lessen American help for Europe, which could lead to the ruin of "the whole free world."

He said the Labor government should avoid giving the United States the impression that, while Americans carried the heaviest load in Korea, Britain "pulled at their coat tails and read them moral lessons in statecraft and the love we ought to have for China."

Israel Celebrates

JERUSALEM, May 10 (AP) — Israeli troops paraded today in celebration of the third anniversary of Israel's nationhood. The show was the biggest of its kind ever seen in this 3,000-year old city.

House Group OKs Corporation Tax Hike Of 2 Billion

Would Increase Rate 5 Percentage Points

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP)—The House Ways and Means Committee voted today to levy an additional $2,080,000,000 a year taxes on corporations, by adding five percentage points to their normal tax rate.

The administration had asked for eight percentage points, and increase which Secretary of the Treasury Snyder estimated would bring in an additional $3,300,000,000 annually.

Altogether, the committee has raked together an estimated $5,460,000,000 in additional revenue during the past two weeks deliberations behind closed doors. The biggest single increase, voted yesterday, would take nearly $3,000,000,000 more from individual income taxpayers.

Decisions Are Tentative

Chairman Doughton (D-NC) emphasized that all the decisions are tentative and are subject to later reconsideration.

Although the vote was not officially announced, the motion to add five percentage points to the corporate rate was reported to have been supported by the 15 Democrats on the committee and opposed by the 10 Republican members.

Ceiling Would Rise

The normal rate on the first $25,000 of taxable corporate income will go up from 25 to 30 per cent. On income over $25,000, the rate will be 52 per cent rather than the existing 47 per cent. On income subject to the excess profits tax (30 per cent on top of the combined normal and surtax rates) the effective rate will be 82 per cent instead of 77 per cent.

However, Congress has fixed a ceiling on the total taxes the federal government can take from a corporation in all kinds of income taxes. That ceiling, now 62 per cent of net income, would rise to 67 per cent.

Otto Of Hapsburg, Princess Wed In Regal Pomp Of Old

NANCY, France, May 10 (AP) — Archduke Otto of Hapsburg, whose followers call him ruler of the Austro-Hungarian empire, today married German Princess Regina of Saxony-Meiningen in the lavish pomp of old.

Barred from Austria by the law of that republic which was once the center of his family's dominion, the 38-year-old pretender and the 25-year-old blonde, blue-eyed Princess went throug civil and religious ceremonies in this ancient city. Nancy was once the capital of Otto's French ancestors, the Dukes of Lorraine.

Only the flag of the Duchy of Lorraine flew from the balcony of the ornate City Hall, where the civil ceremony required by French law was performed. The religious ceremony was held in the Roman Catholic Cathedral of the Ropemakers, where many of Otto's Lorraine ancestors are buried.

Communist - inspired students marred the wedding procession by hurling a few badly-aimed eggs. The eggs missed by 10 yards and failed to ruffle the royal couple. Police said three persons were arrested for handing out Communist leaflets protesting the absence of the French flag.

American guests at the ceremony included David K. Bruce, ambassador to France, and Mrs. Perle Mesta, minister to Luxembourg.

U. N. Patrols Meet Stiffer Resistance

Ridgway Says Tide Turns Against Reds

TOKYO, Friday, May 11 (AP)—Fresh Red forces streamed into buildup areas along the western and central fronts today. Resistance against aggressive Allied patrols stiffened generally across the peninsula.

An Eighth Army spokesman reported "a considerable amount" of Red movement east of Munsan, some 10 miles below parallel 38 and 20 miles northwest of Seoul.

AP Correspondent George McArthur, on the west-central front, said Allied bombers ran into heavy antiaircraft fire last night in attacks on a buildup in the Kapyong area.

Kapyong is 12 miles south of the parallel and 32 miles northeast of Seoul. McArthur reported the Chinese evidenly have shifted east after withdrawing north of the old Korean capital.

Turning Of Tide Ridgway Says

Field commanders expect a renewal of the big Red spring offensive at any time in this battle of Korea.

Gen. Matthew R. Ridgway said Thursday the battle marked a turning of the tide against world communism.

Ridgway, United Nations commander, said that because of Allied successes in Korea, history might record "that the crest of the Communist wave has been broken."

His message was addressed to Lt. Gen. James A .Van Fleet, Eighth Army commander whose armored patrols punched into Munsan, 21 miles northwest of Seoul and 10 miles south of the parallel.

Van Fleet had congratulated Ridgway on his nomination to full general by President Truman. Ridgway told Van Fleet it was "quite possible" history would show that the flood of Communist aggression, "reaching its high mark on your front, thereafter began its recession."

Van Fleet had said earlier that he felt more confident of whipping the Reds now than he did at the outset of the Chinese and Korean Red offensive April 22. After 10 days and losses of an estimated 75,000 men, the Reds began a withdrawal that—in most sectors—still continues.

Chinese "Wilting On Vine"

Lt. Gen. Edward M. Almond, commander of the U. S. 10th Corps, observed that the Chinese armies along Korea's mid-section were "wilting on the vine" for lack of supplies.

Red supply lines have been hit 'round-the-clock by Allied fighters and bombers. More than 650 sorties were flown by dusk Thursday.

Almond cautioned that the Reds presumably will try to renew their offensive, however.

The tank-infantry column stabbed into Munsan and withdrew Thursday after South Korean troops erased a threat by 6,000 Korean Reds to flank Seoul from the west.

An Eighth Army spokesman said the Reds were killed or routed in three days of fighting.

Red Trade Ban Put In Money Bill

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP)—The Senate voted tonight to cut off economic aid to any nation which permits shipment of arms or other war-useful materials to Communist areas.

It wrote this ban into a $431,127,477 appropriation bill, which it passed by a voice vote. The money is to finance several government agencies in what remains of the fiscal year ending next June 30.

The measure now goes to conference with House, which had passed the measure in different form. The Senate ordered its conferees to yield no ground on the ban on aid to nations trading with the Communists.

It acted after Sen. Wherry of Nebraska, the Republican floor leader, recalled that in a similar situation last year, the House blocked in the conference an "identical" proposal, and insisted on substitute language which merely made such a ban permissive.

He demanded, and the Senate went along with him, that the conferees this time refuse to approve "watered-down, permissive legislation."

Sen. Kem (R-Mo) led the fight in the Senate for the outright ban. He left no doubt he was aiming at Great Britain primarily, although he said many other beneficiaries of U. S. aid also have shipped vital materials to Communist nations.

'Self-Discipline' Is Key To Peace, Baruch Declares

NEW YORK, May 10 (INS)—Bernard Baruch said tonight that the western world's key to peace and to security is "self-discipline," which he defined as ability to put aside "petty comforts and petty profits" in favor of the national interest.

The elder statesman and adviser to presidents spoke in New York before the Boys' Clubs of America.

"Our choice," he said, "is self-discipline or slavery.

"The Soviet regime stands for no new, progressive philosophy. It seeks to re-establish one of the oldest dogmas in history—that people are unfit to govern themselves but must obey the dictates of a chosen few who claim that they alone know all the answers."

Baruch said the United States stands for "faith in mankind, in man's ability to govern himself through representatives of his own choosing," and he added:

"The test we face, along with those other nations who believe in man, is one of government. Either we succeed in governing ourselves or, if we fail, we invite others to shackle us in ruthless subjection."

If the United States is overwhelmed, he said, it will not be because others had a superior strength, but because we failed "to discipline ourselves — because we failed to discipline the various pressure groups in the national interest."

"What greater incentive, profit or comfort can we desire," he asked, "than to preserve our liberty. What baubles that we clutch to our bosoms are worth a tithe of that?"

OPS Violator Joins Road Gang

SPOKANE, Wash., (AP) — Six months in a federal road camp is the price Cloy Magnuson, meat market operator, must pay for violating regulations of the Office of Price Stabilization.

Magnuson was sentenced after pleading guilty to charges of not keeping proper invoices of ownership and transfer on 1,850 pounds of beef.

OPS officials said Magnuson was one of the first persons in the nation prosecuted under the new law governing meat dealers.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Frank Freeman said the meat was stolen from a packing plant at Davenport, west of here.

Magnuson knew the meat was stolen, Freeman said, "because he unloaded it at 4 a. m. Sunday morning and paid only 30 cents a pound for it."

Federal officials were tipped off on the illegal transaction by prowl car officers who saw the meat being unloaded.

Magnuson's attorney urged a light sentence saying Magnuson had been losing $1000 a month in his two markets and could not pay a fine.

"Oldest" University Of Americas Celebrates Its Fourth Centennial

LIMA, Peru—(AP)—The Major San Marcos University of Lima, which prides itself on being the oldest of American universities, this week starts celebration of its fourth centennial.

The commemoration program, which starts officially Saturday, will continue several months. Among the scheduled activities, mostly academic, will be lectures to be delivered by some of the most noted intellectuals of Peru, North and South America and Europe.

The University of San Marcos considers itself the oldest of the new world because the 'cedula real' (royal decree) ordering its creation was dated May 12, 1551. It was signed by Queen Mother Juana La Loca (the Mad), who was ruling the immence Spanish empire of those days because her son, King Charles I of Spain and Emperor Charles V of the Holy German Empire, was away in Germany. San Marcos University also bases its claim on the fact that its existence never was interrupted during the 400 years.

In this regard San Marcos keeps a cordial rivalry with the Universities of Santo Domingo and Mexico City. The first one started its activities in 1538 under authority granted by a papal bull, but without the participation of the Spanish government. Furthermore the Santo Domingo University functioned at an insular possession and not on the American mainland. Also this university has been in recess, for different causes, for about 100 years.

In Mexico it is reported the Mexican University started its activities earlier than San Marcos, but local authorities said it is difficult to verify this contention. The royal decree ordering the university at Mexico City was dated September 21, 1551, several months after the foundation of the University of Lima by the Spanish crown.

Although the University of San Marcos is completely independent from the government, as regards its teaching programs, and administration, the government has allocated three million soles (about $180,000) to help celebrate the beginning of its fifth century.

Its curriculum embraces faculties in law, medicine, letters, science, economic science, pharmacy, dentistry, chemical education and veterinary medicine. Total enrollment of students is about 10,000.

Only 16 years had passed from the beginning of the conquest of Peru by Francisco Pizarro when the Dominican friars who were holding one of their periodical chapters at Cuzo in 1548 decided to create a university in Peru. The rebellion of Gonzalo Pizarro, a brother of the conqueror, had just been crushed bloodily by loyal troops.

The city council of Lima in the following year approved the plan and dispatched two emissaries to Spain to ask new benefits and grants from the king.

The emissaries were Captain Don Jeronimo De Aliaga, one of the founders of the City of Kings—later Lima—and Friar Tomas De San Martin.

The royal decree approving the foundation of the university mentioned only Friar Tomas De San Martin and the 'padre' has always been considered as the founder of San Marcos.

Because the royal command said that the university should function at the monastery or convent of the Dominican Order, its first rectors down to Friar Antonio De Hervias, elected in 1571, were the Dominic provincials. That year rivalries and intrigues among the clergy caused serious trouble and measures were taken to modify the situation. The bylaws of the university were sent to the viceroy and the first secular rector was appointed. He was Don Pedro Fernandez De Valenzuela. The same year—July 25, 1571—a papal bull was received, 'ratifying and confirming' the creation of the university which thereafter was entitled to take the rank of 'royal and pontificial'.

Another Peruvian university which bears the title of pontificial is the Catholic University of Lima, a private institution founded some 30 years ago.

Besides the Major University of San Marcos there are three others in Peru. They are the "minor" Universities of Arequipa, Cuzco and Trujillo.

There are actually 1,692 islands in the "Thousand Islands" on the St. Lawrence river in New York State.

The royal decree approving the foundation of the university mentioned only Friar Tomas De San Martin and the 'padre' has always been considered as the founder of San Marcos.

Because the royal command said that the university should function at the monastery or convent of the Dominican Order, its first rectors down to Friar Antonio De Hervias, elected in 1571, were the Dominic provincials. That year rivalries and intrigues among the clergy caused serious trouble and measures were taken to modify the situation. The bylaws of the university were sent to the viceroy and the first secular rector was appointed. He was Don Pedro Fernandez De Valenzuela. The same year—July 25, 1571—a papal bull was received, 'ratifying and confirming' the creation of the university which thereafter was entitled to take the rank of 'royal and pontificial'.

Another Peruvian university which bears the title of pontificial is the Catholic University of Lima, a private institution founded some 30 years ago.

Besides the Major University of San Marcos there are three others in Peru. They are the "minor" Universities of Arequipa, Cuzco and Trujillo.

There are actually 1,692 islands in the "Thousand Islands" on the St. Lawrence river in New York State.

Controversial Brain Surgery Helps "Hopeless" Patients, Doctors Say

By FRANK CAREY

CINCINNATI—(AP)—The controversial "ice pick" brain operation has helped some hopeless patients and also alleviate a housing and personnel problem in an overcrowded New Jersey mental hospital, a team of doctors said today.

For the first time in a long while "many" detention rooms stand vacant because their former occupants were able to be returned to their homes following a relatively simple surgical technique, the doctors declared.

This was reported to the American Psychiatric Association by a team of psychiatrists of the New Jersey State Hospital at Trenton.

They said the discharging of some patients and lessening of supervision required for others had lightened a personnel-shortage problem.

They referred to the relatively-new operation called "transorbital lobotomy" in which an instrument resembling an ice pick is inserted between the patient's eyelid and eyeball so that it severs certain nerves in the brain.

Designed to help certain forms of mental illness, especially where persons are chronically depressed and disturbed, the operation cuts off the connection between the main part of the brain and the so-called "frontal lobe"—the area believed to be the "worry" center.

But this same area is believed also to play a role in influencing judgment, the sense of responsibility, and one's ability to work efficiently and neatly.

And some doctors say that while operations involving the frontal lobe sometimes relieve a patient's worrying, they may leave him slovenly in habits and care-free to the extent that he can't do productive work.

But the doctors who reported today said that in their series of 200 cases—all of whom had been considered "hopeless" insofar as any degree of improvement was concerned—26 were returned to their homes and 76 others showed such "marked improvement that they are being considered for discharge. Meanwhile, they are working around the hospital and do not need the great amount of supervision required before operation."

Forty-five others showed "fair" improvement, 50, were not improved and there were three deaths from the operation itself.

Dr. W. W. Wilson and three colleagues, in their report to the APA, said that practically all the patients had previously been confined in small seclusion rooms for varying lengths of time up to 20 years. And they declared that "many other types" of treatment had failed in these cases.

"We do not wish to be enthusiastic to the point of indiscriminate operation before other types of therapy are used," they said, "but with the failure of other types of therapy after a reasonable length of time we feel this procedure is indicated."

Saying that even those patients considered to have made only "fair" improvement no longer requires seclusion in detention rooms, the doctors declared:

"For the first time the doors of many seclusion rooms at the New Jersey State Hospital are standing open."

They said this was important because of the need for such rooms to take care of the criminally insane and because of the shortage of trainned personnel and attendants in their hospital and in certain other institutions.

Blessed Advance

Cortisone has been a wonder hormone. As made in any quantity only from cattle bile it has been gaining steadily in acceptance for more and more human miseries, headed, of course, by arthritis. It also helps suffers from an array of troubles including alcoholism, rheumatic fever, asthma and snake bite.

But cortisone still comes in quantity only from cattle bile, and only from three per cent of that. Present production, by a slow and complex process, is only enough to supply 20,000 to 40,000 patients. In the U. S. there are 2,000,000 rheumatoid arthritics who could benefit from cortisone if they could get it. The cost is approximately $1,000 an ounce.

The hope, then, has been to find a cortisone substitute to do the job as well or better—or to synthesize cortisone from common chemicals.

Now comes big news from the meeting of the National Academy of Sciences in Washington. A team of Harvard chemists has started with a coal-tar derivative and come up with the synthesis of cortisone to a point where success is certain. Within a short time, it is hoped, the process of rearranging organic molecules will be finished.

The process of making cortisone from bile involves 30 steps. Only 20 steps need be taken now. It may be months or years before synthetic cortisone is on the market in the "unlimited quantities" heralded at Washington. But it is certain that human suffering will be forced to take a seat still farther back.

Who are to be thanked? Well, the research money was put up by Merck and Monsanto, two great chemical concerns. The research team was headed by Dr. Robert B. Woodward, duPont research professor at Harvard in 1949-1950. Nearly all great new discoveries today are the result of teamwork.

No exclusive rights to the manufacturing process will be given out. Cortisone a few years from now may be cheap and abundant enough for every medical use. Are there many new advances of science which could be of much greater potential blessing to the human race?

Selling "Serious" Books

"Serious book publishing might represent less of a gamble" if publishers had a better idea of what would sell and what would not.

That is the conclusion of the committee on reading development of the American Book Publishers' Council, and there is nobody to dispute it. But to assume, as this committee does, in recommending studies of reading habits to lessen financial risks, that blame for aversion to reading serious books can be laid at the door of the schools is going pretty far. The report says:

"Whatever emotions are aroused by memories of school are transferred to books. Thus book reading connotes the ordeal of examinations and the chore of compulsory assignment. It is not a symbol of pleasurable activity, but of imposed discipline."

That is altogether too easy a conclusion. Of a piece with this is the assertion that "the man in the street"—how many things he has to take the blame for!—looks on book reading as "a highbrow activity which smacks of devotion to the aristocratic way of life distasteful to his notions of democracy."

Of course not all adults are readers of serious books, but that there is a considerable body of opinion which regards scholarship as undemocratic, is certainly open to challenge. A year or two years hence when the suggested studies of reading patterns are completed, the publishers' council may have a different picture to present. It may have learned that serious, if not ponderous, books are eagerly absorbed as collateral reading in schools, and that the youngsters who devour them will be the readers years hence of what publishers most want to present to the public. Certainly the nonreaders of school and college days are not likely to be serious readers in later life.

The fear on the part of some of the publishers that "widely read, easily understood popularization" may defeat their highest aims is understandable. As the report says, the serious book "may be the one medium through which modern man can escape from the pressure of contemporary living." But it has to have reader interest, which presupposes a knowledge of reading taste that can be stimulated.

Essential Knowledge

It is essential for every American who wants to be a useful citizen to understand the purpose and nature of his government. Unlike people in most foreign lands, he has something to say about who shall direct the affairs of the country as well as locally. If he knows how the management operates, he is better prepared to protect his own interests so far as they may be affected by government regulations.

The 4-H Club organization—national and state—is supplying the means whereby its members can acquire the fundamentals of this knowledge. The parent body has established a week's camp in Washington for representatives of local groups throughout the country. Delegates chosen are those who show outstanding ability in leadership and community service in relation to their work. These are young people, banded together in clubs, who live in agricultural areas.

Of course, the entire membership cannot be sent to Washington. Yet those who attend the camp will be in a position to disseminate to their club associates at home the things they will have learned, thereby benefiting the whole organization. While in Washington the delegates will meet and talk with men and women concerned with public affairs and can see the national government in action.

The basic knowledge thus obtained, if winnowed objectively, ought to be helpful in any follow-up study they make.

Fewer Britons

Direful days are ahead for Great Britain if Dr. Robert H. Parry, health officer of Bristol, England, and honorary physician to King George, is correct. He told students of the Cornell University Medical College that the population of the British Isles, now 50,000,000, would have to drop to 20,000,000. He thinks the present number could not possibly live off the land.

Such a drastic drop would seriously weaken the British position in the world. During the early modern period of history France was the greatest power in Europe, not merely because of her resources and the talents of her people, but because she was the most populous country. When wars killed off her best fighting men and her birth rate declined, France sank lower in the international scale. One reason for the formidable quality of Russia is her immense population.

Patriotic Britons, therefore, may well be alarmed for the future internatonal standing of their country.

How To Keep Well

By DR. T. R. VAN DELLEN

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Protection For Pork Eaters

TRICHINOSIS is prevalent wherever hogs are eaten as food. Cooking generally controls the disease by killing the causative parasites. Sausage remains a potential offender, especially when it is made without supervision from meat that has not been inspected.

One of our New York readers asked us several good questions concerning trichinosis. She is aware of the fact that the disorder comes from eating infested meat and that the larvae are freed of the protective coating by the digestive action of the ferments of the stomach. Here the worms set up housekeeping and mama gives birth to several hundred babies which in turn penetrate the intestinal wall and travel via the blood stream to the muscles, where they find a permanent home.

One inquirer was particularly interested in knowing about "the subsequent course of these larvae, now embedded in the human muscle, such as how long they remain larvae, where they go for reproduction. . . ." When the organisms reach human muscles their life cycle ends except perhaps in regions where cannibals abound. They are incased in a fibrous capsule that ultimately becomes hard as stone. Death usually takes place after six months but the calcified cage remains and can be identified years later if the tissues of the individual should be placed under a microscope.

The course of the ailment is the same in animals as in man. The pig, for example, acquires the disease as a rule by eating garbage that contains bits of infected pork. The parasites mate and multiply within the hog's stomach and some of the youngsters escape thru the intestinal tract, whereas the remainder burrow thru the wall of the bowel and finally end up in the muscles. But trichinae that locate in pig muscles are lucky because they have a chance to be freed. This occurs when the porker is sent to market and reaches our table without being cooked or cured propertly.

Our reader has been told that "trichinosis is generally acute, violent, and fatal." This is not true because the majority of victims hardly are aware of their plight. Much depends upon the number of parasites ingested and the age and physical status of the man or woman. A more violent illness occurs in the young and old, particularly after eating heavily tainted meat. Nausea, vomiting, abdominal pain, fever, and now and then diarrhea appear within 24 hours. A week later the suffered develops malaise, weakness, sweating, puffiness of the face, muscular aching, laryngitis, and hemorrhage beneath the skin and nails. This period coincides with the migration of the worms thru the walls of the intestine and into various parts of the body. After two to three weeks the illness subsides gradually. Recovery is complete altho occasionally vague muscular pains persist for a month or two. The individual is not left with chronic muscle disability "something like what used to be called muscular rheumatism," as she put it.

There is no treatment unless the individual discovers within 24 hours that the pork consumed was contaminated, in which case Epsom salts can be used to rid the digestive system of the intruders. After 24 hours little can be done because by this time the organisms have found refuge in the walls of the intestine. Preventive measures center about the garbage fed to pigs, meat inspection, and proper curing and cooking of pork.

TOMORROW: Cleanliness combats acne.

BICYCLE NOT BUILT FOR TWO

Mrs. R. writes: I always ride a bike when doing my marketing. Now that I'm pregnant how long can I keep it up? We don't have a car as we are saving for the baby.

REPLY

Why not resort to walking after the third month? As you grow larger and more awkward there is greater danger that you will fall while riding a bike and thus harm yourself or the baby.

RINGWORM OF FOOT

J. L. writes: How long does it take to clear up athlete's foot?

REPLY

This varies with the individual. New cases may require only a few days whereas chonic dermotophytosis requires weeks or months; occasionally it never is cured, particularly when the nails are invaded by the fungus. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaet on athlete's foot.

HIGH PRESSURE AND LOW WEIGHT

V. G. writes: Is high blood pressure in an underweight person unusual?

REPLY

No. I know many underweight individuals with hypertension. Weight of itself does not cause high blood pressure but obesity is likely to aggravate the condition.

RABIES "SHOTS"

N. T. writes: If a dog is bitten by a rabid animal, are the Pasteur shots as useful as in humans?

Yes.

Treasury Should Probe Income Tax Of John Capone; Democrats Knife Low-Cost Housing; Real Estate Lobby Wins By Congressional Default

WASHINGTON—Secretary of the Treasury Snyder has now appointed an A-1 man, J. B. Dunlap, to head the special tax squad probing underworld income tax returns. Here is one tax return he might take a special look at—that of Chicago's Erminio John Capone, brother of Al Capone.

John has quite a free and easy way of making out his income tax return—so free and easy that the average businessman would be locked up if he operated the same way.

In 1949, for instance, Capone reported a total income of $23,135, which he said came from "miscellaneous" sources. In 1949 his income was $20,150, also from "miscellaneous." In 1946 he reported $10,180 from "miscellaneous," and in 1945 $8,810 from "miscellaneous" plus $800 from the Precision Metal and Machine Company.

During closed-door hearings of the Kefauver crime committee, Capone was questioned regarding this by Investigator George Robinson.

"Mr. Capone," observed Robinson, "I notice that you list your sole source of income over a period of years as being simply miscellaneous. Do you prepare your own returns?"

"I do. And I give the figure to an auditor and he files the return," replied Capone.

"What kind of figure do you give him? Do you break the figure down . . . or do you give him just a lump sum?" asked Robinson.

"Well, I give him my entire income," Capone retorted.

"How do you arrive at that lump sum?" Robinson pressed.

"Well, I just keep track of it," Capone fidgeted.

"How do you keep track of it?" demanded the investigator.

"I keep track of it from day to day," parried Capone.

"Do you put it down in a book?" Robinson persisted.

"Well," explained Capone, "if I win any money today, and I win the next day, I forget about the first day and just keep track of the total balance."

Miraculous Memory

'How do you keep track of the total balance?" Robinson fired again.

"In my mind," reported Capone.

"How many times did you speculate last year?" asked Robinson.

"I can't keep track of the times," snapped Capone. "There were numerous times."

'You kept it all in your head?" demanded Robinson.

"That is right," Capone agreed.

"Then you come up at the end of the year with a balance?" Robinson continued.

"Yes," Capone nodded.

"And that is what you put down as 'miscellaneous' in your return?" asked Robinson.

"Am I being tried for income tax here?" snarled Capone angrily.

"You aren't being tried for anything," shot back Robinson. "We are making an inquiry, Mr. Capone."

Maybe the Internal Revenue Bureau ought to make an inquiry, too.

Real Estate Lobby Wins

Republican congressmen have been chiefly identified with the real estate lobby in the past. However, House Democrats helped knife their own President in virtually killing the Taft low-cost public housing program last week.

It was Democrat Ed Gossett of Texas, long the spokesman for Eastern business, who sponsored and led the fight to slash the program to 5,000 low-cost, public housing units a year, 70,000 units less than President Truman says is our minimum need.

The Gossett amendment, while seeming to keep the housing program alive by a few token projects, actually snuffs out the whole program. For 5,000 units aren't enough to satisfy the slum-clearance of one big defense center—like New York or Chicago—and the administrative costs of a shoestring program will be so heavy that congressional economyites are bound to follow up with a demand that the whole housing program is ditched.

This is exactly what the National Association of Home Builders and other real estate lobbyists have been openly demanding—a suspension of public housing altogether.

FDR, Jr., Was Absent

Ironically, Administration Democrats from big cities, which need public housing most, had as much to do with adoption of the Gossett amendment—if not more—than the Republican-Dixiecrat coalition.

Gossett and GOP Rep. Jesse Wolcott of Michigan, another real estate lobby wheelhorse, cleverly forced a vote late Friday after members of the famous in-Tuesday-out-Thursday Absentee Club had made their usual mass exodus to New York and elsewhere. As a result, the Gossett amendment won by default, 181 to 113.

Though New York would gain more than any other city from continuance of the public housing program, only five of its 24 House members were sufficiently interested in their constituents to remain in Washington and vote against Gossett. They were Democrats Gary Clemente, Vincent Quinn, James Delaney, Donald O'Toole and Christopher McGrath, all of New York and Brooklyn.

Sixteen Manhattan and Brooklyn Democrats, however, were absent for the vital vote affecting their districts — Heller, Anfuso, Keogh, Kelly, Heffernan, Rooney, Multer, Celler, Murphy, Donovan, Klein, Fine, Powell, Dollinger and Buckley, and even Franklin Roosevelt, Jr., whose father helped pioneer public housing, did not stick around to vote. Three New York City Republicans also were not present to vote—Latham, Coudert and Javits.

Philadelphia, another big city with slums, also was let down by its Democratic congressmen. Its two Republican members, Hardie and Hugh Scott, were on the floor to vote against the Gossett amendment, but all four Democrats from Philadelphia — Barrett, Granahan, Chudoff and Green—took a run-out powder.

So also did Chicago's Democrats William Dawson and John Kluczynski. Dawson, a Negro congressman, represents one of the most congested areas in the world, while Kluczynski's Polish district is only a little less so. However, they did not bother to vote. Another significant absentee was Democrat Bob Poague of Waco, Texas, whose constituents recently voted for public housing in a referendum.

Other Texas absentees from cities with public housing programs were Frank Wilson of Dallas, Paul Kilday of San Antonio and Clark Thompson of Galveston.

NOTE—Some of these absentees may have been ill or out of town on legitimate business, but the great majority had no excuse for missing an important roll call like this.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

January 11 And 12

GENERAL Douglas MacArthur threw many more bombshells in his testimony before the Senate committees than was at first apparent. Only the most careful reading of the record brings out the points at issue. General MacArthur makes much of a program for action prepared by the Joint Chiefs of Staff on January 12. The ideas and purpose in that document showed that he and the Joint Chiefs of Staff were in full agreement. This program, as General MacArthur read it, is as follows:

"Continue and intensify now an economic blockade of trade with China.

"Prepart now to impose a naval blockade of China and place it into effect as soon as our position in Korea is stabilized or when we have evacuated Korea, and depending upon circumstances then obtaining.

"Remove now any restrictions on air reconnaissance of China coastal areas and of Manchuria.

"Remove now the restrictions on operation of the Chinese Nationalist forces and give such logistic support to those forces as will contribute to effective operations against the Communists."

Now, let us go back to January 11. On that day, a new five-point "cease-fire plan" was supported by the United States but criticized by Soviet Russia. This plan included these five provisions:

1. An immediate cease-fire with safeguards against use of the truce "as a screen for mounting a new offensive."

2. Action during the truce on a permanent Korean peace.

3. Exit of "non-Korean" forces by "appropriate stages."

4. UN-approved administration of Korea during the truce.

5. Creation of a UN agency, including the U.S., Russia, Britain, and Red China, to settle Far Eastern issues, including Formosa's future and Chinese representation in UN.

If we compare these two statements, one day apart, the question must arise as to whether the State Department knew what the Joint Chiefs of Staff were doing, or vice versa. For the Joint Chiefs of Staff were planning to blockade China while the State Department was planning to get Soviet China into the United Nations. The Joint Chiefs were planning to work with Nationalist China while the State Department was planning to ditch Nationalist China.

The cease-fire plan was passed on January 13, 50 to 7.

On January 15, Senator Eastland introduced a resolution for the United States to withdraw from the United Nations if Soviet China were seated and that President Truman be directed to defend Formosa. Senator Taft called the cease-fire plan "the most complete surrender to which the U.S. has ever agreed . . ."

Chou En-lai of Soviet China countered with the following proposals:

1. It should be assumed on both sides that all "foreign" troops will be withdrawn from Korea. (He did not specify whether this would cover Chinese "volunteers.") Negotiations for the withdrawal should be begun "so that the war in Korea may be brought to a speedy end."

2. The negotiations "must include the withdrawal of U.S. armed forces from Taiwan (Formosa) and the Taiwan Strait and Far Eastern related problems."

3. Participants in the negotiations should be Red China, Russia, U.S., Britain, France, India, and Egypt.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—It's just another Pearl Harbor investigation all over again.

Back in December, 1941, General Marshall and Admiral Stark thought that someone had told General Short and Admiral Kimmel what Washington knew about the forthcoming attack through breaking the Japanese code—but nobody did tell them.

Today, it comes out that the President and the Secretary of State and the Secretary of Defense and Special assistant Averell Harriman and General Bradley, who advised that General MacArthur be summarily dismissed, never told him that any of the public statements he had made during the preceding four weeks were violative of military orders or any other orders relating to policy statements.

The Administration may have thought that General MacArthur, at a distance of 10,000 miles, was a mind reader and as well informed about the state of mind of persons in Washington as were the five men who fired him, but there is not a single bit of evidence in the record after three days of testimony to support that point.

More Bad Liaison

In fact, the official record gets worse and worse for the Administration in revealing the same kind of bad liaison in the last few months with Tokyo as the War and Navy Departments had with Pearl Harbor ten years ago.

Not a single word of disapproval went to General MacArthur on December 6 last, when a general directive was issued advising all departments and all persons in the field as well as in Washington to clear policy statements with the departments back home. Although General Marshall now testifies that the Administration didn't like General MacArthur's answers to the questions of the press prior to December 6—even though they primarily concerned military matters in his theatre of action—not a word of such criticism was ever relayed to General MacArthur. He could as easily have inferred that there were no complaints here.

Not a single word of criticism or of any other kind went to General MacArthur specifically refering to his own statements or pointing out any deviation from policy to him between December 6, 1950, when the general directive was issued, and the day he was dismissed—April 11, 1951.

The now famous letter which General MacArthur wrote in routine fashion, answering an inquiry from Representative Joseph Martin, Republican, of Massachusetts, was dated March 20 at Tokyo. Although he had written letters to members of Congress and had talked with them in Tokyo during a period of nearly six years and they had made public the views which the General gave them, not a single word of criticism of his relations with members of Congress had ever been conveyed to him by his superiors in Washington.

Had No Word

When, on March 24 last, General MacArthur addressed a plea to the Chinese commander to agree to a "cease fire," not a single word of the statement or declaration being planned by the government here—and which it says it was circulating among 13 governments—had been sent to MacArthur for his information. Actually it is reliably reported that he had prepared his communication to the Chinese commander ten days before and was waiting for an opportune moment to release it. Likewise, Trygve Lie, secretary-general of the UN, has since stated publicly that a military commander in the field has the right to address the enemy commander on armistice terms at any time.

The message that was sent to MacArthur saying the State Department was "planning" some kind of a peace offer to the Red Chinese did not give him any details. It was a speculative message and failed to instruct him not to make any communication on this or any other subject related to it. The home office manager who failed to keep a branch manager better informed than that on company policy would be the one dismissed in American business today.

Even when the MacArthur statement to the Chinese commander was published, the Joint Chiefs merely asked him a day afterward to be sure and report if any request for armistice came from the enemy commander. There was not a word of criticism or of approval or disapproval sent General MacArthur concerning that statement to the Red Chinese commander.

Secretary Marshall has testified, moreover, that it was an "accumulation" of things that caused the dismissal, but what it looks like is an accumulation of hostile thoughts pent up somewhere in the Pentagon and the White House which came to a head when General MacArthur answered a letter that Representative Martin, on his own initiative, made public.

Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH ALSOP

Where Eisenhower Stands

PARIS

FOR THE TIME being, General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower and his international staff are polishing up their plans, getting on with whatever can be done immediately, and biding their time. But before long, some pretty grim decisions are going to have to be taken about the ultimate size of the Atlantic defense forces and their eventual composition and disposition.

The mere fact that these absolutely fundamental decisions have not been taken yet, is enough to show the hollowness of recent optimistic talk. The American productive machine has been put into high gear, but it will be a year to eighteen months before the really critical items, such as aircraft and tanks, are available in quantity. Gen. Eisenhower has begun his great effort, but it will be two to three years before Western Europe and the Western world are really secure. This is the true state of affairs today.

For the present, the French government is visibly incapable of any positive action whatever until after a national election. Moreover, the long range Western defense plans are still incomplete. Thus the uncomfortable time of fact-facing and of decision-taking will probably not come before July. Meanwhile, however, it is already possible to define the main policy problems which the American, British and French governments are going to have to solve somehow, if Gen. Eisenhower is to have a really firm foundation to build upon.

German Issue

First, comes the great issue of German participation. For the present, all efforts are being directed towards organizing a preliminary defense of the line of the Rhine, to which, of course the Germans will not contribute. But this Rhine plan has long been recognized as a very poor stopgap. And, German divisions are essential for a defense nearer the Elbe.

The signs suggest that this delicate question will be approached obliquely. The global requirements for an adequate forward defense will be plainly stated. It will then be obvious that this number of divisions cannot possibly be provided except by German participation, or by the heaviest sacrifices by the other Western Europeans. Thus the French and their sympathizers will have to choose between rejecting the principle of an adequate defense, or accepting the Germans as equal defense partners.

Second, comes the controversial problem of the air-ground balance within the overall Western defense force. When this reporter left Washington at least the Pentagon was still firmly clinging to the old rule of thumb, one division, one air group. But the best minds here on the Allied staffs, among the prospective German military leaders and among Gen. Eisenhower's subordinates, all have a different concept. Their rule is: the smaller the ground force, the larger the air force. Thus the necessarily limited Western ground army must be supported and sustained by really overwhelming tactical air power.

Air Groups Needed

By severing enemy lines of communication, by chopping up enemy forces moving into position, by destroying enemy supplies, the air is to cut the enemy's larger ground army down to the size of our smaller defending force. Such is the theory. But for these purposes, perhaps a hundred air groups overall will be needed in Europe alone, in addition to the home defense air forces in America, Britain and elsewhere. As Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge has already shrewdly demonstrated, getting this kind of satisfactory air balance may demand drastic rethinking of American air plans and programs in all fields from appropriations to production.

Third, comes the unpleasant problem of manpower. The French and several other European Atlantic pact partners still follow the pre-first World War training system, which will not put modern, combat worthy divisions promptly into the field. If the French, for example, are to meet their commitment of forces for Western defense, they must extend the conscript training period from eighteen months to two to three years. And they must allow some conscripts to serve in Indo-China, so that professional troops can be brought home and formed into the training cadres that the French army now lacks. Here are more thorns to grasp.

Fourth, there is the troublesome question of facilities. The need to get on with the construction of air bases is apparent everywhere from Turkey and Cyprus and Tripoli around to France. Here in France particularly, there is a massive air base requirement, since this is the natural region from which to back up a ground effort in Germany or on the Rhine. Many other sorts of installations, from headquarters to supply depots must also be provided and paid for. And the difficulties thus far have been so great that even the headquarters from which Generals Juin and Norstad are to command the main European ground and air forces are not yet available.

There are other items that might be added to the long list, such as the crucial Mediterranean problems already explored in this space. Enough has been said, however, to prove two points. Gen. Eisenhower will not even have a full set of tools for his job before the leaders of the Western nations have done a lot more hard work. And even after his tools have been provided, Gen. Eisenhower's job will take a long time to complete.

Blessed Advance

Cortisone has been a wonder hormone. As made in any quantity only from cattle bile it has been gaining steadily in acceptance for more and more human miseries, headed, of course, by arthritis. It also helps suffers from an array of troubles including alcoholism, rheumatic fever, asthma and snake bite.

But cortisone still comes in quantity only from cattle bile, and only from three per cent of that. Present production, by a slow and complex process, is only enough to supply 20,000 to 40,000 patients. In the U. S. there are 2,000,000 rheumatoid arthritics who could benefit from cortisone if they could get it. The cost is approximately $1,000 an ounce.

The hope, then, has been to find a cortisone substitute to do the job as well or better—or to synthesize cortisone from common chemicals.

Now comes big news from the meeting of the National Academy of Sciences in Washington. A team of Harvard chemists has started with a coal-tar derivative and come up with the synthesis of cortisone to a point where success is certain. Within a short time, it is hoped, the process of rearranging organic molecules will be finished.

The process of making cortisone from bile involves 30 steps. Only 20 steps need be taken now. It may be months or years before synthetic cortisone is on the market in the "unlimited quantities" heralded at Washington. But it is certain that human suffering will be forced to take a seat still farther back.

Who are to be thanked? Well, the research money was put up by Merck and Monsanto, two great chemical concerns. The research team was headed by Dr. Robert B. Woodward, duPont research professor at Harvard in 1949-1950. Nearly all great new discoveries today are the result of teamwork.

No exclusive rights to the manufacturing process will be given out. Cortisone a few years from now may be cheap and abundant enough for every medical use. Are there many new advances of science which could be of much greater potential blessing to the human race?

Selling "Serious" Books

"Serious book publishing might represent less of a gamble" if publishers had a better idea of what would sell and what would not.

That is the conclusion of the committee on reading development of the American Book Publishers' Council, and there is nobody to dispute it. But to assume, as this committee does, in recommending studies of reading habits to lessen financial risks, that blame for aversion to reading serious books can be laid at the door of the schools is going pretty far. The report says:

"Whatever emotions are aroused by memories of school are transferred to books. Thus book reading connotes the ordeal of examinations and the chore of compulsory assignment. It is not a symbol of pleasurable activity, but of imposed discipline."

That is altogether too easy a conclusion. Of a piece with this is the assertion that "the man in the street"—how many things he has to take the blame for!—looks on book reading as "a highbrow activity which smacks of devotion to the aristocratic way of life distasteful to his notions of democracy."

Of course not all adults are readers of serious books, but that there is a considerable body of opinion which regards scholarship as undemocratic, is certainly open to challenge. A year or two years hence when the suggested studies of reading patterns are completed, the publishers' council may have a different picture to present. It may have learned that serious, if not ponderous, books are eagerly absorbed as collateral reading in schools, and that the youngsters who devour them will be the readers years hence of what publishers most want to present to the public. Certainly the nonreaders of school and college days are not likely to be serious readers in later life.

The fear on the part of some of the publishers that "widely read, easily understood popularization" may defeat their highest aims is understandable. As the report says, the serious book "may be the one medium through which modern man can escape from the pressure of contemporary living." But it has to have reader interest, which presupposes a knowledge of reading taste that can be stimulated.

Essential Knowledge

It is essential for every American who wants to be a useful citizen to understand the purpose and nature of his government. Unlike people in most foreign lands, he has something to say about who shall direct the affairs of the country as well as locally. If he knows how the management operates, he is better prepared to protect his own interests so far as they may be affected by government regulations.

The 4-H Club organization—national and state—is supplying the means whereby its members can acquire the fundamentals of this knowledge. The parent body has established a week's camp in Washington for representatives of local groups throughout the country. Delegates chosen are those who show outstanding ability in leadership and community service in relation to their work. These are young people, banded together in clubs, who live in agricultural areas.

Of course, the entire membership cannot be sent to Washington. Yet those who attend the camp will be in a position to disseminate to their club associates at home the things they will have learned, thereby benefiting the whole organization. While in Washington the delegates will meet and talk with men and women concerned with public affairs and can see the national government in action.

The basic knowledge thus obtained, if winnowed objectively, ought to be helpful in any follow-up study they make.

Fewer Britons

Direful days are ahead for Great Britain if Dr. Robert H. Parry, health officer of Bristol, England, and honorary physician to King George, is correct. He told students of the Cornell University Medical College that the population of the British Isles, now 50,000,000, would have to drop to 20,000,000. He thinks the present number could not possibly live off the land.

Such a drastic drop would seriously weaken the British position in the world. During the early modern period of history France was the greatest power in Europe, not merely because of her resources and the talents of her people, but because she was the most populous country. When wars killed off her best fighting men and her birth rate declined, France sank lower in the international scale. One reason for the formidable quality of Russia is her immense population.

Patriotic Britons, therefore, may well be alarmed for the future internatonal standing of their country.

How To Keep Well

Protection For Pork Eaters

TRICHINOSIS is prevalent wherever hogs are eaten as food. Cooking generally controls the disease by killing the causative parasites. Sausage remains a potential offender, especially when it is made without supervision from meat that has not been inspected.

One of our New York readers asked us several good questions concerning trichinosis. She is aware of the fact that the disorder comes from eating infested meat and that the larvae are freed of the protective coating by the digestive action of the ferments of the stomach. Here the worms set up housekeeping and mama gives birth to several hundred babies which in turn penetrate the intestinal wall and travel via the blood stream to the muscles, where they find a permanent home.

One inquirer was particularly interested in knowing about "the subsequent course of these larvae, now embedded in the human muscle, such as how long they remain larvae, where they go for reproduction. . . ." When the organisms reach human muscles their life cycle ends except perhaps in regions where cannibals abound. They are incased in a fibrous capsule that ultimately becomes hard as stone. Death usually takes place after six months but the calcified cage remains and can be identified years later if the tissues of the individual should be placed under a microscope.

The course of the ailment is the same in animals as in man. The pig, for example, acquires the disease as a rule by eating garbage that contains bits of infected pork. The parasites mate and multiply within the hog's stomach and some of the youngsters escape thru the intestinal tract, whereas the remainder burrow thru the wall of the bowel and finally end up in the muscles. But trichinae that locate in pig muscles are lucky because they have a chance to be freed. This occurs when the porker is sent to market and reaches our table without being cooked or cured propertly.

Our reader has been told that "trichinosis is generally acute, violent, and fatal." This is not true because the majority of victims hardly are aware of their plight. Much depends upon the number of parasites ingested and the age and physical status of the man or woman. A more violent illness occurs in the young and old, particularly after eating heavily tainted meat. Nausea, vomiting, abdominal pain, fever, and now and then diarrhea appear within 24 hours. A week later the suffered develops malaise, weakness, sweating, puffiness of the face, muscular aching, laryngitis, and hemorrhage beneath the skin and nails. This period coincides with the migration of the worms thru the walls of the intestine and into various parts of the body. After two to three weeks the illness subsides gradually. Recovery is complete altho occasionally vague muscular pains persist for a month or two. The individual is not left with chronic muscle disability "something like what used to be called muscular rheumatism," as she put it.

There is no treatment unless the individual discovers within 24 hours that the pork consumed was contaminated, in which case Epsom salts can be used to rid the digestive system of the intruders. After 24 hours little can be done because by this time the organisms have found refuge in the walls of the intestine. Preventive measures center about the garbage fed to pigs, meat inspection, and proper curing and cooking of pork.

BICYCLE NOT BUILT FOR TWO

Mrs. R. writes: I always ride a bike when doing my marketing. Now that I'm pregnant how long can I keep it up? We don't have a car as we are saving for the baby.

REPLY

Why not resort to walking after the third month? As you grow larger and more awkward there is greater danger that you will fall while riding a bike and thus harm yourself or the baby.

RINGWORM OF FOOT

J. L. writes: How long does it take to clear up athlete's foot?

REPLY

This varies with the individual. New cases may require only a few days whereas chonic dermotophytosis requires weeks or months; occasionally it never is cured, particularly when the nails are invaded by the fungus. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaet on athlete's foot.

No. I know many underweight individuals with hypertension. Weight of itself does not cause high blood pressure but obesity is likely to aggravate the condition.

Treasury Should Probe Income Tax Of John Capone; Democrats Knife Low-Cost Housing; Real Estate Lobby Wins By Congressional Default

WASHINGTON—Secretary of the Treasury Snyder has now appointed an A-1 man, J. B. Dunlap, to head the special tax squad probing underworld income tax returns. Here is one tax return he might take a special look at—that of Chicago's Erminio John Capone, brother of Al Capone.

John has quite a free and easy way of making out his income tax return—so free and easy that the average businessman would be locked up if he operated the same way.

In 1949, for instance, Capone reported a total income of $23,135, which he said came from "miscellaneous" sources. In 1949 his income was $20,150, also from "miscellaneous." In 1946 he reported $10,180 from "miscellaneous," and in 1945 $8,810 from "miscellaneous" plus $800 from the Precision Metal and Machine Company.

During closed-door hearings of the Kefauver crime committee, Capone was questioned regarding this by Investigator George Robinson.

"Mr. Capone," observed Robinson, "I notice that you list your sole source of income over a period of years as being simply miscellaneous. Do you prepare your own returns?"

"I do. And I give the figure to an auditor and he files the return," replied Capone.

"What kind of figure do you give him? Do you break the figure down . . . or do you give him just a lump sum?" asked Robinson.

"Well, I give him my entire income," Capone retorted.

"How do you arrive at that lump sum?" Robinson pressed.

"Well, I just keep track of it," Capone fidgeted.

"How do you keep track of it?" demanded the investigator.

"I keep track of it from day to day," parried Capone.

"Do you put it down in a book?" Robinson persisted.

"Well," explained Capone, "if I win any money today, and I win the next day, I forget about the first day and just keep track of the total balance."

Miraculous Memory

'How do you keep track of the total balance?" Robinson fired again.

"In my mind," reported Capone.

"How many times did you speculate last year?" asked Robinson.

"I can't keep track of the times," snapped Capone. "There were numerous times."

'You kept it all in your head?" demanded Robinson.

"That is right," Capone agreed.

"Then you come up at the end of the year with a balance?" Robinson continued.

"Yes," Capone nodded.

"And that is what you put down as 'miscellaneous' in your return?" asked Robinson.

"Am I being tried for income tax here?" snarled Capone angrily.

"You aren't being tried for anything," shot back Robinson. "We are making an inquiry, Mr. Capone."

Maybe the Internal Revenue Bureau ought to make an inquiry, too.

Real Estate Lobby Wins

Republican congressmen have been chiefly identified with the real estate lobby in the past. However, House Democrats helped knife their own President in virtually killing the Taft low-cost public housing program last week.

It was Democrat Ed Gossett of Texas, long the spokesman for Eastern business, who sponsored and led the fight to slash the program to 5,000 low-cost, public housing units a year, 70,000 units less than President Truman says is our minimum need.

The Gossett amendment, while seeming to keep the housing program alive by a few token projects, actually snuffs out the whole program. For 5,000 units aren't enough to satisfy the slum-clearance of one big defense center—like New York or Chicago—and the administrative costs of a shoestring program will be so heavy that congressional economyites are bound to follow up with a demand that the whole housing program is ditched.

This is exactly what the National Association of Home Builders and other real estate lobbyists have been openly demanding—a suspension of public housing altogether.

FDR, Jr., Was Absent

Ironically, Administration Democrats from big cities, which need public housing most, had as much to do with adoption of the Gossett amendment—if not more—than the Republican-Dixiecrat coalition.

Gossett and GOP Rep. Jesse Wolcott of Michigan, another real estate lobby wheelhorse, cleverly forced a vote late Friday after members of the famous in-Tuesday-out-Thursday Absentee Club had made their usual mass exodus to New York and elsewhere. As a result, the Gossett amendment won by default, 181 to 113.

Though New York would gain more than any other city from continuance of the public housing program, only five of its 24 House members were sufficiently interested in their constituents to remain in Washington and vote against Gossett. They were Democrats Gary Clemente, Vincent Quinn, James Delaney, Donald O'Toole and Christopher McGrath, all of New York and Brooklyn.

Sixteen Manhattan and Brooklyn Democrats, however, were absent for the vital vote affecting their districts — Heller, Anfuso, Keogh, Kelly, Heffernan, Rooney, Multer, Celler, Murphy, Donovan, Klein, Fine, Powell, Dollinger and Buckley, and even Franklin Roosevelt, Jr., whose father helped pioneer public housing, did not stick around to vote. Three New York City Republicans also were not present to vote—Latham, Coudert and Javits.

Philadelphia, another big city with slums, also was let down by its Democratic congressmen. Its two Republican members, Hardie and Hugh Scott, were on the floor to vote against the Gossett amendment, but all four Democrats from Philadelphia — Barrett, Granahan, Chudoff and Green—took a run-out powder.

So also did Chicago's Democrats William Dawson and John Kluczynski. Dawson, a Negro congressman, represents one of the most congested areas in the world, while Kluczynski's Polish district is only a little less so. However, they did not bother to vote. Another significant absentee was Democrat Bob Poague of Waco, Texas, whose constituents recently voted for public housing in a referendum.

Other Texas absentees from cities with public housing programs were Frank Wilson of Dallas, Paul Kilday of San Antonio and Clark Thompson of Galveston.

NOTE—Some of these absentees may have been ill or out of town on legitimate business, but the great majority had no excuse for missing an important roll call like this.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

January 11 And 12

GENERAL Douglas MacArthur threw many more bombshells in his testimony before the Senate committees than was at first apparent. Only the most careful reading of the record brings out the points at issue. General MacArthur makes much of a program for action prepared by the Joint Chiefs of Staff on January 12. The ideas and purpose in that document showed that he and the Joint Chiefs of Staff were in full agreement. This program, as General MacArthur read it, is as follows:

"Continue and intensify now an economic blockade of trade with China.

"Prepart now to impose a naval blockade of China and place it into effect as soon as our position in Korea is stabilized or when we have evacuated Korea, and depending upon circumstances then obtaining.

"Remove now any restrictions on air reconnaissance of China coastal areas and of Manchuria.

"Remove now the restrictions on operation of the Chinese Nationalist forces and give such logistic support to those forces as will contribute to effective operations against the Communists."

Now, let us go back to January 11. On that day, a new five-point "cease-fire plan" was supported by the United States but criticized by Soviet Russia. This plan included these five provisions:

1. An immediate cease-fire with safeguards against use of the truce "as a screen for mounting a new offensive."

2. Action during the truce on a permanent Korean peace.

3. Exit of "non-Korean" forces by "appropriate stages."

4. UN-approved administration of Korea during the truce.

5. Creation of a UN agency, including the U.S., Russia, Britain, and Red China, to settle Far Eastern issues, including Formosa's future and Chinese representation in UN.

If we compare these two statements, one day apart, the question must arise as to whether the State Department knew what the Joint Chiefs of Staff were doing, or vice versa. For the Joint Chiefs of Staff were planning to blockade China while the State Department was planning to get Soviet China into the United Nations. The Joint Chiefs were planning to work with Nationalist China while the State Department was planning to ditch Nationalist China.

The cease-fire plan was passed on January 13, 50 to 7.

On January 15, Senator Eastland introduced a resolution for the United States to withdraw from the United Nations if Soviet China were seated and that President Truman be directed to defend Formosa. Senator Taft called the cease-fire plan "the most complete surrender to which the U.S. has ever agreed . . ."

Chou En-lai of Soviet China countered with the following proposals:

1. It should be assumed on both sides that all "foreign" troops will be withdrawn from Korea. (He did not specify whether this would cover Chinese "volunteers.") Negotiations for the withdrawal should be begun "so that the war in Korea may be brought to a speedy end."

2. The negotiations "must include the withdrawal of U.S. armed forces from Taiwan (Formosa) and the Taiwan Strait and Far Eastern related problems."

3. Participants in the negotiations should be Red China, Russia, U.S., Britain, France, India, and Egypt.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—It's just another Pearl Harbor investigation all over again.

Back in December, 1941, General Marshall and Admiral Stark thought that someone had told General Short and Admiral Kimmel what Washington knew about the forthcoming attack through breaking the Japanese code—but nobody did tell them.

Today, it comes out that the President and the Secretary of State and the Secretary of Defense and Special assistant Averell Harriman and General Bradley, who advised that General MacArthur be summarily dismissed, never told him that any of the public statements he had made during the preceding four weeks were violative of military orders or any other orders relating to policy statements.

The Administration may have thought that General MacArthur, at a distance of 10,000 miles, was a mind reader and as well informed about the state of mind of persons in Washington as were the five men who fired him, but there is not a single bit of evidence in the record after three days of testimony to support that point.

More Bad Liaison

In fact, the official record gets worse and worse for the Administration in revealing the same kind of bad liaison in the last few months with Tokyo as the War and Navy Departments had with Pearl Harbor ten years ago.

Not a single word of disapproval went to General MacArthur on December 6 last, when a general directive was issued advising all departments and all persons in the field as well as in Washington to clear policy statements with the departments back home. Although General Marshall now testifies that the Administration didn't like General MacArthur's answers to the questions of the press prior to December 6—even though they primarily concerned military matters in his theatre of action—not a word of such criticism was ever relayed to General MacArthur. He could as easily have inferred that there were no complaints here.

Not a single word of criticism or of any other kind went to General MacArthur specifically refering to his own statements or pointing out any deviation from policy to him between December 6, 1950, when the general directive was issued, and the day he was dismissed—April 11, 1951.

The now famous letter which General MacArthur wrote in routine fashion, answering an inquiry from Representative Joseph Martin, Republican, of Massachusetts, was dated March 20 at Tokyo. Although he had written letters to members of Congress and had talked with them in Tokyo during a period of nearly six years and they had made public the views which the General gave them, not a single word of criticism of his relations with members of Congress had ever been conveyed to him by his superiors in Washington.

Had No Word

When, on March 24 last, General MacArthur addressed a plea to the Chinese commander to agree to a "cease fire," not a single word of the statement or declaration being planned by the government here—and which it says it was circulating among 13 governments—had been sent to MacArthur for his information. Actually it is reliably reported that he had prepared his communication to the Chinese commander ten days before and was waiting for an opportune moment to release it. Likewise, Trygve Lie, secretary-general of the UN, has since stated publicly that a military commander in the field has the right to address the enemy commander on armistice terms at any time.

The message that was sent to MacArthur saying the State Department was "planning" some kind of a peace offer to the Red Chinese did not give him any details. It was a speculative message and failed to instruct him not to make any communication on this or any other subject related to it. The home office manager who failed to keep a branch manager better informed than that on company policy would be the one dismissed in American business today.

Even when the MacArthur statement to the Chinese commander was published, the Joint Chiefs merely asked him a day afterward to be sure and report if any request for armistice came from the enemy commander. There was not a word of criticism or of approval or disapproval sent General MacArthur concerning that statement to the Red Chinese commander.

Secretary Marshall has testified, moreover, that it was an "accumulation" of things that caused the dismissal, but what it looks like is an accumulation of hostile thoughts pent up somewhere in the Pentagon and the White House which came to a head when General MacArthur answered a letter that Representative Martin, on his own initiative, made public.

Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH ALSOP

Where Eisenhower Stands

PARIS

FOR THE TIME being, General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower and his international staff are polishing up their plans, getting on with whatever can be done immediately, and biding their time. But before long, some pretty grim decisions are going to have to be taken about the ultimate size of the Atlantic defense forces and their eventual composition and disposition.

The mere fact that these absolutely fundamental decisions have not been taken yet, is enough to show the hollowness of recent optimistic talk. The American productive machine has been put into high gear, but it will be a year to eighteen months before the really critical items, such as aircraft and tanks, are available in quantity. Gen. Eisenhower has begun his great effort, but it will be two to three years before Western Europe and the Western world are really secure. This is the true state of affairs today.

For the present, the French government is visibly incapable of any positive action whatever until after a national election. Moreover, the long range Western defense plans are still incomplete. Thus the uncomfortable time of fact-facing and of decision-taking will probably not come before July. Meanwhile, however, it is already possible to define the main policy problems which the American, British and French governments are going to have to solve somehow, if Gen. Eisenhower is to have a really firm foundation to build upon.

German Issue

First, comes the great issue of German participation. For the present, all efforts are being directed towards organizing a preliminary defense of the line of the Rhine, to which, of course the Germans will not contribute. But this Rhine plan has long been recognized as a very poor stopgap. And, German divisions are essential for a defense nearer the Elbe.

The signs suggest that this delicate question will be approached obliquely. The global requirements for an adequate forward defense will be plainly stated. It will then be obvious that this number of divisions cannot possibly be provided except by German participation, or by the heaviest sacrifices by the other Western Europeans. Thus the French and their sympathizers will have to choose between rejecting the principle of an adequate defense, or accepting the Germans as equal defense partners.

Second, comes the controversial problem of the air-ground balance within the overall Western defense force. When this reporter left Washington at least the Pentagon was still firmly clinging to the old rule of thumb, one division, one air group. But the best minds here on the Allied staffs, among the prospective German military leaders and among Gen. Eisenhower's subordinates, all have a different concept. Their rule is: the smaller the ground force, the larger the air force. Thus the necessarily limited Western ground army must be supported and sustained by really overwhelming tactical air power.

Air Groups Needed

By severing enemy lines of communication, by chopping up enemy forces moving into position, by destroying enemy supplies, the air is to cut the enemy's larger ground army down to the size of our smaller defending force. Such is the theory. But for these purposes, perhaps a hundred air groups overall will be needed in Europe alone, in addition to the home defense air forces in America, Britain and elsewhere. As Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge has already shrewdly demonstrated, getting this kind of satisfactory air balance may demand drastic rethinking of American air plans and programs in all fields from appropriations to production.

Third, comes the unpleasant problem of manpower. The French and several other European Atlantic pact partners still follow the pre-first World War training system, which will not put modern, combat worthy divisions promptly into the field. If the French, for example, are to meet their commitment of forces for Western defense, they must extend the conscript training period from eighteen months to two to three years. And they must allow some conscripts to serve in Indo-China, so that professional troops can be brought home and formed into the training cadres that the French army now lacks. Here are more thorns to grasp.

Fourth, there is the troublesome question of facilities. The need to get on with the construction of air bases is apparent everywhere from Turkey and Cyprus and Tripoli around to France. Here in France particularly, there is a massive air base requirement, since this is the natural region from which to back up a ground effort in Germany or on the Rhine. Many other sorts of installations, from headquarters to supply depots must also be provided and paid for. And the difficulties thus far have been so great that even the headquarters from which Generals Juin and Norstad are to command the main European ground and air forces are not yet available.

There are other items that might be added to the long list, such as the crucial Mediterranean problems already explored in this space. Enough has been said, however, to prove two points. Gen. Eisenhower will not even have a full set of tools for his job before the leaders of the Western nations have done a lot more hard work. And even after his tools have been provided, Gen. Eisenhower's job will take a long time to complete.

Truman Backs Beef Price Lids Despite Protests

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP) — President Truman today gave emphatic support to the beef price ceilings now being put into effect.

He told his news conference that protests against the new ceiling orders by packers and others were the same old 1946 fight over again. He indicated he would not be swayed by them.

He said he approved the price orders of Administrator Michael DiSalle and they will be enforced.

Recalling the 1946 controversy and agitation which led to the removal of meat price controls effected during World War II, Mr. Truman said current cries stem from the fact that whenever you tread on the toes of anybody they have to scream.

The DiSalle orders call for progressive reductions in the prices paid for live cattle and for a total reduction of nine or 10 cents a pound at retail by October.

Mr. Truman said there was no foundation in fact for recurring reports that Secretary of State Acheson will leave the cabinet in the next few weeks or months.

He made the same reply to a question whether Ambassador William O'Dwyer will be recalled from his Mexico City post. There had been published reports that the former New York mayor would lose his diplomatic post because the Senate Crime Committee sharply criticized him and because a close friend, James Moran, was convicted of perjury in the aftermath of the Senate inquiry.

The President backed up the testimony of Secretary of Defense Marshall in the Senate foreign policy hearing. He said he was very satisfied with Marshall's statements, adding the Secretary had told the exact truth word for word.

seen it. At this time, Marshall was Army chief of staff and MacArthur's military boss.

Smith gave this information from a letter whose author remained anonymous. The letter went on to imply that the MacArthur proposal to march against the Reds was sent to John Carter Vincent, then "head of the China group in the State Department," to be "polished up" — but it came out "the exact opposite" in the finished report.

LUCKY HIKER — Jerry Wolschon, 20, Detroit, Mich., sustained only a dislocated foot when he fell 130 feet to a rocky ledge while hiking at Yosemite Valley, Calif. Park rangers spent eight hours removing him from the ledge where he had lain for 20 hours, using slings and a specially constructed dolly to return him to the hospital on the floor of the valley.

Bomber Lands Safely Following Fire Scare

SACRAMENTO, Calif., May 10 (AP)—An Air Force B-26 that was thought to have caught fire 400 miles off the California coast landed safely here today and found the smoke came only from too rich a carburetor mixture.

The public information officer at McClellan Field said black smoke started pouring from the plane shortly after it lost visual contact with three other B-26s and a mother B-29.

The craft carrying two men suffered a momentary loss of power, he said, but returned to the mainland without incident.

Kee Funeral Rites Held At Bluefield

BLUEFIELD, W. Va., May 10 (AP) —Simple funeral services lasting 31 minutes were held today for Rep. John Kee (D-WVa) in his hometown of Bluefield.

Some 250 persons filled Christ Episcopal Church and an equal number stood outside.

Kee's son, James Kee, was unable to attend the funeral. He was hospitalized in Bluefield suffering from a severe reaction to penicillin.

Warners Retain Film Firm Stock

NEW YORK, May 10 (AP)—Harry M. Warner said today he and his brothers have decided to retain their interest in Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., and have ended negotiations on an offer to buy their stock.

They had been holding discussions with a syndicate headed by Louis R. Lurie, San Francisco banker and real estate operator, on its offer of $25,000,000 for their interests.

Harry Warner, president, and his brothers, Jack L. and Albert, with their families own 24 per cent of the stock of the big motion picture firm which they founded.

Lurie arrived from the west coast Monday to negotiate with the Warners and after preliminary discussions by attorneys on both sides, he and his associates met with the Warners yesterday and again today.

Harry Warner, in his statement, said the negotiations were concluded in a spirit of friendliness but that "there will be no sale of our stock to Mr. Lurie and his associates."

NEW YORK, May 10 (AP)—Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion said tonight Israel is building a "fortress of democracy" in the Near East which will serve as an example to the entire world.

He added that it also would show "our neighbors that they need not live in slavery and poverty."

Ben-Gurion spoke to a Madison Square Garden capacity crowd of 19,000 persons. Some 10,000 others outside milled about or surged against police cordons trying to get in. Loudspeakers were placed outside.

About 200 pickets were on hand, protesting what they called a lack of religious education in Israel under Ben-Gurion's Socialist party.

West Va. May Have Trouble Selling Vets' Bonus Bonds

CHARLESTON, W. Va., May 10 (AP) — State Treasurer W. H. Ansel, Jr., said today there is a possibility the state may be able to sell its veterans' bonus revenue bonds as scheduled even though no bids are indicated.

Smith, Barney and Company, which with two other investment houses jointly headed a 125-member syndicate, said today it would comply with a request of the National Voluntary Credit Restraint Committee and not bid on the $67,500,000 bond issue.

Another firm, Halsey, Stuart and Company, which heads another syndicate, estimated by Ansel to have some 100 members, said earlier it would not bid on the bonds if the committee so requested.

Ansel said advertisements for the bond sale will be in the hands of some 450 major investment houses throughout the nation by Monday. The houses making up the two syndicates are included.

"This would leave about 225 investment firms throughout the country that may bid for our bonds," Ansel said. "From that point of view, there is a possibility we may receive some bids," he added.

The bond issue has been termed inflationary by the National Voluntary Restraint Committee which hav asked firms not to bid on the sale scheduled for May 23.

"Brother-Sister" Order Set Aside

TOPEKA, Kas., May 10 (AP)—Mrs. Phyllis Campbell and her former husband don't have to live like "brother and sister," the Kansas Supreme Court ruled today.

The high court set aside the brother-sister provision of a divorce decree granted Mrs. Campbell of Wichita May 1 by Sedgwick County District Judge Ross McCormick.

It also ruled out Judge McCormick's stipulation that the divorce would not become final for six months.

Mrs. Campbell appealed to the Supreme Court after Judge McCormick ordered her to prepare a room in her home to be occupied by her former husband, Telbert.

The judge directed Mrs. Campbell to prepare his meals and to "perform all other acts that would be performed by a good sister toward a good brother."

Mrs. Campbell, 45, and her former husband, 52, had been married 27 years.

Judge McCormick said his main idea in making the "brother-sister" order was to bring about a reconciliation, if possible.

Youth Reported Swept Into Baltimore Tubes

BALTIMORE, May 10 (AP) — The police started taking seriously today the story of two little negro girls that they saw a youth sucked into the big tubes that carry a creek under downtown Baltimore into the harbor.

Investigators found a brown shoe near the mouth of the tunnel. In the slime around one tube they found marks which might have been made by someone clawing frantically for a handhold.

A police boat stood by at the outlets almost two miles away but could find no sign of a body.

About 15 years ago, three children were swept into the Jones Falls tubes at the height of a heavy rain storm. Their bodies came up in the harbor three days later.

The tubes are big enough for a small rowboat.

Some 53.3 per cent of the population of the United States belongs to some church group.

Youth Reported Swept Into Baltimore Tubes

BALTIMORE, May 10 (AP) — The police started taking seriously today the story of two little negro girls that they saw a youth sucked into the big tubes that carry a creek under downtown Baltimore into the harbor.

Investigators found a brown shoe near the mouth of the tunnel. In the slime around one tube they found marks which might have been made by someone clawing frantically for a handhold.

A police boat stood by at the outlets almost two miles away but could find no sign of a body.

About 15 years ago, three children were swept into the Jones Falls tubes at the height of a heavy rain storm. Their bodies came up in the harbor three days later.

The tubes are big enough for a small rowboat.

Recipe for happiness, according to an ancient poem:

If you would be happy for three hours,
Get drunk!
If you would be happy for three days,
Kill a pig and eat it.
If you would be happy for three years,
Get married.
If you would be happy for your whole life long,
Become a gardner.

And since April showers have brought May flowers, this is the best time of year to talk about posies . . . Whether your budget allows a greenhouse with built-in gardeners, or time and space for a small, summer cuttings garden . . . Or only one pink rose from the florist for your dressing table—one of the best investments for turning a house into a home is the money you spend for flowers.

AUSTINE

After interviewing some floral authorities like Mr. Z. D. Blackistone, Jr., Mrs. Clova Demaine, Miss Fay Wright and half a dozen others, I have compiled a little rule sheet from their advice on "The Care and Feeding of Flowers:"

1. Don't order or cut garden flowers for your house the day of the "party" . . . To last and look their best, most blooms should be "conditioned" for at least 24 hours . . . Plunged into cold water—plunged deep, and if possible at a temperature of 40 degrees.

2. Always cut stems on a slant with a very sharp knife so as not to press the veins together . . . If the veins are presed together in cutting, flowers won't be able to "drink."

3. Best preservative under the sun is sugar—just plain, old, everyday granulated sugar which everybody has on the shelf . . . Sugar has a tendency to kill certain bacteria which form scum in water.

4. Mr. Blackistone cautions against pouring those chemical preservatives into vases without measuring. "If anything," warns Mr. Blackistone, "use a diluted solution and less than required. The chemicals kill flowers when the solution is too strong."

5. Receptacles must be scrupulously clean . . . . Should be washed out after each use with baking soda and warm water.

6. Forget about aspirin as a flower preservative. It belongs in the medicine cabinet only.

7. For limp flowers, such as lilacs, a spoon of plain, dark molasses in a quart of water. Break the stems instead of cutting.

8. For roses, a tablespoonful of powered alum for each quart of water.

9. A bunch of violets can be kept for a long time if you'll immerse them in water . . . heads and all.

10. Gardenias drink from the bloom—not the stem. Keep fresh by putting a dampened fold of facial tissue over the flower, sticking in the refrigerator.

Plump, brunette Mrs. Clova Demaine has a rare talent for fixing flowers—and doesn't mind sharing her secrets.

"Flower arrangements should depend on quality, or artistry, not on quantity. Three perfect blooms can be as effective as three dozen," she says.

"First I do the green background—lemon leaves, huckleberry, something like that. Then I stick in flowers, starting with the short stemmed ones and building up the center. If you begin with a green background, when the flowers do get limp you can pluck them out one at a time and still have a pretty picture."

Flowers should be part of your decorations. Small bunches in a small room . . . Exotic flowers like Birds of Paradise in a modern decor, old-fashioned flowers in a Victorian room, etc.

Women will worry themselves sick over the menu for a party and neglect the flowers. They'll have the silver shined up grand but throw a few, badly-arranged flowers in a vase at the last minute. Yet flowers are as important as accessory to your house as a hat is to your costume. Give them some time and thought.

Eye Grafts May Restore Partial Sight To Girl, 17

BOSTON.—(AP)—Flucky Jacqueline Sinnott, 17, was reported "feeling fine" after undergoing two eye grafts that doctors hope may restore some of the sight she lost in a laboratory explosion at Marshfield High School.

Jacqueline, a senior, had been studying chemistry in preparation for a nursing career. The accident occurred almost on the eve of her graduation.

Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary doctors broke the news to her Tuesday that she had lost the sight of both eyes.

Later Dr. Garrett Sullivan grafted corneal tissue from the eyes of a man who died the day before. Jackie went through the first transplant so well that Dr. Sullivan operated again immediately. Usually several days intervene.

He called the lengthy double surgery a "desperate measure" to help restore some vision. He said her sight was "very seriously impaired."

Nurses said Jacqueline showed great courage and stamina as she went through the two operations under local anesthetics.

But it will be a week or 10 days before surgeons know whether they have restored some of her vision.

And there are still other operations ahead for Jacqueline. Cataracts must be removed from her eyes. She will have plastic surgery to restore her burned face.

The girl's mother, Mrs. Lawrence Sinnot of Marshfield, said "Jackie wanted to be a nurse ever since she was old enough to know what a nurse was. That's why she took chemistry."

UNEVEN SUIT ON SIDE

SUPPOSE your pair is in the fortunate position of owning two suits so good that either would be ideal for trumps, to the extent that no trick would be lost in it. One of those suits has equal, or nearly equal, length in both your hand and that of your partner. The other is very unevenly distributed between you, with great length in one hand opposite shortage in the other. In such a case, it is nearly always best to pick the evenly balanced, or nearly evenly-balanced suit for trump, leaving the unbalanced suit available for discarding losers of other suits.

There was not a chance in the world of making that contract. West led the heart K, which the A of course took, but South couldn't avoid losing a trick then in that suit, so was down one.

North castigated South after the deal for not putting the final contract into diamonds, in which the grand slam would have been a cinch. South's only defense was that he was seeking maximum points for the pair. Seven tricks in spades would be worth 210, or 70 more than the same number in diamonds, and in addition the 150 honors in spades would be worth 50 more than the 100 in diamonds. Thus, it looked to South as if the pair would get 120 points more with spades as the trump.

So South sold his birthright for a mess of pottage. The 7-Diamonds would have been easy to make because the unbalanced side suit of spades would have furnished all the discards of heart losers that might be desired.

North's instant support of diamonds the first time he heard the suit should have given South enough guidance to the right contract. His later takeout of 5-Spades into 5-Diamonds should have clinched the argument if a clincher had been needed.

Make yourself a "beauty book" to use as a portable dressing table whenever you are away from home!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

IT takes a pretty well-equipped purse to carry all the cosmetic items required to keep a woman looking and feeling fresh when she goes out early in the morning and remains away from home until late. How to store all your cosmetics without poking the purse out of shape creates quite a problem. And, according to the Powers Girls, the daily switching of this equipment from purse to purse, depending on the costume you are wearing, is practically a plague.

But Model Jane Jarvis has invented a way to lick the problems of both storing and switching. I call her invention a portable dressing table, but she calls it her "beauty book," and it does look like a handsome, leather-bound volume when she carries it under her arm.

Your Beauty Book

If you'd like to save yourself a lot of discomfort and dishabille during the wearisome summer days ahead, why not outfit yourself with one? It's simple enough. Just get a man's inexpensive traveling case of simulated leather. It measures about five inches in width, nine in length and two in depth. Be sure the one you select has plenty of compartments and a zippered closing. For real chi-chi, at little cost, mark your case with your initials in gold leaf.

Next, supply yourself with a set of small, unbreakable, gilt-topped jars and bottles which are available everywhere. You'll need one to hold your skin cleanser and freshener, foundation, powder, hand lotion, mouth wash and deodorant. To this collection add miniature-sized hair brush and comb, clothes brush, shaving cream to use in place of powder-room soaps, perfume, nail scissors, packet of tissues, emery board and cotton balls. Also include lipstick, (and other cosmetics you habitually use), nail polish and eyebrow tweezers. Arrange all the items in a handy and orderly fashion.

The Whole Story

Your beauty book will be ready for the longest day, week-end trip or vacation — and with no scrambling to get your necessaries together. It will fit in the glove compartment of the car, in the corner of your suitcase, in your desk drawer at the office, on the hatcheck girl's shelf, and wherever it is, it will tell a pretty tale about your grooming!

A RECENT reflection on Gen. MacArthur's previous appearances before Congress, when he was chief of staff in the early 1930's, has jogged the memory of Brig. Gen. Brice P. Disque, Ret., of Spuyten Duyvil, N. Y., who writes:

"I wish your piece had said that in 1933, at a time when Mr. Roosevelt had a couple of billion dollars appropriated for raking leaves and other such useful purposes, MacArthur was unable to get more than about 50 million dollars of that appropriation to help the mechanism of our army.

"About that time, it so happens, I was in command of some troops. We used some rented trucks with stove pipes on them, to represent tanks and motorized artillery, as the Army had no such equipment except in token quantities.

"I visited MacArthur and persuaded him to go to Mr. Roosevelt to get a considerable sum from the slush fund. Later on, he told me he had made the effort but that he was unable to get more than a token amount.

"It seems that Mr. Roosevelt was willing to give more but Madame Perkins and other advisors told him it would be unsocial to use the funds for military purposes.

"Of course, still later on, we expended millions of dollars for purposes which would have been adequately met for thousands of dollars had just a modicum of intelligence been used."

Ed note:—Incidentally, MacArthur got bawled out for applying for PWA funds. On a subsequent trip to Congress, to apply for money which would raise U. S. arms beyond the 17th place they held among the world powers, Rep. Blanton told him bluntly that he did not approve.

"Why don't you come to congress, General?" Blanton demanded. "Hasn't your department been coming to Congress for 150 years? And you have never gone to the PWA until last year?

"That is correct, sir."

"Well, what's the matter? Have you lost confidence in Congress?"

MacArthur apparently did not wish to trust himself to answer.

• — • — •

The full story of Secretary of State Dean Acheson's antipathy toward MacArthur has never been told, and perhaps never will be. But it appears that Acheson was an important figure, if not the most important, in the concerted move that was climaxed by MacArthur's dismissal.

Some say that MacArthur aroused Acheson's ire in September, 1945, when the President suggested to MacArthur that he accept Acheson as a political adviser. MacArthur declined.

The bitterness of the Secretary of State increased, Freda Utley states in her new book "The China Story" (Henry Regnery, Co.) as a result of the suppressed MacArthur message to the Veterans of Foreign Wars last summer.

"It is clear that he (Acheson) has no appreciation of the psychology of Asiatics," he writes.

"Hence presumably the State Department's angry reaction to the MacArthur message to the VFW, which said, 'Nothing could be more fallacious than the threadbare argument of those who advocate appeasement in the Pacific, that if we defend Korea we alienate continental Asia. Those who speak thus do not understand the Orient.'"

Miss Utley, long-time China hand who is British born, adds:

"This was the passage which hurt most in Washington, since it was obviously a description of Dean Acheson and his closest colleagues."

(Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.)

"The rightful place" of Red China as a U.N. member "should be established as from the beginning of the 7-nation conference."

4. The conference should be held in Red China.

So here we have the full results of the State Department policy of appeasement, which ran counter not only to General MacArthur's ideas but to a plan conceived by the Joint Chiefs of Staff which must have been submitted to the State Department. We, in the United States, were never told about it. Nor does General MacArthur know what happened to the Joint Chiefs' plan. Read this colloquy between Senator Russell and General MacArthur:

"Q.—So if that was a recommendation of the Joint Chiefs, it encountered a veto somewhere along the line, either from the Secretary of Defense or the commander in chief, the President of the United States. A.—I would assume so, sir.

"Q.—Did the Joint Chiefs ever advise you formally or informally as to what happened to their recommendations? A.—No, sir.

"Q.—You did not discuss it with them on subsequent visits to your command? A.—I discussed, every time any of them ever came out there, I discussed all these subjects.

"Q.—And they did not tell you what had happened to their recommendations? A.—Nothing. I have no knowledge of what happened to this study after it reached the Secretary of Defense."

Ed note:—Incidentally, MacArthur got bawled out for applying for PWA funds. On a subsequent trip to Congress, to apply for money which would raise U. S. arms beyond the 17th place they held among the world powers, Rep. Blanton told him bluntly that he did not approve.

"Why don't you come to congress, General?" Blanton demanded. "Hasn't your department been coming to Congress for 150 years? And you have never gone to the PWA until last year?

"That is correct, sir."

"Well, what's the matter? Have you lost confidence in Congress?"

MacArthur apparently did not wish to trust himself to answer.

● — ● — ●

The full story of Secretary of State Dean Acheson's antipathy toward MacArthur has never been told, and perhaps never will be. But it appears that Acheson was an important figure, if not the most important, in the concerted move that was climaxed by MacArthur's dismissal.

Some say that MacArthur aroused Acheson's ire in September, 1945, when the President suggested to MacArthur that he accept Acheson as a political adviser. MacArthur declined.

The bitterness of the Secretary of State increased, Freda Utley states in her new book "The China Story" (Henry Regnery, Co.) as a result of the suppressed MacArthur message to the Veterans of Foreign Wars last summer.

"It is clear that he (Acheson) has no appreciation of the psychology of Asiatics," he writes.

"Hence presumably the State Department's angry reaction to the MacArthur message to the VFW, which said, 'Nothing could be more fallacious than the threadbare argument of those who advocate appeasement in the Pacific, that if we defend Korea we alienate continental Asia. Those who speak thus do not understand the Orient.'"

Miss Utley, long-time China hand who is British born, adds:

"This was the passage which hurt most in Washington, since it was obviously a description of Dean Acheson and his closest colleagues."

(Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.)

"The rightful place" of Red China as a U.N. member "should be established as from the beginning of the 7-nation conference."

4. The conference should be held in Red China.

So here we have the full results of the State Department policy of appeasement, which ran counter not only to General MacArthur's ideas but to a plan conceived by the Joint Chiefs of Staff which must have been submitted to the State Department. We, in the United States, were never told about it. Nor does General MacArthur know what happened to the Joint Chiefs' plan. Read this colloquy between Senator Russell and General MacArthur:

"Q.—So if that was a recommendation of the Joint Chiefs, it encountered a veto somewhere along the line, either from the Secretary of Defense or the commander in chief, the President of the United States. A.—I would assume so, sir.

"Q.—Did the Joint Chiefs ever advise you formally or informally as to what happened to their recommendations? A.—No, sir.

"Q.—You did not discuss it with them on subsequent visits to your command? A.—I discussed, every time any of them ever came out there, I discussed all these subjects.

"Q.—And they did not tell you what had happened to their recommendations? A.—Nothing. I have no knowledge of what happened to this study after it reached the Secretary of Defense."

The Old Second Guesser

By JOHN N. WHEELER

The Grand Old Man Of The Press Box

BOB WOODRUFF, the head of the Coca Cola Company, gave a dinner to honor Grantland Rice at the Links Club last night, and the batting order of guests looked like a composite box score of the famous in sports, industry, politics, and the arts. If such a tribute had been paid to this writer, he would probably get a big head and his wife would have to divorce him or shoot him, but old Grant will take it in his stride, as he has the ups and downs of life for 70 years.

Among the champions present were Bobby Jones, Gene Tunney, and Jack Dempsey. The latter two were on very friendly terms, although I remember the days when they hated each other, and each was trying to knock the other's block off. Time is a great dealer, and I wish it would get busy on the world situation and let pugilists take care of themselves.

"They ought to be on a first-name basis and cordial," remarked Bugs Baer. "As a result of their fights, both made a lot of money, and neither could have done it alone. They drew the biggest gate in the history of boxing in Chicago, and each is now rich."

Before we sat down to dinner, while we were nibbling at caviar and grazing on hors d'oeuvre which were not horse meat and sipping an occasional toddy, I was talking to Dempsey.

"I saw Firpo when I was in Buenos Aires last June," I told him.

"How was he—big and fat?" he inquired casually. No love is lost between the two even yet.

"No," I said. "He claimed he weighed two hundred and forty pounds. I asked him about the time he knocked you out of the ring. He didn't want to talk about it and didn't seem very friendly. How good a fighter was he?"

"He wasn't a very good one," answered Jack, "but he could punch and hurt. At the start of the first round, I didn't think much of him and missed with a left, and he caught me with a right which caused all the trouble and excitement."

Old-timers will recall Dempsey made an exit from the ring feet last, but managed to scramble back with the help of a few shoves from ringsiders in time to save the fight. He later knocked Firpo out after a furious exchange in which the South American was down several times.

The post-prandial oratory was so effusive I noticed Grant look around a couple of times and pinch himself, I suppose to be sure the speakers were referring to him and not to some divine spirit who had suddenly returned to earth. It was announced an anonymous donor had given a scholarship to the Pulitzer School of Journalism at Columbia University to be known as the Grantland Rice Fellowship, a nice and deserved tribute to the reputation he has made. Bugs Baer made a good talk and told one story I think can be repeated with propriety.

He spoke of several old-time sports writers who have now gone to their rewards.

"We've stuck together in fair weather and foul," he went on. "Thank goodness typewriters don't get the shakes."

There was one character we all knew who couldn't keep away from the races with the result he had gone broke and borrowed so much money, his former friends looked the other way when he came along to escape a touch. At the track one day, he started for that retreat where ladies are barred and negotiated a loan of a dime to finance the expedition. His luck changed, for as it turned out he didn't need it, finding a gentleman had left the door open.

En route back, he stopped at a slot machine and watched several players lose their money. Figuring it about ripe, he deposited his dime, hit the jackpot, and got five dollars which he bet on a horse at forty to one. He won. At the end of the day, he was $18,000 ahead and decided to reward his benefactor if he could find him by splitting his winnings. Word got around about his charitable intentions, and the philanthropist who loaned him the dime approached, expecting to get $9,000.

"Oh, I don't mean you," said the sports writer. "I am looking for the guy who left the door open." Whether he ever found him was not disclosed.

"Now here is where Grant Rice comes in," concluded Bugs. "He always leaves the door open for the other fellow."

The services ended with Morton Downey singing some sentimental old ballads.

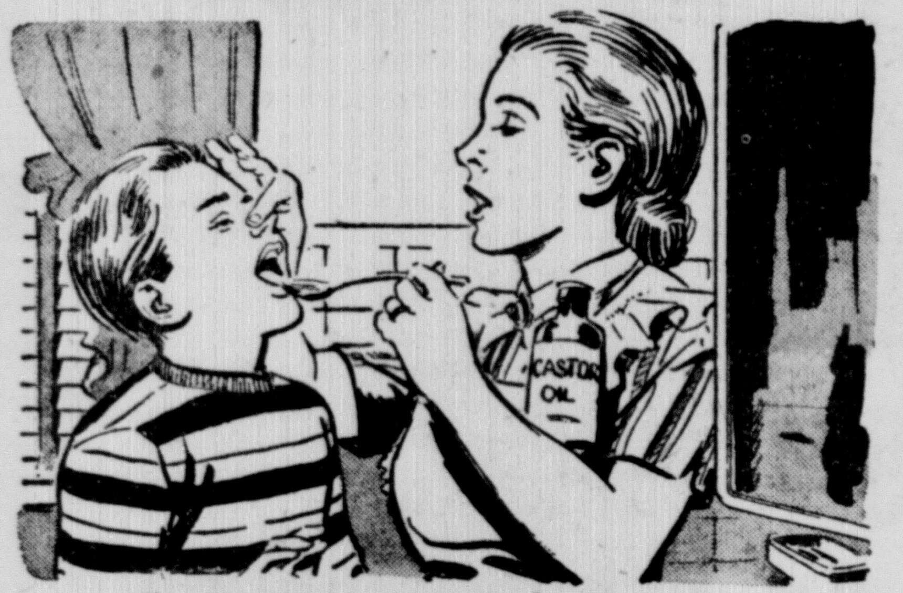
Mirror Of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist



Should you tell a small child to "be good"?

Answer: There is not much point in doing so because to a two-or three-year-old such abstract words as "good" have no clear meaning. He realizes that when he is something called "good" it pleases his mother, and he wants to please her so that she will love him, but words alone do not tell him how to go about it. He must be shown how to do certain specific things, like picking up his toys or letting baby sister play with them, and then be praised for it. To have demands made on him which he does not know how to meet makes him feel insecure and frightened.

Does a drunken man know what he is doing?

Answer: Not always. At some times and with some people too much liquor may produce a mental state known as dissociation (popularly called "drawing a blank") in which one part of their minds may function well enough to steer them through familiar activities like finding their way home, even though their consciousness is dazed or comatose. The simplest form of dissociation is the "absent-mindedness" of the proverbial professor, and sleepwalking is another and more dangerous one. When you start to "draw blanks," it's time to quit drinking.

May change of life cause paranoia?

Answer: When change of life brings on a mental illness, either in man or in woman, this is usually of the "depressive" type once known as "involutional melancholia," leading to loss of interest in life, intense sadness and often severe delusions of guilt. But psychiatrists now say that such symptoms generally occur only in a person who has previously had neurotic or psychotic tendencies. On this basis someone who had always been inclined to feel suspicious and "abused" might develop paranoia when faced with the problem of adjusting the new life-conditions.

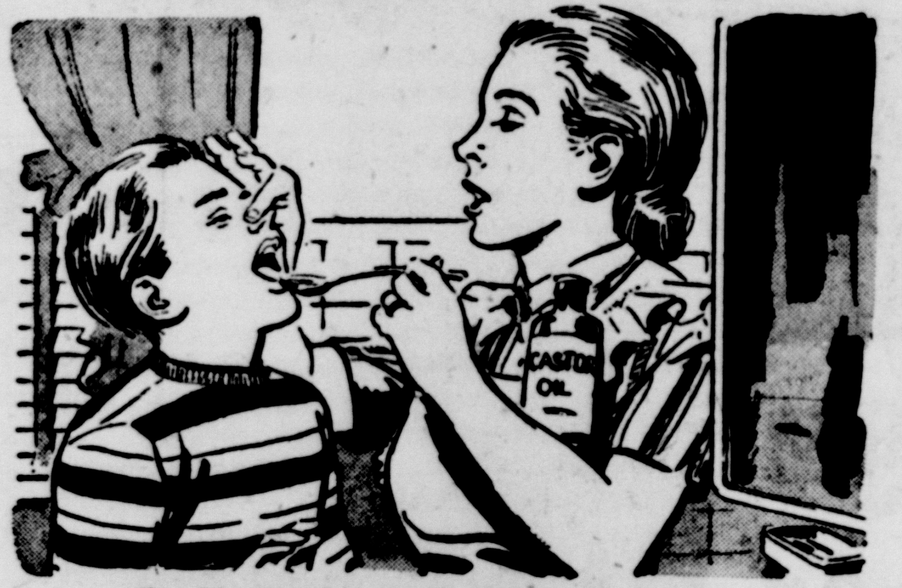
Mirror Of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist



Should you tell a small child to "be good"?

Answer: There is not much point in doing so because to a two-or three-year-old such abstract words as "good" have no clear meaning. He realizes that when he is something called "good" it pleases his mother, and he wants to please her so that she will love him, but words alone do not tell him how to go about it. He must be shown how to do certain specific things, like picking up his toys or letting baby sister play with them, and then be praised for it. To have demands made on him which he does not know how to meet makes him feel insecure and frightened.

Does a drunken man know what he is doing?

Answer: Not always. At some times and with some people too much liquor may produce a mental state known as dissociation (popularly called "drawing a blank") in which one part of their minds may function well enough to steer them through familiar activities like finding their way home, even though their consciousness is dazed or comatose. The simplest form of dissociation is the "absent-mindedness" of the proverbial professor, and sleepwalking is another and more dangerous one. When you start to "draw blanks," it's time to quit drinking.

May change of life cause paranoia?

Answer: When change of life brings on a mental illness, either in man or in woman, this is usually of the "depressive" type once known as "involutional melancholia," leading to loss of interest in life, intense sadness and often severe delusions of guilt. But psychiatrists now say that such symptoms generally occur only in a person who has previously had neurotic or psychotic tendencies. On this basis someone who had always been inclined to feel suspicious and "abused" might develop paranoia when faced with the problem of adjusting the new life-conditions.

SENSATION OF THE YEAR...NEWEST WASHDAY IDEA!

NEW RAIN-SOFT RINSO

SPECIALLY MADE FOR THE TYPE OF WATER IN

CUMBERLAND AREA

It's True!
SAYS LOCAL HOUSEWIFE

"I was amazed to discover what this New Rain-Soft Rinso does in OUR KIND OF WATER," says Mrs. Charles A. Ways, 309 Fayette Street, Cumberland, Md. "The water becomes even softer than rain and my wash comes out whiter than new. Rinso is certainly a boon to people in our town."

She's Right!
SAYS UNITED STATES TESTING COMPANY

The United States Testing Company, Inc., reports: "New Rinso with Solium has been tested by us using water typical of the Cumberland area. We find that Rinso gets out more dirt than any other type of washday product. In addition, Rinso makes clothes whiter and brighter than new."

Mision Rally

with students leaving St. Mary's School grounds at 2:30 p. m. and marching to the stadium. Units participating in the parade are requested to be at the school grounds by 2:15 p. m., Rev. Hopkins stated.

In addition to the Arion Band a military color guard will parade with the units. Other representatives in the rally and parade will include the Holy Name Society and the Sodality of the Blessed Virgin Mary; Chief Justice Taney, General Assembly, Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus, Allegany Hospital nurses, parochical troops of the Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, high school students from St. Mary's, SS. Peter and Paul, Girls Central Catholic, and LaSalle, and members of the seventh and eighth grades of St. Mary's, St. Patrick's, SS. Peter and Paul, and St. Michael's, and the Laurana Veterans' Unit, CSMC.

All Catholic laity have been invited to attend the rally which will mark the coincidence of Pentecost Sunday, World Sodality Day, Our Lady of Fatima Day and Mother's Day.

Kimble Says

imum Class C licenses as 60 but gives the board full power to restrict the number.

Senator Kimble said members of the Allegany County Delegation were opposed to any permanent cut in the club license, since to do so would limit the possibilities of developing bona-fide clubs.

The bill, he said, not only spells out what can be done but provides penalties for violations.

Can Reduce Number

Senator Kimble said the bill gives the control board the right to reduce the number of all types of licenses and to say in some areas that there shall be no licenses.

Also considered significant by the senator is provisions giving the board the right to regulate mechanical music boxes and other sound producing devices.

He explained that in summer the use of blaring music devices is often a nuisance to persons who live nearby.

Under the old law, he added, such people had no course but to appeal to the police. If the offending place has a liquor license, all that will now be needed will be for the citizen to notify the board which could take appropriate action.

Spells Out Duties

He emphasized that the new bill will give the board the absolute authority to regulate the liquor industry in Allegany County in the interest of the public and not for any particular group.

It spells out the Board's duties so definitely that there can be no misunderstanding, he declared.

He added that if the governor accepts his recommendations for the new board, they will enforce the law, adding that if they did not, he will refuse to confirm them when their names are sent to the Senate for approval.

SPEAKING CLASS GRADUATES TONIGHT—Members of the Dale Carnegie Public Speaking Class No. 55, will graduate tonight at the Cumberland Country Club. Sponsored by C. S. Catherman, Jr., in connection with the Baltimore Institute which holds the state franchise for the course, the classes have been held each week at Central YMCA. Thirty-nine graduates will receive their diplomas with this class. Shown are Front Row—John L. Baggett, class director; John O. Durst; Mrs. H. Robert Cook; James E. Scott; and T. Victor Fier, associate director. Second Row—Donald Richardson; Arthur C. Howard; Arthur C. Morgan; Miles G. Thompson, Jr.; Linus M. Heming; Robert W. Brown; Howard E. Cooper; Lester R. Martin; Joseph V. MacDonald; Lynn C. Lashley; and Homer F. Berry. Third Row—Clarence Owens, Baltimore, instructor; William R. Davis; George Harman; Fletcher Horn; Daniel W. Nose; James Burns; John W. Nelson, Jr.; Walter Hedrick; Lawrence Maxson; Rex D. Swisher; James L. King; and Lawrence E. Geiger. Fourth Row—C. S. Catherman, Jr.; executive director; Arduane W. DeMatteis; Reynold Wallach; George Millenson; Herbert E. Smiley; Charles M. R. Weakley; Raymond McGeady; Wallace G. Ullery; Laurence I. Horner; John E. Cooper; Eugene B. Moore and Robert W. Huck. Class members absent when the picture was taken are Hugh G. Bartik, Vernon Northcraft and Charles H. Wolfe.

feet deep and water has risen to about 40 feet of ground level, indicating 389 feet of water in the mines.

Several Openings

The fan house opening at the mines extends down 35 feet to coal. A bore hole, which was used for taking power lines into the mines, extends down 165 feet to the workings.

The fan house is located about a mile downstream from the head of Laurel Run. The bore hole is about 2,000 feet downstream below the fan house. The main section of Laurel Run, about seven miles long, lies between these openings and the Potomac River.

Discharge of mine water at the fan house is at ground elevation. The bore hole, an eight-inch pipe coupled to a six-inch pipe at ground level, is throwing a heavy stream of water as is also the air shaft opening at the fan house. The six-inch pipe at the bore hole extends about 40 inches above the ground surface at which point it overflows.

Schilpp pointed out that the bore hole is on property owned by William Bennett but presumably was leased to the Davis Coal and Coke Company.

Copies of the letters and the report have been forwarded to the Davis Coal and Coke Company, Keyser Building, Baltimore. Replies were received from the company's president, A. R. Matthews, Dante, Va., and also the company's legal representative, D. H. Hill Arnold, Elkins, W. Va.

Schilpp has recommended sealing the bore hole, mine openings and cementing the air shaft. It was noted that the air openings are in West Virginia.

Just what action the company will take remains to be seen, since the Commission has not heard from company representatives since Matthews wrote that he had referred the question to Arnold and the attorney acknowledged the communications.

Residents in the area say Laurel Run was one of the best trout streams in the county, heavily populated with brook, brown and rainbow trout. But the stream is devoid of fish and plant life now. If the mine flow can be cut off and water in the stream neutralized it can be returned as a fishing stream, officials believe.

Martinsburg Men Buy W. Va. Bus Holdings

The bus company that took over the Emery Motor Coach Lines franchises dissolved further when its West Virginia holdings were bought by Martinsburg, W. Va., men.

Potomac Coach Lines, Inc., West Virginia counterpart of Potomac Motor Lines, Inc., of Hagerstown, has been sold.

The line formerly operated between Charles Town, W. Va., and Cumberland, but since November 1 has not come in here. Metropolitan Trailways, managed by R. L. Emery, has two buses daily between Cumberland and Paw Paw, part of his former Emery franchise.

Controlling interest in the Potomac company serving Berkeley Springs, Martinsburg and Charlestown, was bought by Gardner W. Pierce, who has been manager of the firm's Martinsburg branch, and Edgar C. Albright, another Martinsburg branch official, and Floyd E. Wilburn.

In addition to the Berkeley Springs-Charles Town run, the Martinsburg inter-city operation operated by Wilburn was consolidated with the new firm.

Officers are Pierce, president; Albright, vice president; Wilburn, treasurer, and Gray Silver, secretary.

Pierce said that the company is purchasing $10,000 worth of equipment, principally buses, and will also use the vehicles owned by Wilburn for his city line.

There is to be no change in schedules or other operations at this time, Pierce said.

Pierce, Albright and Wilburn have purchased all of the stock in the company which was previously owned by Jack Bowers and Francis Urner, both of Hagerstown, who are also the controlling stockholders in Potomac Motor Lines, Inc., which operates a bus service in Maryland.

Rubber Local Election Brings Brisk Vote

Voting yesterday morning in the annual election of Local 26, United Rubber, Linoleum, Cork and Plastic Workers of America, CIO, was reported brisk at the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company plant.

Booths have been set up in the conference room and were open yesterday 5 to 6:30 p. m. and from 10:30 p. m. to 12:30 a. m.

Ballots will be counted today at Rubber Workers Hall, South Mechanic Street.

Running for president are the incumbent head, R. C. Burkhart, and the present vice president, Ralph C. Beard, who is a former president.

Members of the election committee are Thomas Boone, L. G. Jenkins, F. E. Robinson, Joseph Schnibbe and G. M. Caruthers.

The game of curling originated in Scotland before 1600.

Plane Crash Victim Will Lose Leg

Richard Adair, 23, Danville, Ill., who was badly hurt Saturday in a plane crash atop the Allegheny Mountains near Somerset, Pa., will lose one of his legs.

Physicians at Somerset Community Hospital said a gangrenous infection will require the broken limb to be amputated today.

Adair lay helpless until surveyors found him Tuesday.

The pilot, Robert Seymour, also of Danville, was killed instantly.

The light plane was following the Pennsylvania Turnpike, enroute from Columbus, Ohio, to Baltimore, when it crashed into the rugged mountain area.

Allegany High School Will Present Concert

Junior music groups of Allegany High School will present a spring concert today at 8 p. m. at the school auditorium.

They include the choral club, choir, gleemen, octet, band, orchestra, treble boy's glee club and treble clef club.

The band, directed by S. Lua Syckes, will open the program with a group of four numbers, "Corinthian Overture" by Brockton; "Bolero Non" by Kortz; "Plantation Echoes" arranged by Bennett, and "Crestwood March" by Leonard.

Bible Class Plans Sunday Program

A Mother's Day program will be held Sunday at 9:45 a. m. at Central YMCA by the Duke Memorial Bible Class.

Wilton Syckes, accompanied by Paul Merriott, will present several violin selections while Donald Tharp, accompanied by Miss Maxine Conrad, will sing several numbers.

Andrew Wilson, chorister for the class, will lead group singing. Gifts will be presented to the youngest and oldest mothers attending.

Arrangements are being handled by the entertainment committee comprised of Florian Wilson, chairman; Dr. William Firey and Charles U. Wiebel.

Communion Breakfast Planned By K Of C

Cumberland Council No. 586, Knights of Columbus, will hold its annual communion breakfast Sunday at St. Patrick's Social Center following 8:30 mass in the parish church.

Rev. James T. McDermott, O.M.I., professor at House of Studies, Catholic University, Washington, will deliver the principal address. Toastmaster will be Joseph F. Stakem.

Grand Knight Peter J. Carpenti, who will give the "Welcome Address," said charter members will be honored at the breakfast.

Very Rev. J. Lawrence Kilkenny, pastor of St. Patrick's Church and rural dean of Western Maryland, will preside at the invocation and Rev. John U. Lyness, assistant pastor, will have charge of the benediction.

WM Revenue Hits Record In April

Gross operating revenues of the Western Maryland Railway during April established a new record for that month, but net income dipped below last year because of higher operating expenses and increased taxes, according to company estimates.

Operating revenues for last month were figured at approximately $3,967,000, up 16 per cent over $3,415,301 for April last year. The previous peak for April was that of $3,830,505 marked up in 1949.

Net income for last month was tentatively figured at $412,000 as compared with $494,794 for the corresponding period of 1950. Maintenance outlays and transportation costs rose about $500,000 in April over those of same month last year, and taxes were up more than $100,000.

Former Rector Named Dean In Texas

Rev. David C. Clark, former rector of Emmanuel Episcopal Church here, has been appointed the first dean of the Northwestern Deanery of the Episcopal Diocese of Dallas.

Since leaving here, Rev. Mr. Clark has served as rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd in Lexington, Ky., and is now rector of St. Luke Episcopal Church in Mineral Wells, Texas.

He was named to the new post by the Rt. Rev. C. Avery Mason, bishop of the diocese, at an organizational meeting of the deanery.

Dean Clark will assist and help direct the activities of Episcopal parishes and missions in 12 counties in Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark have been in Mineral Wells for nine months. Their children are attending the University of Kentucky in Lexington. Joanne is a sophomore and Thomas will graduate in June.

U. N. Gals Gain Ground In Drive For Equal Rights

By A. I. GOLDBERG

LAKE SUCCESS, May 10 (AP) — You don't have to take to the hills, men. The equal-rights-for-women gals have tamed down.

Fifteen of them, representing all women all over the world, have been meeting quietly out at the United Nations in the only all-women group boasted by the U. N.

They're still after votes for women but in their fifth session they have agreed pretty generally that men should have the vote, too, and that the best man should win in the race for office, be he man or woman.

These women on the U. N. Commission on the Status of Women are teachers, lawyers, housewives, writers and just plain woman's-righters.

It's true that the commission is subsidiary to a group made up mainly of men, the Economic and Social Council, but one way or another, the women get across their ideas of extending property, nationality, political, social and economic rights as women. However, there has been some talk in the council of killing the commission and turning its work over to some other body. A decision may be made late this year.

This only all-women group—with only the barest sprinkling of men advisers — does just about the same amount of talking and gets the same amount of work done as the men in all-male groups.

The debates include the same catfights between East and West that distinguish arguments between the Russians, the British, the Poles, the Americans and other side-takers throughout the U. N.

Mrs. Olive Remington Goldman, writer, lecturer, former faculty member at the University of Illinois and a consultant to the U. S. Department of Interior, is the U. S. delegate.

Mrs. Elizavieta Aleksievna Popova, is the Russian member. One of the few delegates who lists her age — she is 49 — she is a lawyer.

The two tangled most in the East-West fights, with Miss Mary Sutherland, British delegate from Aberdeen, occasionally tossing in a broadside with her drawling Scottish burr.

Mrs. Popova set the pace for her colleague, mild-mannered Mrs. Zofia Dembinska, who is Polish deputy minister for education and a new member of the group.

Mrs. Popova boycotted last year's meetings because they wouldn't seat Red Chinese instead of Nationalist Chinese. She came back this year primed to oust the Nationalist Chinese and to get the newest Communist peace propaganda campaign on the commission program.

The commission turned her down cold on both scores. Undaunted, Mrs. Popova — aided by Mrs. Dembinska — started injecting the peace theme into every long discourse, and accusing the United States of leading preparations for war.

But when Mrs. Popova began sounding like Andrei Vishinsky and Jacob Malik on how to get peace, the women reared back and voted they didn't want to hear any more.

Mrs. Popova and Mrs. Dembinska both took a line that only in Russia and the Cominform countries were women properly represented in the government. They rattled off how many women were in this or that body of national or local lawmakers and then recited figures to show that there weren't very many in the U. S. Congress, Britain's Parliament, or in other governments. Underlying their argument was a hidden one that if a woman ran for office she ought to be elected automatically.

Mrs. Goldman had several retorts for this reasoning. First, she said, we have free elections in the United States and a free choice of candidates. More than half the voters in the 1948 elections were women. There are thousands of women officeholders and thousands more teachers throughout the U. S. The U. S. has named women as delegates to the General Assembly, but Russia never has. Women are high in U. S. policy-making councils, furthermore, women do have financial independence and control more financial holdings than men.

How about Russia, Mrs. Goldman asked? How many women were in the Russian cabinet, how many women are in the party (central) Politburo? For that matter, she asked, how many women are members of the Communist Party, the first step to getting anywhere in Russia? Wasn't the figure only 20.7 per cent? Was that because women shun Communism? Or are they barred?

Mrs. Popova, usually at no loss for words, answered lamely "this is not the place to talk about the makeup of the politburo."

Mrs. Goldman and others agreed that many men, as well as women, were politically illiterate and she cited that the League of Women Voters in the U. S. is allowing men to be associate members to help their political education.

Miss Sutherland, who attacked Mrs. Popova's diatribes as "dishonest," also agreed that women should have rights equal to men but there was no need to demand anything farther.

Marine In Korea Campaigns To Bolster Spirits At Home

COLUMBUS, O.— (AP) —Are you troubled by war jitters and inflation blues?

Then let the letters from a Marine in Korea bolster your morale.

Pfc. Daniel D. Duffey, of Columbus, is conducting a one-man campaign through the mails to keep up spirits on the home front. His mother, Mrs. Richard B. Sherts, says the letters have been coming for eight months.

She says he makes the letters cheerful by using "ha, ha" phrases for punctuation marks.

One letter told how a Marine calmly went ahead getting his hair cut during a North Korean banzai (suicide) charge. Duffey wrote

"The bullets were flying around this guy getting the haircut. They didn't bother him, but the gook (a captured North Korean) was hackin' the heck out of his hair because he was so scared. Ha, ha."

Duffey injured his hand in February when he fell down a mountainside. Three weeks later he was back in combat. Then he was wounded in the left foot, near Chunchon. He now is in a naval hospital in Japan.

The Marine once wrote that if everyone back home was as healthy as he was, "you'll put the docs out of business."

He heard about Ohio's battle last winter with below zero temperatures and ice-glazed streets and wrote:

"Well, you watch those icy streets. You're worse off there than I am here."

American railroads had 1,641 new locomotives on order on Feb. 1, 1951.

U. N. Gals Gain Ground In Drive For Equal Rights

By A. I. GOLDBERG

LAKE SUCCESS, May 10 (AP) — You don't have to take to the hills, men. The equal-rights-for-women gals have tamed down.

Fifteen of them, representing all women all over the world, have been meeting quietly out at the United Nations in the only all-women group boasted by the U. N.

They're still after votes for women but in their fifth session they have agreed pretty generally that men should have the vote, too, and that the best man should win in the race for office, be he man or woman.

These women on the U. N. Commission on the Status of Women are teachers, lawyers, housewives, writers and just plain woman's-righters.

It's true that the commission is subsidiary to a group made up mainly of men, the Economic and Social Council, but one way or another, the women get across their ideas of extending property, nationality, political, social and economic rights as women. However, there has been some talk in the council of killing the commission and turning its work over to some other body. A decision may be made late this year.

This only all-women group—with only the barest sprinkling of men advisers — does just about the same amount of talking and gets the same amount of work done as the men in all-male groups.

The debates include the same catfights between East and West that distinguish arguments between the Russians, the British, the Poles, the Americans and other side-takers throughout the U. N.

Mrs. Olive Remington Goldman, writer, lecturer, former faculty member at the University of Illinois and a consultant to the U. S. Department of Interior, is the U. S. delegate.

Mrs. Elizavieta Aleksievna Popova, is the Russian member. One of the few delegates who lists her age — she is 49 — she is a lawyer.

The two tangled most in the East-West fights, with Miss Mary Sutherland, British delegate from Aberdeen, occasionally tossing in a broadside with her drawling Scottish burr.

Mrs. Popova set the pace for her colleague, mild-mannered Mrs. Zofia Dembinska, who is Polish deputy minister for education and a new member of the group.

Mrs. Popova boycotted last year's meetings because they wouldn't seat Red Chinese instead of Nationalist Chinese. She came back this year primed to oust the Nationalist Chinese and to get the newest Communist peace propaganda campaign on the commission program.

The commission turned her down cold on both scores. Undaunted, Mrs. Popova — aided by Mrs. Dembinska — started injecting the peace theme into every long discourse, and accusing the United States of leading preparations for war.

But when Mrs. Popova began sounding like Andrei Vishinsky and Jacob Malik on how to get peace, the women reared back and voted they didn't want to hear any more.

Mrs. Popova and Mrs. Dembinska both took a line that only in Russia and the Cominform countries were women properly represented in the government. They rattled off how many women were in this or that body of national or local lawmakers and then recited figures to show that there weren't very many in the U. S. Congress, Britain's Parliament, or in other governments. Underlying their argument was a hidden one that if a woman ran for office she ought to be elected automatically.

Mrs. Goldman had several retorts for this reasoning. First, she said, we have free elections in the United States and a free choice of candidates. More than half the voters in the 1948 elections were women. There are thousands of women officeholders and thousands more teachers throughout the U. S. The U. S. has named women as delegates to the General Assembly, but Russia never has. Women are high in U. S. policy-making councils, furthermore, women do have financial independence and control more financial holdings than men.

How about Russia, Mrs. Goldman asked? How many women were in the Russian cabinet, how many women are in the party (central) Politburo? For that matter, she asked, how many women are members of the Communist Party, the first step to getting anywhere in Russia? Wasn't the figure only 20.7 per cent? Was that because women shun Communism? Or are they barred?

Mrs. Popova, usually at no loss for words, answered lamely "this is not the place to talk about the makeup of the politburo."

Mrs. Goldman and others agreed that many men, as well as women, were politically illiterate and she cited that the League of Women Voters in the U. S. is allowing men to be associate members to help their political education.

Miss Sutherland, who attacked Mrs. Popova's diatribes as "dishonest," also agreed that women should have rights equal to men but there was no need to demand anything farther.

Marine In Korea Campaigns To Bolster Spirits At Home

COLUMBUS, O.—(AP)—Are you troubled by war jitters and inflation blues?

Then let the letters from a Marine in Korea bolster your morale.

Pfc. Daniel D. Duffey, of Columbus, is conducting a one-man campaign through the mails to keep up spirits on the home front. His mother, Mrs. Richard B. Sherts, says the letters have been coming for eight months.

She says he makes the letters cheerful by using "ha, ha" phrases for punctuation marks.

One letter told how a Marine calmly went ahead getting his hair cut during a North Korean banzai (suicide) charge. Duffey wrote

"The bullets were flying around this guy getting the haircut. They didn't bother him, but the gook (a captured North Korean) was hackin' the heck out of his hair because he was so scared. Ha, ha."

Duffey injured his hand in February when he fell down a mountainside. Three weeks later he was back in combat. Then he was wounded in the left foot, near Chunchon. He now is in a naval hospital in Japan.

The Marine once wrote that if everyone back home was as healthy as he was, "you'll put the docs out of business."

He heard about Ohio's battle last winter with below zero temperatures and ice-glazed streets and wrote:

"Well, you watch those icy streets. You're worse off there than I am here."

American railroads had 1,641 new locomotives on order on Feb. 1, 1951.

Soup-Sauce For Spring Vegetables

Guaranteed to melt in your mouth are fresh spring vegetables in a rich cream sauce. And for a quick grand sauce, you can use condensed soups.

Cream of mushroom, chicken, and celery soups all have flattering ways with vegetables. Try the chicken or mushroom soup with new little green peas or tender asparagus. And any of these soup-sauces team well with cooked carrots, green snap beans, or corn. The sauces have two special advantages besides their good eating qualities: They're quick to fix. And they help your campaign to "be kind to the budget."

When preparing a condensed soup for a sauce, stir in ¼ cup milk; then heat it. You may use slightly more or less milk according to your likes. And each can of soup makes enough sauce for about a pound of vegetables (before they are cooked). Here are some pleasing vegetable-sauce combinations.

Spring Vegetable Trio

(Serve any one of these as a special treat for dinner or lunch).

Potatoes and Peas in Mushroom Sauce: Stir 2 cups of cooked peas into 1 can of condensed cream of mushroom soup (blended and heated with ¼ cup milk). Pour over cooked new potatoes (6 to 8 small ones).

Asparagus with Chicken Cream Sauce: Over 1 pound of cooked asparagus, pour this sauce: Mix 1 can condensed cream of chicken soup with ¼ cup milk; heat well and serve.

Carrots in Celery Cream Sauce. Over 1 pound of cooked sliced carrots pour this sauce: Mix 1 can condensed cream of celery soup with ¼ cup milk; heat and serve.

RYE CROUTONS

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 pint toasted ½" rye bread cubes

Melt butter in a skillet. Add toasted bread cubes and stir until all sides are coated with butter. Serve with all varieties of soups.

Yield: 1 pint Rye Croutons.

BABY'S BOWL OF SOUP

When the whole family is dining on soup, serve it to your one-year-old also. He's ready for condensed soup as soon as he's eating soft chewing foods.

Soup-Sauces for Spring Vegetables

BREATH o' spring for your table is this garden trio of vegetables. Each vegetable is more delectable served with a condensed soup sauce—cream of mushroom, chicken, or celery soup.

Veal Steaks Take On Variety

Serving a good balance of beef, veal, pork and lamb keeps meals interesting. Likewise, serving each cut in different ways can overrule monotony.

Take veal steaks and chops for example. The basic method of cooking is by braising. First, they are browned in a small amount of fat, a little liquid is added, the pan covered and the meat allowed to finish cooking. This takes from 45 minutes to 1 hour, depending upon their thickness.

Variety in serving is attained by using different seasonings and different liquids in which to cook the veal. A paprika sauce in an interesting cooking liquid. Or the steaks may be seasoned with a bit of ginger, mustard, and onion and cooked in milk or cream. For other servings, veal may be braised in a tomato sauce, in sour cream or mushroom sauce. Some fruit flavors are appealing with veal, Examples are prunes and apricots.

BACON CROUTONS

2 tablespoons bacon drippings
1 pint soft ½" bread cubes

Melt drippings in a skillet. Add bread cubes and stir until each one is coated with the fat. Spread on a cookie sheet and toast under low broiler heat for five minutes, or until golden brown. Serve with soup or as a snack.

Yield: 1 pint Bacon Croutons.

Meat Calls For Rice In These Dishes

Meat and rice are a time-proven combination. A review of the known combinations gives a hint to further opportunities for joint serving of these two foods.

Chop suey made with pork strips is the usual. Taking a cue from this prepare heart chop suey or liver chop suey. Both of these are served with rice for a popular conbination and are an economical choice at your market.

A stuffing for meat is a second use for rice. It may be the stuffing for a beef flank steak, lamb shanks, lamb breast, lamb or pork cushion style shoulder, pork chops or a frankfurter crown. To rice stuffing the same as bread stuffing, all chopped celery, minced onion or mushroom bits.

Ground beef adds a satisfying touch to Spanish rice for another combination. A top of the range dish or an oven casserole may be prepared of bulk pork sausage, tomatoes and rice. Ground pork combines with rice to stuff hollowed green peppers.

Chicken Pie All Time Favorite

Nearly everyone likes a good chicken pie. Any cafeteria manager will say that it is one of the most popular dishes on his menu. It is just as well received at home, especially if a new touch is added in its preparation.

For instance, a simple-to-make chicken pie uses buttered corn flakes for topping. This was first introduced by a famous hotel chef. There are two other schools of thought regarding a topping for chicken pie. One holds for biscuits—the other says the top must be pastry. Here are two chicken pie suggestions for your consideration:

Chicken Pie Palmer House

3 cups cooked chicken; 1 cup cooked carrots; 12 small cooked onions; 12 cooked potato balls; ½ cup button mushrooms; 4 tablespoons shortening or chicken fat; 4 tablespoons flour; ⅛ teaspoon salt; dash pepper; 1½ cups chicken stock; 1 cup thin cream or milk; 2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine; 3 cups corn flakes.

Arrange pieces of chicken which have been removed from bone, carrots, onions, potato balls and mushrooms in six individual casseroles.

Melt shortening, add flour and seasonings; add chicken stock and cream slowly, stirring constantly. Cook over low heat, stirring frequently until thickened. Pour over chicken and vegetables. Sprinkle melted butter over corn flakes and stir until each flake is buttered. Cover top of casseroles with corn flakes. Bake in very hot oven (500 degree F.) 10 to 15 minutes.

Yield: 6 individual casseroles.

Or try this same chicken pie filling with Bran Biscuits and bake in a moderately hot oven (325 degree F.) for about 20 minutes, or until biscuits are done.

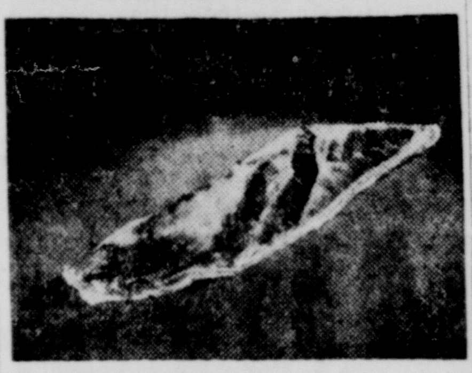
Bran Biscuits

½ cup ready-to-eat bran; ¾ cup milk; 1½ cups sifted flour; 3 tablespoons baking powder; 1 teaspoon salt; ⅓ cup shortening.

Soak bran in milk. Sift flour, baking powder, and salt together. Cut in shortening until mixture is like coarse cornmeal. Add soaked bran; stir until well blended. Turn onto floured board, knead lightly; roll or pat to ½ inch thickness. Cut with floured cutter. Place on top of chicken pie mixture.

Yield: 8 large biscuits.

MEAT CUT Quiz



Q. What is the name of this cut of meat?

A. Lamb breast.

Q. Where does it come from and how is it identified?

A. As the name implies, it is the breast section corresponding to short plate and brisket of beef. It is a narrow strip of meat containing the breast bone and ends of 12 ribs.

Q. How is it prepared?

A. It may be stuffed and roasted; stuffed and braised; boned and rolled, and braised; or cut into riblets and cooked in liquid.

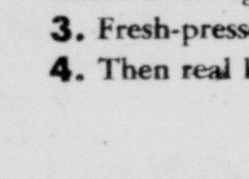
NEW! MRS. FILBERT'S 7-STEP MAYONNAISE WITH EXTRA EGGS, REAL LEMON JUICE!

SAVE MONEY ON EVERY JAR!
1. Save the coupons on the label. They're good for hundreds of wonderful premiums.
2. Save the mason-type jar. Grand for home canning and leftovers!



Mrs. M. V. Filbert, Pres.

Read why 7-STEP Mayonnaise makes salads burst with flavor!

"It's my own recipe, made up in small batches so it tastes homemade!" says Mrs. Filbert. "The egg-rich, real-lemon flavor makes the simplest salad greens taste grand. You get genuine mayonnaise—spooned right from the jar!"

So easy for you . . . so delicious! Mrs. Filbert takes these 7 steps:

1. First, her own secret spices are carefully blended in.
2. They're creamed together with fresh-frozen whole eggs.
3. Fresh-pressed salad oil is beaten in.
4. Then real lemon juice, and more egg yolks for extra rich, full-bodied flavor.
5. Pure vinegar seals in the salad oil. (No oily look or flavor in this 7-Step Mayonnaise—ever!)
6. The whole delicious mix is extra-whipped in a big eggbeater.
7. And more real lemon juice gives the final flavor touch!

If you like taste-rich salads, plump, flavorful sandwiches, make 'em with Mrs. Filbert's 7-Step Mayonnaise. So rich, you can thin it and lose none of the flavor. So good, the fussiest families like salads. It's a new taste thrill! Buy a jar today!

DON'T WAIT! YOU CAN TASTE IT TONIGHT!

MRS. FILBERT'S 7 STEP MAYONNAISE

Soup-Sauce For Spring Vegetables

Guaranteed to melt in your mouth are fresh spring vegetables in a rich cream sauce. And for a quick grand sauce, you can use condensed soups.

Cream of mushroom, chicken, and celery soups all have flattering ways with vegetables. Try the chicken or mushroom soup with new little green peas or tender asparagus. And any of these soup-sauces team well with cooked carrots, green snap beans, or corn. The sauces have two special advantages besides their good eating qualities: They're quick to fix. And they help your campaign to "be kind to the budget."

When preparing a condensed soup for a sauce, stir in ¼ cup milk; then heat it. You may use slightly more or less milk according to your likes. And each can of soup makes enough sauce for about a pound of vegetables (before they are cooked). Here are some pleasing vegetable-sauce combinations.

Spring Vegetable Trio

(Serve any one of these as a special treat for dinner or lunch).

Potatoes and Peas in Mushroom Sauce: Stir 2 cups of cooked peas into 1 can of condensed cream of mushroom soup (blended and heated with ¼ cup milk). Pour over cooked new potatoes (6 to 8 small ones).

Asparagus with Chicken Cream Sauce: Over 1 pound of cooked asparagus, pour this sauce: Mix 1 can condensed cream of chicken soup with ¼ cup milk; heat well and serve.

Carrots in Celery Cream Sauce. Over 1 pound of cooked sliced carrots pour this sauce: Mix 1 can condensed cream of celery soup with ¼ cup milk; heat and serve.

RYE CROUTONS

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 pint toasted ½" rye bread cubes

Melt butter in a skillet. Add toasted bread cubes and stir until all sides are coated with butter. Serve with all varieties of soups.

Yield: 1 pint Rye Croutons.

BABY'S BOWL OF SOUP

When the whole family is dining on soup, serve it to your one-year-old also. He's ready for condensed soup as soon as he's eating soft chewing foods.

Soup-Sauces for Spring Vegetables

BREATH o' spring for your table is this garden trio of vegetables. Each vegetable is more delectable served with a condensed soup sauce—cream of mushroom, chicken, or celery soup.

Veal Steaks Take On Variety

Serving a good balance of beef, veal, pork and lamb keeps meals interesting. Likewise, serving each cut in different ways can overrule monotony.

Take veal steaks and chops for example. The basic method of cooking is by braising. First, they are browned in a small amount of fat, a little liquid is added, the pan covered and the meat allowed to finish cooking. This takes from 45 minutes to 1 hour, depending upon their thickness.

Variety in serving is attained by using different seasonings and different liquids in which to cook the veal. A paprika sauce in an interesting cooking liquid. Or the steaks may be seasoned with a bit of ginger, mustard, and onion and cooked in milk or cream. For other servings, veal may be braised in a tomato sauce, in sour cream or mushroom sauce. Some fruit flavors are appealing with veal. Examples are prunes and apricots.

BACON CROUTONS

2 tablespoons bacon drippings
1 pint soft ½" bread cubes

Melt drippings in a skillet. Add bread cubes and stir until each one is coated with the fat. Spread on a cookie sheet and toast under low broiler heat for five minutes, or until golden brown. Serve with soup or as a snack.

Yield: 1 pint Bacon Croutons.

Meat Calls For Rice In These Dishes

Meat and rice are a time-proven combination. A review of the known combinations gives a hint to further opportunities for joint serving of these two foods.

Chop suey made with pork strips is the usual. Taking a cue from this prepare heart chop suey or liver chop suey. Both of these are served with rice for a popular conbination and are an economical choice at your market.

A stuffing for meat is a second use for rice. It may be the stuffing for a beef flank steak, lamb shanks, lamb breast, lamb or pork cushion style shoulder, pork chops or a frankfurter crown. To rice stuffing the same as bread stuffing, all chopped celery, minced onion or mushroom bits.

Ground beef adds a satisfying touch to Spanish rice for another combination. A top of the range dish or an oven casserole may be prepared of bulk pork sausage, tomatoes and rice. Ground pork combines with rice to stuff hollowed green peppers.

Chicken Pie All Time Favorite

Nearly everyone likes a good chicken pie. Any cafeteria manager will say that it is one of the most popular dishes on his menu. It is just as well received at home, especially if a new touch is added in its preparation.

For instance, a simple-to-make chicken pie uses buttered corn flakes for topping. This was first introduced by a famous hotel chef. There are two other schools of thought regarding a topping for chicken pie. One holds for biscuits—the other says the top must be pastry. Here are two chicken pie suggestions for your consideration:

Chicken Pie Palmer House

3 cups cooked chicken; 1 cup cooked carrots; 12 small cooked onions; 12 cooked potato balls; ½ cup button mushrooms; 4 tablespoons shortening or chicken fat; 4 tablespoons flour; ½ teaspoon salt; dash pepper; 1½ cups chicken stock; 1 cup thin cream or milk; 2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine; 3 cups corn flakes.

Arrange pieces of chicken which have been removed from bone, carrots, onions, potato balls and mushrooms in six individual casseroles.

Melt shortening, add flour and seasonings; add chicken stock and cream slowly, stirring constantly. Cook over low heat, stirring frequently until thickened. Pour over chicken and vegetables. Sprinkle melted butter over corn flakes and stir until each flake is buttered. Cover top of casseroles with corn flakes. Bake in very hot oven (500 degree F.) 10 to 15 minutes.

Yield: 6 individual casseroles.

Or try this same chicken pie filling with Bran Biscuits and bake in a moderately hot oven (325 degree F.) for about 20 minutes, or until biscuits are done.

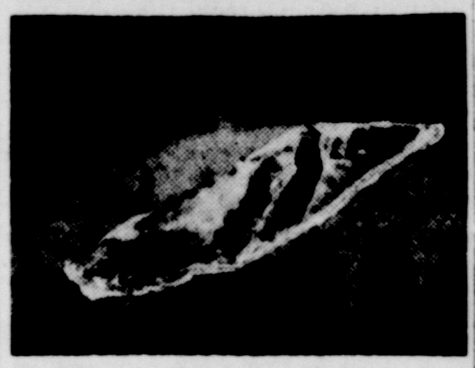
Bran Biscuits

¼ cup ready-to-eat bran; ¾ cup milk; 1½ cups sifted flour; 3 tablespoons baking powder; 1 teaspoon salt; ⅓ cup shortening.

Soak bran in milk. Sift flour, baking powder, and salt together. Cut in shortening until mixture is like coarse cornmeal. Add soaked bran; stir until well blended. Turn onto floured board, knead lightly; roll or pat to ½ inch thickness. Cut with floured cutter. Place on top of chicken pie mixture.

Yield: 8 large biscuits.

MEAT CUT Quiz



Q. What is the name of this cut of meat?

A. Lamb breast.

Q. Where does it come from and how is it identified?

A. As the name implies, it is the breast section corresponding to short plate and brisket of beef. It is a narrow strip of meat containing the breast bone and ends of 12 ribs.

Q. How is it prepared?

A. It may be stuffed and roasted; stuffed and braised; boned and rolled, and braised; or cut into riblets and cooked in liquid.

MRS. FILBERT'S 7 STEP MAYONNAISE

Shirred Eggs Mexican Style Adds Menu Variety

Rice and eggs make good dish. The eggs baked in a tasty chili-powder flavored tomato sauce are delicious with the white rice. And this dish is a "quickie". Don't be afraid to add plenty of salt and pepper to the sauce, for both eggs and rice are better with high seasoning.

Ingredients

½ onion, minced (medium size)
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 can tomato sauce (8 oz.)
1¼ teaspoons chili powder
Salt and pepper
6 eggs
1 cup rice (uncooked measurement)

Preparing The Rice

Put 1 up of uncooked rice, 2 cups of cold water and 1 teaspoon of salt in a two-quart saucepan and cover with a tight-fitting lid. Set over a hot flame until it boils vigorously. Then reduce the heat as low as possible and steam for 14 minutes more or until all the water is absorbed, leaving the separate rice grains with their full nutritional value. This makes very firm rice grains. (If you prefer more tender rice grains, add ⅛ cup more water and increase the slow cooking time 4 or 5 minutes.) Remove the lid, permit the rice to steam dry to the desired consistency and the grains will be separate and fluffy. Never stir rice; lift rice gently with a fork.

Method

Fry onion in butter or margarine until tender, but do not brown. Add tomato sauce, chili powder and a small amount of water if sauce is very thick. Add salt and pepper to taste. Divide sauce into 6 greased custard cups, and break one egg into each cup. Place cups in a shallow pan of hot water and bake from 12 to 15 minutes in a 375 degrees F. oven. Scoop the eggs out and serve on a bed of fluffy rice. Makes 6 servings.

WHEN MOTHER PLANS "HER" MEAL

This choice for Mother's Day, a veal rump roast, is easily carved into attractive, even slices because it has been correctly prepared—that is, roasted in a slow oven (300°F.) and allowed to set for 30 minutes before serving.

Spice Cookies

Blend shortening and sugar. Combine soda with molasses and add to first mixture; beat well. Add bran and nutmeats. Sift flour with baking powder, salt, cinnamon, cloves and ginger and add to creamed mixture alternately with water. Chill thoroughly. Roll dough to about ⅛ inch thickness and cut with cookie cutter. Place raisin or small amount of jelly in center if desired. Bake in moderately hot oven (400 degree F.) about 10 minutes.

Yield: 5 dozen cookies (3½ inches in diameter).

"Pillafi," Rice With Mushrooms

Rice recipes galore are to be found in the first American cookbook featuring Near Eastern food. Yes, recipes from twelve countries, are compiled in the book, GOOD FOOD FROM THE NEAR EAST, by Joan Rowland (M. Barrows and Company). Many of these recipes include rice.

This Grecian dish, Pillafi (Rice with Mushrooms), from Miss Rowland's book is a delightful one for buffet suppers or simple family meals. It is a dish with a "meaty flavor" although no meat is required for the making.

INGREDIENTS

1 pound mushrooms
1 medium sized onion, chopped
1 green pepper, chopped
Few sprigs parsley, chopped
1 cup canned tomatoes
1 tablespoon tomato paste
¼ cup oil
1 tablespoon butter
Salt and pepper
1 cup rice (uncooked)
1 cup water

METHOD: Cut the mushrooms into small pieces with a silver knife. Add the onion, green pepper, parsley, tomatoes, tomato paste, oil, butter, salt and pepper. Place on low heat; in about 10 minutes add the rice and the water. Cook 20 minutes in all. Add hot water, a little at a time, as needed, if the mixture gets too dry; but when the rice is tender, the liquid should all be absorbed. Yield: 4 to 6 servings.

Note: Watch carefully to keep from burning. We found that if a lid is put on the skillet during part of the cooking time, the rice cooks more quickly and is in less danger of sticking.

As delightful as spring blossom this salad will be the center of attraction on a buffet table. It is made in a ring mold, then filled with of large seedless Navel oranges with a circle of parsley around the top. Edges of the plate are decorated with half slices of oranges on romaine leaves, topped with fresh or frozen raspberries.

Spring Blossom Salad

1 tbs. (1 env.) plain gelatin
½ cup fresh lemon juice
¼ cup sugar
1¼ cup fresh orange
1 pint cottage cheese

Soften gelatin in lemon juice. Heat orange juice and dissolve gelatin mixture in hot juice. Add ½ cup of mixture to cottage cheese; set aside. Pour remaining gelatin-juice in ring mold. Chill until almost set; put cottage cheese on top. Chill; unmold on large plater and decorate.

Soup In 1951 Food Picture

Right at the side of the American women, who fix meals for families all over the country, are the prepared foods. Condensed soup is one of these foods, playing its own special part each day in millions of American homes.

Spring of '51 finds homemakers in serious need of kitchen help in the form of quick-fix food. There are 18 million women working in business; about half of these are married and run homes. Also many of these women are mothers; more than a fifth of all mothers of children under 18 are working outside the home, according to the U. S. Department of Labor. Meanwhile, there is critical need for mothers to share more time with youngsters.

Besides the great push for time these days, there's heavier pressure on family incomes. Food prices are at a new high; however, condensed soup has stayed at a lower price level than many food items.

With soup on hand, a main part of any lunch or supper is right on the kitchen shelf. What a joy on a summer day when no one wants heat in the kitchen. Have it with family-favorite meat or cheese sandwiches and a refreshing dessert like a fruit cup. This menu pattern has been voted one of America's most popular soup meals in a survey of 3100 homemakers. As you know, the 10 favorite soups are: tomato, chicken noodle, vegetable, vegetable-beef, chicken with rice, cream of mushroom, cream of chicken, beef noodle, green pea and chicken gumbo.

SAUCE USES: Besides being a grand dish by itself, soup is the perfect sauce to go over and with meats and vegetables. More than half of all housewives use condensed soup as a sauce or ingredient, with tomato and mushroom by far the most popular for this. These soup-sauces are especially useful with summer foods.

MEATS: Those items now in good supply—pork, chicken, fish—take well to combination with a soup-sauce. That last bit of roast or chicken makes just enough to go round when mixed with cream of mushroom or chicken soup; pour this over hot rice or mashed pottoes for an all-in-one dish. Fish becomes more tempting in a sauce of cream of celery soup seasoned with chopped pickle and prepared mustard.

EGGS: In numerous egg dishes, condensed soup can be an important ingredient. Hard-cooked eggs may be creamed with any of the cream-soup sauces. And these soups are fine for fixing Eggs Benedict. An omelet filled with cooked asparagus makes elegant eating when cream of chicken soup is poured over all.

Vegetables: The garden-goodness of the current vegetable crop is enhanced by special sauces. Three cream soups—celery, chicken, mushroom—go well with almost any of these fresh things. Here are good sauce-and-vegetable teams:

Cream of Mushroom Soup: Delicious with all spring vegetables and those that come a little later—green snap beans, cauliflower and lima beans.

Cream of Chicken Soup: Especially pleasant company for new potatoes and green peas. Also grand with summer squash, carrots, onions, celery, corn and broccoli.

Cream of Celery Soup: Teams well with most vegetables.

Casseroles: Countless main dishes call for a creamy sauce as a basic ingredient—another place for soup sauces to shine. The special flavor in cream of chicken or mushroom soup perks up the blandness of noodles or rice in a casserole. In just a twist of the wrist the perfect soup sauce is ready; our test kitchen staff finds this takes less than half the time to make white sauce.

Chilled Soups: Menu planners can feature chilled condensed soups to refresh the family on "scorcher" days. How delightful is ice cold cream of chicken or tomato soup. The chilled soups are generally best if mixed with about an equal amount of milk. And they should be chilled at least 4 hours so they are good and cold.

If there's going to be a wedding at your house or if you want to delight one of your friends who's going to be married, here's an idea: make a bride's cake of white cake mix.

It's a lovely cake, quick, easy and beautiful. And inexpensive, too. Just figure it out for yourself—three packages of Instant Cake Mix, three and a half cups of milk, and sugar and egg whites for frosting. It cuts into pieces enough for 25 or 30 people, downy light and delicious, a bride-cake masterpiece.

After you've frosted the cake smoothly, you can decorate it with flutings and curlicues put on with a pastry tube, and for extra trimming add a few little birds or flowers sold for cake decorating. Practice with the pastry tube by squirting a sample of your fluting on a piece of waxed paper. You can scrape up the practice frosting and put it back in the tube to use again, so no waste is involved in perfecting your technique.

WEDDING CAKE
(Two-tiered oblong cake for 25 to 30 people)

Preparations. Line 13x9x2-inch pan and 9x9x2-inch pan on bottoms with paper. Start oven for moderate heat (350°F.).

3 packages Swans Down Instant Cake Mix
3½ cups milk

Combine contents of two packages Swans Down Instant Cake Mix in mixing bowl. Add 1 cup milk. Blend, then beat 2 minutes. Add 1⅓ cups milk. Blend, then beat 1 minute longer.

Pour batter into prepared 13x9x2-inch pan. Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) 55 minutes, or until done. Remove from oven and increase oven heat to 375°F. Cool cake in pan 10 minutes, then turn out on cake rack to finish cooling.

Place contents of third package of Swans Down Instant Cake Mix in mixing bowl. Add ½ cup milk. Blend, then beat 2 minutes. Add ⅔ cup milk. Blend, then beat 1 minute longer.

Pour batter into prepared 9x9x2-inch pan. Bake in moderate oven (375°F.) 30 minutes, or until done. Cool.

Frosting. Prepare seven-minute frosting, using 2 egg whites. Then place the large cake on an attractive oblong serving plate or tray. Spread top and sides of cake with frosting. Trim the 9x9x2-inch cake to measure 9x7x2-inches by cutting a 1-inch slice from opposite sides of the cake. Place on top of the frosted layer, centering evenly. Prepare another batch of seven-minute frosting and spread on top and sides of small cake, reserving some for decorating. With a knife, go over entire cake, making a smooth flat surface for decorating.

Decorating. Using a pastry bag or decorating tube, decorate frosted cake as desired with the reserved frosting. Place wedding bell or other suitable ornament in center of top layer, if desired.

CHEESE FLOATERS

On top each bowlful of tomato soup, float a toasted slice of French or Italian bread, sprinkled with grated cheese. A flavorful flourish. Also good on hot consomme' or bouillon.

WEDDING CAKE

(Two-tiered oblong cake for 25 to 30 people)

Preparations. Line 13x9x2-inch pan and 9x9x2-inch pan on bottoms with paper. Start oven for moderate heat (350°F.).

2 packages Swans Down Instant Cake Mix
3⅓ cups milk

Combine contents of two packages Swans Down Instant Cake Mix in mixing bowl. Add 1 cup milk. Blend, then beat 2 minutes. Add 1⅓ cups milk. Blend, then beat 1 minute longer.

Pour batter into prepared 13x9x2-inch pan. Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) 55 minutes, or until done. Remove from oven and increase oven heat to 375°F. Cool cake in pan 10 minutes, then turn out on cake rack to finish cooling.

Place contents of third package of Swans Down Instant Cake Mix in mixing bowl. Add ½ cup milk. Blend, then beat 2 minutes. Add ⅔ cup milk. Blend, then beat 1 minute longer.

Pour batter into prepared 9x9x2-inch pan. Bake in moderate oven (375°F.) 30 minutes, or until done. Cool.

Frosting. Prepare seven-minute frosting, using 2 egg whites. Then place the large cake on an attractive oblong serving plate or tray. Spread top and sides of cake with frosting. Trim the 9x9x2-inch cake to measure 9x7x2-inches by cutting a 1-inch slice from opposite sides of the cake. Place on top of the frosted layer, centering evenly. Prepare another batch of seven-minute frosting and spread on top and sides of small cake, reserving some for decorating. With a knife, go over entire cake, making a smooth flat surface for decorating.

Decorating. Using a pastry bag or decorating tube, decorate frosted cake as desired with the reserved frosting. Place wedding bell or other suitable ornament in center of top layer, if desired.

CHEESE FLOATERS

On top each bowlful of tomato soup, float a toasted slice of French or Italian bread, sprinkled with grated cheese. A flavorful flourish. Also good on hot consomme' or bouillon.

WONDERFUL FOR NYLONS —and all fine washable fabrics
WASHES ALMOST TWICE AS MANY DISHES AS A BIG BOX OF SOAP IN HARDEST WATER!
Put JOY in your dishpan-today!
JOY
Guaranteed by Good Housekeeping
©1951, The Procter & Gamble Co.

It's true! No soap flakes or powders get dishes done as quickly as JOY.

For JOY is already dissolved. Makes more suds faster. Cuts grease better. Dishes go from grease to shine in half the time—without wiping. Pots and pans rinse clean—without hard, messy scouring.

You'll be overjoyed, too, when you see how kind this smooth, mild liquid is to your hands. Gives real beauty care to finest washable fabrics.

And a handy bottle of JOY goes almost twice as far as a big box of soap in hardest water. Get JOY for the fastest, easiest nicest dishwashing possible.

Because JOY is so mild, it gives real beauty care to finest washable fabrics—silks, nylons or woolens. Colors stay brighter longer. Dainty things last longer. Keep a handy bottle in your bathroom.

Bread Sticks Croutons Add To Meals

Croutons and Bread Sticks make the fullest use of bread, and add materially to the good eating of the foods for which they are designed as accompaniments. Croutons not only add zest and nutritive value to soups, but also make interesting "snack" eating; Bread Sticks too serve as snacks, and are delicious with salads.

BACON-CHEESE BREAD STICKS

½ cup grated processed cheese
2 tablespoons chopped, cooked bacon
4 slices toasted enriched or rye bread

Spread 2 tablespoons cheese and 1½ teaspoons bacon on each slice of toast. Toast on a cookie sheet in a moderate oven (350° F.) for twelve minutes, or until crisp. Cut each slice into 6 equal size strips. Serve with salad or soup.

Yield: 2 dozen Bacon-Cheese Bread Sticks.

DILL BREAD STICKS

4 slices enriched bread
2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
1½ tablespoons dill seeds

Remove crust from bread and brush both sides of bread slices with butter. Cut each slice into 6 equal size strips. Roll strips in dill seeds. Toast on a cookie sheet in a moderate oven (350° F.) for twelve minutes, or until crisp. Serve with soup or as a snack.

Yield: 2 dozen Dill Bread Sticks.

HORSE-RADISH BREAD STICKS

2 tablespoons soft butter or margarine
1 tablespoon horse-radish
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
5 slices toasted enriched bread

Combine butter, horse-radish and mustard. Remove crusts from bread and spread 2 teaspoons horse-radish butter on each slice of toast. Place toast, spread side up, on an ungreased cookie sheet. Toast under low broiler heat for five minutes. Cut each slice into 6 equal strips. Serve with soup.

Yield: 2½ dozen Horse-radish Bread Sticks.

PARMESAN BREAD STICKS

1 egg, beaten
1 tablespoon melted butter or margarine
3 slices enriched bread
6 tablespoons finely grated Parmesan cheese.

Combine egg and butter. Remove crusts from bread and cut each slice into 6 equal size strips. Roll strips in Parmesan cheese. Toast on a cookie sheet in a moderate oven (350° F.) for fifteen minutes, or until crisp. Turn them so they will be golden brown on all sides. Serve with salad or soup.

Yield: 1½ dozen Parmesan Bread Sticks.

CARAWAY SEED BREAD STICKS

4 slices enriched bread
2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
2 tablespoons caraway seeds

Remove crusts from bread and brush both sides of bread slices with butter. Cut each slice into 6 equal size strips. Roll strips in caraway seeds. Toast on a cookie sheet in a moderate oven (350° F.) for twelve minutes, or until crisp. Serve with salad or soup.

Yield: 2 dozen Caraway Seed Bread Sticks.

GARLIC BREAD STICKS

2 tablespoons soft butter or margarine
2 tablespoons mayonnaise or salad dressing
1 teaspoon garlic salt
6 slices enriched bread

Combine butter, mayonnaise and garlic salt. Remove crusts from bread and spread 1 teaspoon garlic butter on both sides of bread slices. Toast on an ungreased cookie sheet in a moderate oven (400° F.) for twelve minutes, or until crisp. Cut each slice into 6 equal size strips. Serve with salad or soup.

Yield: 3 dozen Garlic Bread Sticks.

ONION-CHEESE BREAD STICKS

½ cup grated processed cheese
4 teaspoons minced onion
4 slices toasted enriched or rye bread

Spread 2 tablespoons cheese and 1 teaspoon onion on each slice of toast. Toast on a cookie sheet in a moderate oven (350° F.) for twelve minutes, or until crisp. Cut each slice into 6 equal size strips. Serve with salad or soup.

Yield: 2 dozen Onion-Cheese Bread Sticks.

PARSLEY-CHEESE BREAD STICKS

2 tablespoons soft butter or margarine
1 tablespoon grated processed cheese
1 teaspoon minced parsley
½ teaspoon prepared mustard
6 slices toasted enriched bread

Combine butter, cheese, parsley and mustard. Remove crusts from toasted bread and spread 1 tablespoon cheese mixture on each slice of toast. Toast on a cookie sheet under low broiler heat for five minutes. Cut each slice into 6 equal size strips. Serve with salad or soup.

Yield: 3 dozen Parsley-Cheese Bread Sticks.

ONION CROUTONS

2 tablespoons corn oil
2 teaspoons minced onion
1 pint soft ½" bread cubes

Combine corn oil and onion. Add bread cubes and stir until each one is coated with the oil mixture. Spread on a cookie sheet and toast under low broiler heat for five minutes, or until golden brown. Serve with soup or as a snack.

Yield: 1 pint Onion Croutons.

WHOLE WHEAT CROUTONS

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 pint toasted ½" whole wheat bread cubes

Melt butter in a skillet. Add toasted bread cubes and stir until all sides are coated with butter. Serve with all varieties of soups.

Yield: 1 pint Whole Wheat Croutons.

Carrousel Coffee Cake

"It's a party!" the children will exclaim when you serve a a frosted Carrousel Coffee Cake that goes 'round and 'round like a merry-go-round.

Menu charmer for spring is a gay Carrousel Coffee Cake, a spicy-sweet bread that you can make at home by varying your cinnamon bun recipe.

This coffee cake has a party-going glamor at a penny-wise price. It can be made for as little as 30 cents. In addition, Carrousel Coffee Cake is a versatile bread or dessert. You'll like its feathery lightness and cinnamon flavor with stewed fresh rhubarb for luncheon dessert or with preserves and coffee for teatime or canasta refreshments. Any left over can be toasted for family breakfast.

Carrousel Coffee Cake is another of the delicious enriched breads that give your family lots of good nourishment—especially protein, essential B-vitamins, and food iron. These food values are important in building strong bodies, good red blood and in maintaining healthy skin, vitality, and general good health.

In fact, you'll find all breads made with enriched white flour have a way of making vitamins taste as good as calories!

CARROUSEL COFFEE CAKE

1 package yeast, compressed or dry
¼ cup lukewarm water
½ cup milk
¼ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons shortening
2½ cups sifted enriched flour (about)
1 egg
3 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
½ cup sugar mixed with
1½ teaspoons cinnamon
Confectioners' Sugar Icing

Soften yeast in lukewarm water. Scald milk. Add sugar, salt and shortening. Cool to lukewarm. Add flour to make a thick batter. Mix well. Add softened yeast and egg. Beat well. Add enough more flour to make a soft dough. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead until smooth and satiny. Place in greased bowl, cover and let rise in warm place until doubled (about 1½ hours). When light, punch down and let rest 10 minutes. Roll out in rectangular sheet 9 x 18-inches. Spread with butter or margarine and sprinkle with cinnamon sugar. Fold over in thirds making sheet 9 x 6-inches. Cut into strips 1 inch wide and 6 inches long. Roll one strip starting at narrow end. Stand on edge in center of greased baking sheet. Roll remaining strips in similar manner, rolling only half of strip, leaving about 2 inch end. Stand these half rolls on edge around center roll with unrolled end toward center. Let rise until doubled (about 45 minutes). Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) 20 to 25 minutes. When cool, frost with Confectioners' Sugar Icing.

MACARTHUR —MAN OF ACTION

MacArthur And The Oriental Mind

s MacArthur's plane, Bataan, nbed into the clouds and head- for Korea, the General began pace the runway between the ts ("he always walks half the on every flight we make," nmented his pilot later), dug into pockets for his corncob and, ning to the correspondents, said: don't smoke this back there in kyo; they'd think I was a farm-

MacArthur has never once ap- red to be a farmer to the Jap- se; he is held in awesome idol- ous respect and in some ways, ough no fault fo his own, he is ered even more than Hirohito. s did not just happen. The re- d with which he is held by the anese is a direct result of his nplete grasp of the Oriental nd.

His knowledge of the Far East his sensitive understanding of Oriental mind are probably his atest weapons in dealing with Japanese. That he is accepted them is proved by the thousands letters he receives from Jap- se in all walks of life. Mothers him to father sons for them that they shall be American nocratic too."

he prostitutes in a body once ed for a union: "Please can we e a union too? We're simply king girls."

Never before in Japan's history e the people been given this asure of freedom; never before e they had anybody to appeal never before have they had leader try to understand their blem. And while all aspects of occupation may not be perfect, cArthur's superb psychological ndling of the occupation so far counts for his having achieved so ch in a short time.

MacArthur is not superhuman; makes just as many mistakes as next person. He has made many ring the last five years in Ja- n. But his batting average has en high, and his real genius ws in the psychological game of ess he has been playing with Japanese not only since the beginning of the occupation, but indeed since Pearl Harbor.

Concentrated Study

As far as MacArthur is concerned it is something more than "when in Rome live like the Romans." It is a concentrated study of the way the Oriental lives, works, and, above all, thinks. Yet privately he insists that "even after 50 years of living among these people I still do not understand them. But his whole career in the Orient makes that statement a contradiction in terms. He has studied the folklore of the people; read their military, political and economic histories. This constant study, plus his practical experience, has given MacArthur a greater understanding of the Oriental mind than possibly any other living American statesman or soldier.

He has made this study a life's work, and his every move seems to be predicated, not on what the Western world will think, as so many of his critics would have us believe, but rather on what the Oriental will think. For MacArthur has repeatedly pointed out that Occidentals should not compare their reasoning or interpretation of values with the Oriental and expect it to come out equal. The War Department fully realized this ability of MacArthur years ago.

It must be understood that much of MacArthur's actions and utterances have been for the Oriental mind only and not for consumption of the Western world. If we are to judge MacArthur's actions by Western standards, some moves must seem silly, pompous, and indeed stupid. For example, take the extremely controversial saying of the General's, "I shall return!"

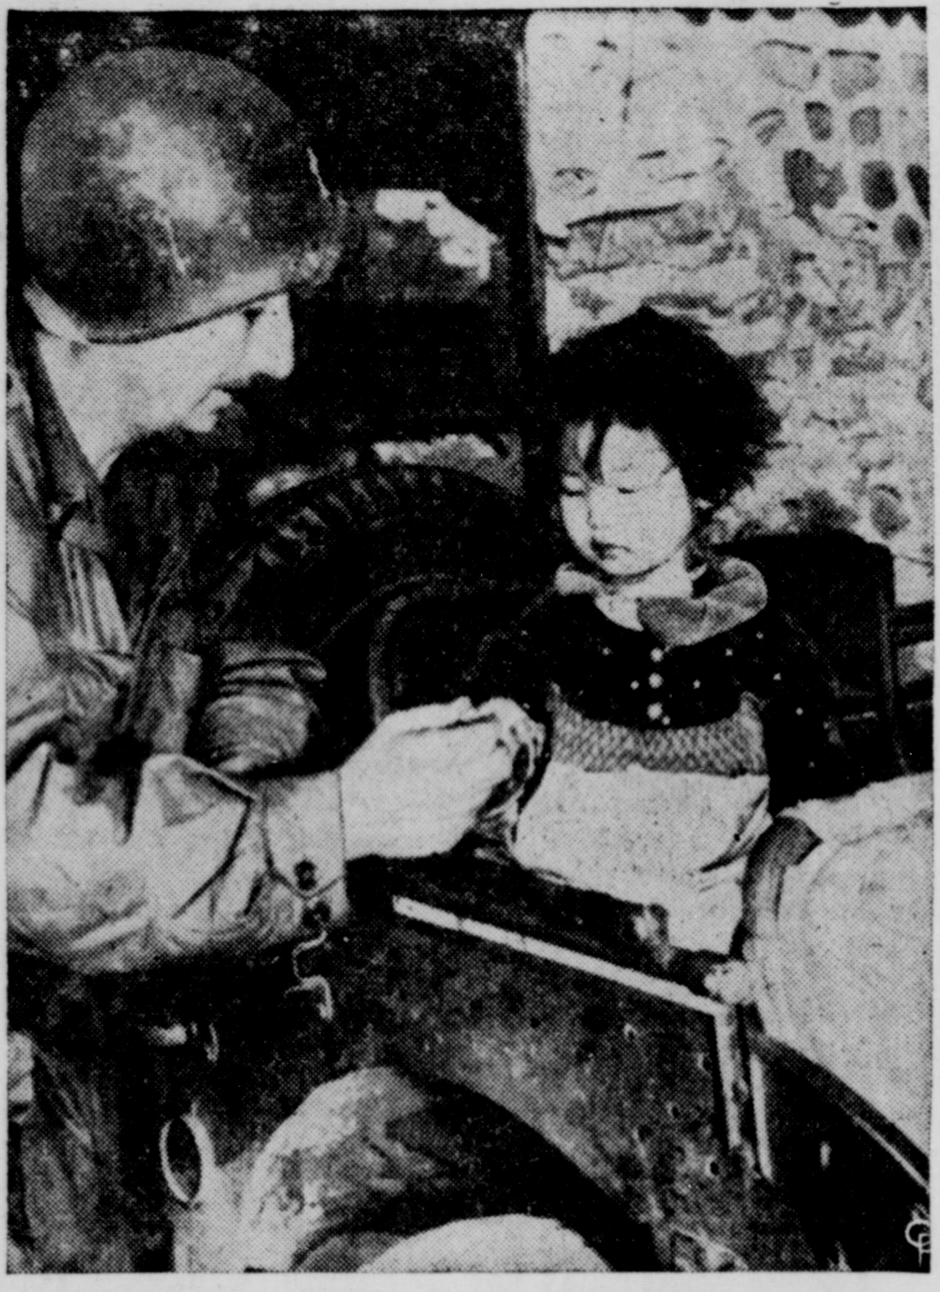
Psychological experts today say that that one phrase struck more terror into the hearts of the Japanese than any other single psychological warfare effort throughout the whole Pacific war. Over and over that one slogan was driven home. It was as nerve-racking to the Japanese as the European variety thought up by Mr. Churchill, the three dots and the long dash spelling out slowly V for victory, which was repeated in drumbeats every available moment on all radio bands of the BBC. Unfortunately, "I shall return" became synonymous with some of the less attractive sides fo MacArthur's extraordinary personality.



WHILE WAITING for medical corpsmen to arrive, Chaplain Capt. Wilkinson Alsworth, of Hattiesburg, Miss., comforts a tiny Korean orphan on a roadside north of Seoul. The child was among the refugees being sent southward to safety. (Defense Department Photo from International)

Word Was His Bond

That same slogan served as a rallying call to the Filipinos, Gen. Carolos P. Romulo, president of the United Nations, says that the phrase "served as a promise and command to the Philippine peoples. They knew his word was his bond."

All over the Pacific on Japanese-held islands the words "I shall return" mysteriously appeared on walls, doors — even on parade grounds—in white paint. Thousands of small white sheets of paper bearing just the three-word sentence began to appear in Japanese files, books and in supply cases. There is one story of how a Japanese unit in the Philippines broke open a case of shells in the middle of an action and on each shell was neatly stenciled the famous pronouncement. Air Force planes and submarines supplied thousands of match-boxes, playing cards, colored buttons, chewing gum and even money bearing the message to guerrilla fighters on Japanese-held islands. The Japanese command reluctantly admitted, with the ending of hostilities, tnat this war of nerves weakened morale among the troops; in fact it gave them a bad case of jitters.

MacArthur's greatest psychological gamble was the initial occupation of Japan made by only a handful of armed men. He felt that the Japanese would respect the surrender of the Emperor Hirohito. Yet it seemed like dropping out of the sky into a vast armed camp of 82,000,000 people, who for all anybody knew might have been preparing a hot reception. The decision to do this was MacArthur's and MacArthur's alone. True, he had been promised by the Japanese emissaries in Manila that there would be no opposition to the landing of troops. Yet it was still "one of the greatest gambles in history."

The occupation army in Japan at no time ever exceeded 200,000 men—except at the very beginning, when units which had been fighting through the Pacific converged on Japan at the end of the hostilities. This occupation force was to control some 82,000,000 people—a population of more than half that of the United States. MacArthur's shrewd handling of the Japanese people saved him another 1,800,000 men. He reasoned that control of Japan lay with control of the emperor and the imperial institution. Without the emperor he once said "we would have needed a force of two million men."

MacArthur's own psychological warfare experts had held during the war that one of the first acts of the occupation was that Hirohito should be immediately treated as a war criminal.

After MacArthur landed in Japan he didn't see it quite that way; he made no direct move to oust Hirohito. This negative procedure ran counter to the desires of the Chinese, Australians, New Zealanders, and of course the Russians. They frankly wanted the Emperor out and named a war criminal. MacArthur said no.

His reasoning went something like this: Let's remove all the trappings surrounding the Emperor and the imperial institution such as State Shintoism and the thraldom of militarists such as Konoye, Tojo, et al.; let's prove to the Japanese people that he is not a god, that he is not divine, and then let's see just what sort of emperor he would make if given the reins. MacArthur warned, however: "Let's not martyrize the Emperor; in their good time the Japanese will whittle him down to size."

Emperor Sweat It Out

It worked. For months, as the axe swept closer to Hirohito, as one top adviser after another was grabbed and tried as a war criminal, MacArthur let the Emperor sweat it out, wondering all the time if he wouldn't be next. These moves, plus the issuing of MacArthur's "Four Freedoms" directive turned the pitiless spotlight of publicity on the imperial institution. For the first time the once blindly obedient millions of Japanese began to question Hirohito's authority, his descent, his supposed divinity.

His greatest stroke occurred on January 1, 1946. The Chaplinesque Hirohito, who claimed descent unbroken for ages from Japan's feudal gods, climbed shakily on to the podium in the Japanese Diet and read his New Year's message to the Japanese people in which he calmly told them that he was not divine and, what was more, he never had been. Furthermore, his subjects were told flatly that they were not superior to other races nor were they fated "to bring the eight corners of the world under one roof"—a Japanese roof. Hirohito did not think of all this himself; neither did his advisers. The speech, it is suspected, was written at MacArthur's headquarters by none other than the general himself.

MacARTHUR —MAN OF ACTION

By FRANK KELLEY and CORNELIUS RYAN

Another example of Macthur's understanding of the Oriental mind was his commanding the Emperor to come before him. If ever an emperor lost face before his people, Hirohito did at this time. Just what the Japanese expected Hirohito to do is not quite clear. In fact, their conception of the occupation is not clear. They met the troops with cameras and great beaming welcomes. They soon found out that the occupation under MacArthur was not going to be a picnic. And the first person who came to this realization was Hirohito.

Wearing an ancient morning suit, silk topper and striped pants, Hirohito and his chief adviser (at that time the Marquis Kido, who a few days later was led off to a cold cell as a war criminal) stepped out of an early vintage Daimler to pay their respects to MacArthur.

They were escorted into the embassy. As they walked through the door, the Marquis Kido was politely asked to step into an anteroom. For one awful moment Hirohito realized that he was alone. Kido couldn't believe that anybody would treat the Emperor of Japan in such a manner. He tried to protest. Everybody was just oh, so polite. "The Supreme Commander wishes to talk to the Emperor alone," Kido was told. So the man behind the throne cooled his heels while timorous, shabby Hirohito walked with uncertain steps down the hall into the study. Never before had he been without an adviser; never before had he been asked to do any real thinking for himself. Always it had been Kido or some other stooge who had answered for him with "The Emperor feels that. . ." or "The Emperor, after great consideration. . ." Nobody had ever left him alone before.

Some idea of the terror which gripped this emperor can best be shown by his puny political and childlike effort at public relations which he later tried on Robert Patterson. Patterson, then Secretary of War, arrived in Japan sometime later. For some strange reason Hirohito—whose fate still hung in the balance, so he thought—decided that Patterson might be able to save him, or at least influence those in authority to have mercy on him. One night as Patterson was dining with MacArthur, a messenger left a parcel for Mr. Patterson. It was a solid-gold cigaret case with an inscription. Patterson sent it back—immediately. There was no balm to Hirohito's troubled mind here.

In the early months the Japanese, born imitators that they are, tried hard to be more American than the Americans. Hirohito was no exception. Prompted by his old guard, who urged him to seek a good press, correspondents were invited to a duck hunt in the Imperial Palace grounds. This failed miserably, too, for the correspondents were treated to the most sumptuous meal—everything from caviar to "brandied guinea hen in aspic"—they had ever seen in Japan or elsewhere. Outside the palace walls, three-quarters of Tokyo's population was starving.

Took A Long Time

It took Hirohito and his ilk a long time to learn; a long time to think for themselves without the constant prodding of MacArthur. The army of occupation was wooed with parties and entertainment of every sort. This "kill with kindness" plan included such items as "Friendship Houses" with assembly-line staging. Prostitution operated 24 hours out of the 24. MacArthur would have none of that. Gradually it dawned on the Japanese promoters of this sort of thing that they had better toe the line or else. MacArthur was swift and harsh where he had to be, but he always followed one theory: The Japanese people in good time will whittle down not only Hirohito but also the diehards.

Today in the new Japan, the people are their own masters, no longer dominated by a rubber-stamp government. Of course, there is still a long way to go. The Japanese have still to produce a post-war leader, but Hirohito is now trying to be an emperor. His people respect him, they are loyal to him. There it ends. He is simply a figurehead. This insignificant little man now kisses babies, opens flower shows, and acts like a good Tammany Hall politician. Indeed it is not surprising nowadays to find him wading in the surf, his trousers rolled above his knees—still wearing the fedora—playing with the children on the beach. He still collects mosses and lichens; he still writes fantastic poetry. Perhaps this little item is significant of the trend of events in Japan. Around Hirohito's palace there is a well-stocked moat containing mostly carp. These have always been the Emperor's private property and only by royal decree were special friends of his allowed to fish for the carp, which, incidentally, were considered "sacred." It is actually on record that several Japanese many years ago were executed for daring to cast a line into the waters. Today Japan's Joe Doakes fish the moat. Hirohito, too, was tied by the militarists. MacArthur once said: "Hirohito was so controlled by the militarists that he nearly had to get permission to go to the bathroom." Times have changed.

It would seem on the face of it that the Korean war might have been the Kremlin's chance to call on Japan's Communists and the thousands of Soviet-indoctrinated Japanese prisoners of war, to strike while MacArthur's hands were tied. General MacArthur was gambling again; he believed in the Japanese people. And it would appear that they believed in him.

NEXT: MacArthur and the Russians.

Va. Branch WSWS Has Election

Officers were elected and installed at the final session of the fifth annual convention of the Virginia Branch of the Women's Society of World Service held Tuesday afternoon, Wednesday and yesterday morning, in Bethany Evangelical United Brethren Church. Rev. Floyd Fulk, conference superintendent, officiated at the installation.

Mrs. J. E. Oliver, Winchester, Va., was elected president. Mrs. Oliver resided here about nine years, when her husband served as pastor of Bethany United Brethren Church about 16 years ago. She is also a past president of the Cumberland Council of Church Women, and is a frequent visitor here.

Other officers are Mrs. James Swain, Harrisonburg, Va., first vice president; Mrs. Howard Fulk Singersglenn, Va., second vice president; Mrs. Robert Craghead, Roanoke, Va., recording secretary; Mrs. George Elliott, Martinsburg W. Va., treasurer.

Secretaries are Mrs. J. Paul Link, Stanton, Va., Christian Social Relations; Mrs. Glenn Smith, Keyser, Missionary Education; and Miss Jeanette Tedrick, Reliance, Va., daughter of Rev. Luther Tedrick, former Cumberlander, Young Peoples Work.

INSTALLED AS BRANCH OFFICERS—New officers of the Virginia Branch of the Women's Society of World Service were installed yesterday. They are left to right, Mrs. J. Paul Link, Mrs. George Elliott, Mrs. Howard Fulk, Mrs. J. W. Lineburg, Mrs. L. G. Bridgers, Mrs. J. E. Oliver, Mrs. James Swain, Mrs. Robert Craghead, Mrs. Glen Smith and Miss Jeanette Tedrick.

Mrs. L. G. Bridgers, Westernport, served as president for the past 11 years. Mrs. J. W. Linaburg, city, reported 84 registered delegates and 80 visitors attended. The branch includes 44 societies.

Guest speakers at the various sessions were Rev. and Mrs. Leslie O. Shirley, West Africa Mission; Rev. Frederick W. Brandauer, Central China Mission; Mrs. Leona Hansen, secretary of Missionary Education for Children and Youth from Dayton, Ohio; and Miss Gertrud Kuechklich, Germany, a student in Albright College, who told of their work.

Entertainment included a playlet by the Youth Fellowship of the Local Church; and one by the Keyser group.

Va. Branch WSWS Has Election

Officers were elected and installed at the final session of the fifth annual convention of the Virginia Branch of the Women's Society of World Service held Tuesday afternoon, Wednesday and yesterday morning, in Bethany Evangelical United Brethren Church. Rev. Floyd Fulk, conference superintendent, officiated at the installation.

Mrs. J. E. Oliver, Winchester, Va., was elected president. Mrs. Oliver resided here about nine years, when her husband served as pastor of Bethany United Brethren Church about 16 years ago. She is also a past president of the Cumberland Council of Church Women, and is a frequent visitor here.

Other officers are Mrs. James Swain, Harrisonburg, Va., first vice president; Mrs. Howard Fulk Singersglenn, Va., second vice president; Mrs. Robert Craghead, Roanoke, Va., recording secretary; Mrs. George Elliott, Martinsburg W. Va., treasurer.

Secretaries are Mrs. J. Paul Link, Stanton, Va., Christian Social Relations; Mrs. Glenn Smith, Keyser, Missionary Education; and Miss Jeanette Tedrick, Reliance, Va., daughter of Rev. Luther Tedrick, former Cumberlander, Young Peoples Work.

Mrs. L. G. Bridgers, Westernport, served as president for the past 11 years. Mrs. J. W. Linaburg, city, reported 84 registered delegates and 80 visitors attended. The branch includes 44 societies.

Guest speakers at the various sessions were Rev. and Mrs. Leslie O. Shirley, West Africa Mission; Rev. Frederick W. Brandauer, Central China Mission; Mrs. Leona Hansen, secretary of Missionary Education for Children and Youth from Dayton, Ohio; and Miss Gertrud Kuechklich, Germany, a student in Albright College, who told of their work.

Entertainment included a playlet by the Youth Fellowship of the Local Church; and one by the Keyser group.

A word to the people of Cumberland

What's New York got that Cumberland hasn't got?

The grass always looks greener on the other side of the fence. And we people who live in Cumberland have a bad habit of selling our city short.

Take this business of shopping. How many times have you gone off on a trip and bought yourself a dress in some exclusive shop . . . only to come home and see the same dress big as life right in a Cumberland store window? And often for less money.

Well, lady, you're not the first one that's happened to. And it happens to lots of Cumberland men too. They go off to Pittsburgh or Baltimore or New York and come home loaded up with things they could have bought right here in town.

Our Cumberland merchants have everything! Hot dogs to hot rods . . . diamonds to diapers . . . kiddie kars to convertibles . . . champagne to milk shakes . . . they're yours! They're here! Right in your favorite Cumberland store!

So let's quit selling Cumberland short! Let's stop thinking we've got to go out of town to buy.

Do your shopping right here in Cumberland! Give our local merchants your business.

Remember, they're our fellow citizens . . . the people that make our town. They're the ones who work with you on charity drives; they support those drives . . . they help to make Cumberland a better place to live in. They're our friends, our next door neighbors.

We've got fine stores here in Cumberland; and they will be still finer if we'll support them. And this support will create employment and prosperity in our city.

Buy in our own home town . . . from our own home merchants . . . keep Cumberland growing!

Substance Developed By Germans May Save Lives After Atom Blast

WASHINGTON (INS)—American medical scientists report that a synthetic substance developed by the Germans in World War II may play a top role in saving lives after an atomic bomb blast.

The clear, water-like appearing substance, known as PVP-macrose is developed by researchers as a "blood expander" which if made generally available may virtually do away with the need for costly blood banks in another World War.

PVP-macrose is now being made in limited quantity by Schenley Laboratories, Inc., of Lawrenceburg, Ind. Further research with the material is being conducted under the auspices of the National Research Council and some of the nation's leading medical experts on shock.

A spokesman for the new "blood expander," Dr. Charles E. Dutchess, claimed that if five atomic bombs of the Hiroshima type were dropped simultaneonsly on an equal number of American cities as much as 20,000,000 pints of blood, plasma or blood expanders would be needed immediately.

He contrasted this need with the fact that a total of only 13 million pints of whole blood were collected during the entire period of World War II.

The vice president and medical director of the laboratories said that the cost of collecting and making whole blood available in an atomic disaster would run as much as 15 dollars a pint.

While emphasizing that "there is no substitute for blood," scientists speaking for the new "expander" claim that it is a superior substitute for whole blood or plasma in point of ease of use and availability.

The new material, which is completely synthetic and requires no refrigeration, is available for immediate use.

Dutchess said the Germans, who used the substance under the name of "periston" described its results as "dramatic."

Dutchess said the material proved so satisfactory to the Germans both for civilian and military use that they made no attempt to maintain bloodbanks such as the U.S. operated during the war.

The substance under its new name has not been given complete approval by the Federal Food and Drug Administration.

More than 1,950 people were lynched in the United States between 1900 and 1948.

Executions — by burning and beheading—of alleged witches began in England in 1541.

The Egyptians played checkers at least 1600 B. C.

Friend Of Mother's Day Founder Struggles To Extend Observance

PHILADELPHIA, May 10 (INS)—Millions of persons throughout the world officially will remember their mothers on Sunday, because of the devotion of a spinster daughter.

There will be kisses and gifts for the living — and sentinels at gravesides.

American Legion bugles will play softly over the grave of Miss Anna Jarvis in tribute to the daughter who founded Mother's Day. There also will be a tribute to Miss Maude O. Hickman, her friend who has struggled to further the international observance after a promise to Miss Jarvis who died in poverty and blindness in 1948.

The mother of Miss Jarvis, Anna Reeves Jarvis, died in 1906. Her daughter, an insurance company employe who later was to deplore the "commercialization" of Mother's Day, conceived the idea of a national observance after a memorial service for her mother.

Miss Hickman attended that service and today still sends letters to influential leaders to further the wishes of Miss Jarvis, whom she terms "one of God's angels."

"Will you write the letters?" Miss Jarvis asked Miss Hickman when Miss Jarvis was dying. "I am blind. Someone must carry on."

"Don't worry," said Miss Hickman, "I will attend to it."

Today Mother's Day is observed in 46 nations outside the United States. As a result of Miss Jarvis' work, Philadelphia observed the second Sunday in May as Mother's Day as early as 1908. England began to observe the day as early as 1913.

In the United States, Miss Hickman said, only Gov. James F. Byrnes of South Carolina has refused an official proclamation for Mother's Day. He has said that if he issued proclamations in response to all requests, such proclamations soon would be meaningless.

Miss Hickman has told him with tact that President Woodrow Wilson formally proclaimed the day in 1912. Gov. Byrnes did not reply to that message and Miss Hickman says she is "a bit miffed."

The woman who is carrying on Miss Jarvis' work said:

"I never dreamed I would spend the rest of my life furthering this work. But I go on."

She pointed at her cane and said she is worried about what will happen after she dies. "I am not as active as I used to be," she said, and added:

"The best way to honor your mother is to live a good life — with honor, without shame. Every human being is a living memorial to mother."

The first pure food law in this country was passed by Michigan in 1895.

There are more motion picture theaters in Texas than in any other state.

Early light bulbs were so fragile that they were often shipped, wrapped in cotton, in wooden boxes suspended on spiral springs.

Friend Of Mother's Day Founder Struggles To Extend Observance

PHILADELPHIA, May 10 (INS)—Millions of persons throughout the world officially will remember their mothers on Sunday, because of the devotion of a spinster daughter.

There will be kisses and gifts for the living — and sentinels at gravesides.

American Legion bugles will play softly over the grave of Miss Anna Jarvis in tribute to the daughter who founded Mother's Day. There also will be a tribute to Miss Maude O. Hickman, her friend who has struggled to further the international observance after a promise to Miss Jarvis who died in poverty and blindness in 1948.

The mother of Miss Jarvis, Anna Reeves Jarvis, died in 1906. Her daughter, an insurance company employe who later was to deplore the "commercialization" of Mother's Day, conceived the idea of a national observance after a memorial service for her mother.

Miss Hickman attended that service and today still sends letters to influential leaders to further the wishes of Miss Jarvis, whom she terms "one of God's angels."

"Will you write the letters?" Miss Jarvis asked Miss Hickman when Miss Jarvis was dying. "I am blind. Someone must carry on."

"Don't worry," said Miss Hickman, "I will attend to it."

Today Mother's Day is observed in 46 nations outside the United States. As a result of Miss Jarvis' work, Philadelphia observed the second Sunday in May as Mother's Day as early as 1908. England began to observe the day as early as 1913.

In the United States, Miss Hickman said, only Gov. James F. Byrnes of South Carolina has refused an official proclamation for Mother's Day. He has said that if he issued proclamations in response to all requests, such proclamations soon would be meaningless.

Miss Hickman has told him with tact that President Woodrow Wilson formally proclaimed the day in 1912. Gov. Byrnes did not reply to that message and Miss Hickman says she is "a bit miffed."

The woman who is carrying on Miss Jarvis' work said:

"I never dreamed I would spend the rest of my life furthering this work. But I go on."

She pointed at her cane and said she is worried about what will happen after she dies. "I am not as active as I used to be," she said, and added:

"The best way to honor your mother is to live a good life — with honor, without shame. Every human being is a living memorial to mother."

The first pure food law in this country was passed by Michigan in 1895.

There are more motion picture theaters in Texas than in any other state.

Early light bulbs were so fragile that they were often shipped, wrapped in cotton, in wooden boxes suspended on spiral springs.

Mrs. Strickland, who has written several books for girls, discussed housekeeping problems faced by a large airline. She told of the menus served to airline passengers and the training of hostesses.

New officers were installed by Mrs. H. G. Muntzing, state president.

Mrs. Donald Baker will serve as president; Mrs. W. J. Teets and Mrs. M. H. Maxwell, vice-presidents; Mrs. E. G. Hamrick, secretary, and Miss Elizabeth Wilson treasurer.

The retiring president, Mrs. Francis Baker, presided at the banquet and introduced guests, members and banquet committees, and state officers present.

Mrs. R. E. Fisher, state chairman of Press and Publicity, presented the press book, arranged by Miss Elizabeth Wilson, which had won honorable mention at the recent state convention in Clarksburg. Resolutions were offered on the death of two club members during the past year, Miss Ellen Kuykendall and Miss Ann Gibson.

Misses Roberta Ann Stickley and Helen Grover sang an airplane song, in keeping with the theme of the banquet which was "Friendship Around the World." The art department of the local high school painted the menus.

Sincell To Speak At Potomac State Press Banquet

Pasquino Staff Will be Named

KEYSER, W. Va.—Robert Benjamin Sincell, former student editor of Potomac State School's newspaper, will be guest speaker at the staff's annual Press Banquet, May 22 at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club, Cumberland.

Sincell, advertising manager of the Oakland (Md.) Republican, served as editor of the college newspaper here in 1947-48. A graduate of Oakland High School, he served with the Navy in the Pacific theater prior to enrolling at Potomac State.

Following his graduation here, he entered West Virginia University's School of Journalism, graduating in June 1950. During his senior year he served as business manager of the Daily Athenaeum and was a member of the Journaliers and the Press Club.

The speaker will bring his wife, the former Hannah G. Wagoner, Springfield, with him. He met her while they were attending Potomac State School. They have a young son.

Sincell's father, Donald R. Sincell, managing editor of the Oakland Republican, was speaker at the Press Banquet at Potomac State in 1947.

Melvin McKenzie, circulation manager of Pasquino and a sophomore at State, will serve as toastmaster. Carl F. Davis, businesss manager, will be in charge of transportation.

President and Mrs. E. E. Church and Dean and Mrs. K. S. McKee will be guests.

Dr. Elizabeth A. Atwater, faculty adviser, will announce the chief Pasquino staff positions for the coming year at the banquet.

Contest Scheduled

KEYSER, W. Va.—The annual Mineral County Typewriting Contest for classes in the county public schools, will be held Saturday in the Keyser High School.

Two students will be selected from the classes of each school teaching typing, representing the Typing I and II classes in each. The contest will be staged in the typing room starting at 1:15 p. m., DST.

Some appropriate and valuable prizes have been donated by merchants in the county and the typewriter companies in Cumberland, to be awarded winners in the various sections of the contest.

Many Mineral County Teachers Appointed

KEYSER, W. Va.—Many teachers for the 1951-52 school year have been appointed by the Mineral County Board of Education.

However, the position of principal of Keyser High School and a number of other posts will be filled by the board later. The board has let it be known that R. R. Lowe will not be reappointed principal of Keyser High School.

County Superintendent H. L. Idleman said that this post probably will be filled at the regular meeting in June. He added that there is a surplus of teachers this year, with qualified certificates, for the first time in a long period.

Brophytown Swinging Bridge Gets Considerable Comment

WESTERNPORT — A swinging bridge which spans George's Creek at Brophytown has received much comment since a drowning occurred near there last Tuesday.

Three-year-old William Michael Bowley was found downstream from the bridge and county officials who investigated the mishap think possibly the child fell from the bridge.

Neighbors reason that large rocks located just below the bridge would have prevented the child from being carried downstream.

The wooden span which is about 50 or 60 feet in length and about three feet wide is situated 10 feet above the water, and is used daily by school children and residents of the community.

Paul O'Neil, a bus driver who resides in Brophytown, said that he transports about 100 children each day to Hammond Street School and Bruce High School, Westernport. The only protection from falling from the bridge is cables used to support the structure.

Several days ago O'Neil replaced some broken boards in the flooring. The original bridge was built by J. S. Brophy, owner of the George's Creek Coal Company, but it was washed away by the 1936 flood. Jesse Wolfe and Charles Habreter built the present bridge with lumber and material furnished by residents of Brophytown. Maintenance on the structure is kept up by the community.

Actually the bridge is used as a "short cut" by residents and a more stable bridge used by vehicles and pedestrians is located at the other end of the community. In 1946 a resident of Brophytown fell from the span when part of it collapsed. He was uninjured. The water is about three feet deep directly under the span and measures about 40 feet in width.

Apple Bloom Pollenized

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., May 10 (AP)—Apple bloom pollenization has been completed here "under generally favorable conditions," according to orchardists.

The process was completed before a series of rains which may have washed the pollen away.

Growers say the peak bloom period of the Appalachian Belt was passed May 3.

The bloom was reported heavy, but the effects of the pollenization have not yet appeared.

One adverse angle of the pollenizing, some growers felt, was the shortage of bees to carry the pollen. Spraying has been started in some areas.

Growers said there was no material damage to apple and peach stock in the Maryland-West Virginia - Pennsylvania-Upper Virginia area.

Sincell To Speak At Potomac State Press Banquet

Pasquino Staff Will be Named

KEYSER, W. Va.—Robert Benjamin Sincell, former student editor of Potomac State School's newspaper, will be guest speaker at the staff's annual Press Banquet, May 22 at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club, Cumberland.

Sincell, advertising manager of the Oakland (Md.) Republican, served as editor of the college newspaper here in 1947-48. A graduate of Oakland High School, he served with the Navy in the Pacific theater prior to enrolling at Potomac State.

Following his graduation here, he entered West Virginia University's School of Journalism, graduating in June 1950. During his senior year he served as business manager of the Daily Athenaeum and was a member of the Journaliers and the Press Club.

The speaker will bring his wife, the former Hannah G. Wagoner, Springfield, with him. He met her while they were attending Potomac State School. They have a young son.

Sincell's father, Donald R. Sincell, managing editor of the Oakland Republican, was speaker at the Press Banquet at Potomac State in 1947.

Melvin McKenzie, circulation manager of Pasquino and a sophomore at State, will serve as toastmaster. Carl F. Davis, businesss manager, will be in charge of transportation.

President and Mrs. E. E. Church and Dean and Mrs. K. S. McKee will be guests.

Dr. Elizabeth A. Atwater, faculty adviser, will announce the chief Pasquino staff positions for the coming year at the banquet.

Contest Scheduled

KEYSER, W. Va.—The annual Mineral County Typewriting Contest for classes in the county public schools, will be held Saturday in the Keyser High School.

Two students will be selected from the classes of each school teaching typing, representing the Typing I and II classes in each. The contest will be staged in the typing room starting at 1:15 p. m., DST.

Some appropriate and valuable prizes have been donated by merchants in the county and the typewriter companies in Cumberland, to be awarded winners in the various sections of the contest.

Many Mineral County Teachers Appointed

KEYSER, W. Va.—Many teachers for the 1951-52 school year have been appointed by the Mineral County Board of Education.

However, the position of principal of Keyser High School and a number of other posts will be filled by the board later. The board has let it be known that R. R. Lowe will not be reappointed principal of Keyser High School.

County Superintendent H. L. Idleman said that this post probably will be filled at the regular meeting in June. He added that there is a surplus of teachers this year, with qualified certificates, for the first time in a long period.

Beall High will go after its 7th straight Bi-State win when it plays host to Bruce of Westernport today at 4 p. m. in Westernport.

Other conference games are LaSalle at Barton and Hyndman at Central.

In the Potomac Valley Conference, Keyser winds up its campaign by battling Romney High's Pioneers at Romney. The Hampshire countians hold a 3-1 win over KHS.

Circleville is host to Petersburg's Vikings in another PVC test.

BROOKLYN WINS, 6-1

Brooklyn, May 10 (AP)—Don Newcombe went the route and won his first game in three weeks today as the Brooklyn Dodgers whipped the Chicago Cubs, 6-1, to capture the rubber of their three-game series.

The giant negro righthander al-allowed seven hits. He fanned five and walked two.

Newcombe's teammates supported him with an 11-hit barrage against Cal McLish and Bob Kelly. Gil Hodges' ninth home run of the season, climaxing a three-run rally against loser McLish in the fifth, was the most telling blow. Duke Snider, with three runs batted in via a single and long fly, also contributed to the victory.

The Dodgers' victory in conjunction with the Cardinals' loss to the Giants moved Brooklyn into second place, a game behind the league-leading Boston Braves. Box:

Lavelli Rejected For Fourth Time

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 10 (AP)—Tony Lavelli, holder of Yale's all-time scoring record in basketball and probably close to the holder of the national record for draft examinations—is on his way back to Rio de Janiero, rejected for the fourth time.

For his latest rejection he travelled nearly 5,000 miles-Rio to New Haven-and now he's winging his way south again.

His latest rejection came yesterday. He'll rejoin the College All-Stars of which he is player-coach at Sao Paulo, about 300 miles south of Rio.

Ferrier Leads In Greenbrier Open Tourney

Posts 6-Under-Par 64 For Opening Round

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., May 10 (AP)—Jim Ferrier "didn't feel he was hitting the ball well" today but the white pellet went rolling into the cups for five birdies on the last nine holes to give the San Franciscan the first-round lead in the Greenbrier Open .

Ferrier, second leading money winner on the 1951 pro circuit with $11,254 to his credit, scorched the back nine of the first 18 holes to post a six-under par 64. The course record of 62 is held by Sam Snead, the host pro, who was tied for third with George Fazio of Conshohocken, Pa., and Tony Penna of Cincinnati at 67 each.

Bob Hamilton of Evansville was on the heels of Ferrier with a 65.

Four strokes away from the leader in fourth position were Ben Hogan, the defending titleholder, Dutch Harrison, and Henry Picard.

The scores for 30 pros in the first round of the 72-hole, four-day push ranged up to 75 for Skee Riegel, second in the last Masters to Hogan.

Hogan ripped off a 259, 21 under par to win last year's Greenbrier.

The winning pro at the end of Sunday's round will bank $1,500. In all, a total of $10,000 will be distributed. On Saturday and Sunday, the pros will be joined by amateurs for a pro-amateur contest.

First round leaders were:

GIANTS EDGE CARDS

NEW YORK, May 10 (INS)—The New York Giants scored three runs in the first two innings off rookie Tom Poholsky today and went on to beat the St. Louis Cardinals, 3 to 2, before 6,530 fans at the Polo Grounds.

It was the fourth win in a row for the rebounding Giants who now have copped nine of their last eleven games.

Roger Bowman and Dave Koslo divided the pitching chores for the Giants, allowing the flu-stricken Redbirds seven hits. Box:

BLACKWELL IS VICTOR

BOSTON, May 10 (AP)—Lathe-like Ewell Blackwell snapped a three-game losing streak for the lowly Cincinnati Reds today with an effective seven-hit pitching performance that gave him a 4-1 decision over the top-place Boston Braves.

Blackwell, usually a soft touch for the Tribesmen in their own wigwam, missed a shutout because of an eighth inning miscue by third baseman Grady Hatton.

The latter let an Earl Torgeson pop fly drop for two bases and Sig Gordon followed with a single to left field.

The Reds pounded starter Johnny Sain for all of their runs and nine of their 11 hits before he was yanked for a pinch-hitter in the seventh. Box:

The B. P. O. Elks took the measure of the Outdoor Club, 4-1, and the Cumberland Loyal Order of Moose won over the Knights of Columbus, 4-2, in Rocking Chair Softball League games staged yesterday.

Frank Williams was the hero in the Moose team's victory as he slammed a two-run homer to break a 2-2 deadlock in the 6th frame. A sensational catch by Walt Davis in short field when two Knights aboard in the 6th was the fielding gem Williams and Bob Wade of the Moose and Jim Browning and Benny LaNeve of the K. of C. had two hits each.

The Elks won their game with O.D.C. by scoring all their runs in the first inning on five hits, including a homer by Junior Hardy.

Hardy also got a double while Bruce Mackey and Bill Underdonk had a two-bagger and single each.

The Elks executed three double plays in the first three innings. Hardy started two of the twin killings and handled eight chances at short in flawless style.

Jones had two singles for O.D.C., which scored its lone run in the 7th on two singles and an overthrow at first base.

The Eagles are reported to have defeated the Amvets 9-3. No details were available. Scores:

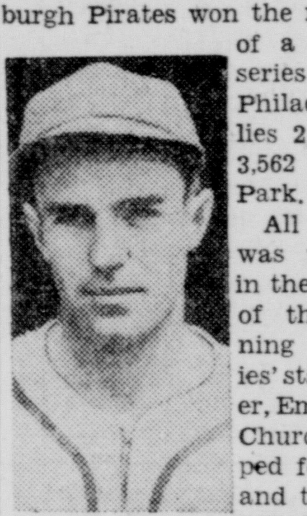
Dickson Hurls Four-Hitter, Blanks Phils

Pittsburgh Defeats Bubba Church, 2-0



Murry Dickson

PHILADELPHIA, May 10—Murray Dickson pitched a four-hit shutout today as the surprising Pittsburgh Pirates won the rubber game of a three game series from the Philadelphia Phillies 2 to 0 before 3,562 at Shibe Park.

All the scoring was wrapped up in the Pirates' half of the sixth inning when Phillies' starting pitcher, Emory (Bubba) Church was rapped for three hits and two runs.

Ted Beard started the sixth with a single and scored on a right field double by George Metkovich. Metkovich was out at third trying to stretch the hit.

Gus Bell accounted for the other run with a mighty blast over the right center field scorboard for his third home run of the season.

Dickson hurled a masterful game, only five balls being hit out of the infield. First sacker Ralph Kiner was credited with 18 putouts as Dickson kept the National League champions hitting into the ground to record his fourth victory against one defeat. It was the second loss for Church who has won two.

The Phillies lost more than the ball game. The Pirates' Wally Westlake smacked into Catcher Del Wilber in a play at the plate. Wilber was knocked unconscious, suffered a deep cut under his right eye and across the nose. Several stitches were required to close the cut under the eye.

Third string catcher Ken Silvestri took over. First string catcher Andy Seminick is still resting at home after being hit in the head by a pitched ball against St. Louis. Box:

All Tracks Expected To Abide By Ruling Made In Maryland

Baltimorean Accused Of Betting Against Horse He Was Riding

BALTIMORE, May 10 (AP) — Jockey Robert J. Martin today was banned from racing for 10 years for betting against the horse he was riding.

The Maryland Racing Commission handed down the order after an all-day session. Although the ban covers only Maryland tracks, all other tracks by custom abide by such rulings.

Martin, 23-year-old Baltimorean, was accused specifically of betting $300 on Shine On in the first race at Laurel April 10. Martin was up on Librab. Shine On came in third, and Martin's mount finished second.

Set Down 26 Times

Martin, who has been set down 26 times for various infractions since he started racing six years ago, denied the charge.

Commission Chairman H. Courtenay Jenifer asked the jockey who would have won the race if Shine On and Librab were going for the wire and the actual winner, Infaith, were running third.

The little jockey replied he wouldn't have "pulled" his horse.

One of the key witnesses at the hearing was an agent of the Thoroughbred Racing and Protective Bureau, John F. Loome. He testified he overheard Martin bet against his mount on the day of the race.

Loome said the wager was telephoned from a Baltimore hotel, where he occupied a room next to Martin's.

The agent said he heard Martin place phone calls to National 5460 in Washington and to phone number 333 in Bellevernon, Pa.

He gave the details of the Pennsylvania call, only, saying he determined by subsequent investigation that the man Martin talked to at that number was Dominick Anzalone.

Loome identified Anzalone as a gambler and fruit dealer "with a criminal record." He said Anzalone was the subject of a magazine (Collier's) article Nov. 11, 1950, entitled "Something Is Rotten In Pennsylvania."

Wanted To Bet $300

Loome testified he heard Martin say over the telephone, "I want to bet $300 on Shine On in the first race.

"No, I don't ride him, but I've got a good tip on him."

Loome said Martin also wanted a bet of $300 on "Teddie's Imp" in the seventh. Later testimony indicated that Shine On finished third behind Librab, the horse Martin rode in that race, and another

Beall High will go after its 7th straight Bi-State win when it plays host to Bruce of Westernport today at 4 p. m. in Westernport.

Other conference games are LaSalle at Barton and Hyndman at Central.

In the Potomac Valley Conference, Keyser winds up its campaign by battling Romney High's Pioneers at Romney. The Hampshire countians hold a 3-1 win over KHS.

Circleville is host to Petersburg's Vikings in another PVC test.

BROOKLYN WINS, 6-1

Brooklyn, May 10 (AP)—Don Newcombe went the route and won his first game in three weeks today as the Brooklyn Dodgers whipped the Chicago Cubs, 6-1, to capture the rubber of their three-game series.

The giant negro righthander allowed seven hits. He fanned five and walked two.

Newcombe's teammates supported him with an 11-hit barrage against Cal McLish and Bob Kelly. Gil Hodges' ninth home run of the season, climaxing a three-run rally against loser McLish in the fifth, was the most telling blow. Duke Snider, with three runs batted in via a single and long fly, also contributed to the victory.

The Dodgers' victory in conjunction with the Cardinals' loss to the Giants moved Brooklyn into second place, a game behind the league-leading Boston Braves. Box:

Lavelli Rejected For Fourth Time

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 10 (AP)—Tony Lavelli, holder of Yale's all-time scoring record in basketball and probably close to the holder of the national record for draft examinations—is on his way back to Rio de Janiero, rejected for the fourth time.

For his latest rejection he traveled nearly 5,000 miles-Rio to New Haven-and now he's winging his way south again.

His latest rejection came yesterday. He'll rejoin the College All-Stars of which he is player-coach at Sao Paulo, about 300 miles south of Rio.

Ferrier Leads In Greenbrier Open Tourney

Posts 6-Under-Par 64 For Opening Round

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., May 10 (AP)—Jim Ferrier "didn't feel he was hitting the ball well" today but the white pellet went rolling into the cups for five birdies on the last nine holes to give the San Franciscan the first-round lead in the Greenbrier Open .

Ferrier, second leading money winner on the 1951 pro circuit with $11,254 to his credit, scorched the back nine of the first 18 holes to post a six-under par 64. The course record of 62 is held by Sam Snead, the host pro, who was tied for third with George Fazio of Conshohocken, Pa., and Tony Penna of Cincinnati at 67 each.

Bob Hamilton of Evansville was on the heels of Ferrier with a 65.

Four strokes away from the leader in fourth position were Ben Hogan, the defending titleholder, Dutch Harrison, and Henry Picard.

The scores for 30 pros in the first round of the 72-hole, four-day push ranged up to 75 for Skee Riegel, second in the last Masters to Hogan.

Hogan ripped off a 259, 21 under par to win last year's Greenbrier.

The winning pro at the end of Sunday's round will bank $1,500. In all, a total of $10,000 will be distributed. On Saturday and Sunday, the pros will be joined by amateurs for a pro-amateur contest.

First round leaders were:

Jim Ferrier, 33-31—64
Bob Hamilton, 33-32—65
Toney Penna, 34-33—67

GIANTS EDGE CARDS

NEW YORK, May 10 (INS)—The New York Giants scored three runs in the first two innings off rookie Tom Poholsky today and went on to beat the St. Louis Cardinals, 3 to 2, before 6,530 fans at the Polo Grounds.

It was the fourth win in a row for the rebounding Giants who now have copped nine of their last eleven games.

Roger Bowman and Dave Koslo divided the pitching chores for the Giants, allowing the flu-stricken Redbirds seven hits. Box:

BLACKWELL IS VICTOR

BOSTON, May 10 (AP)—Lathe-like Ewell Blackwell snapped a three-game losing streak for the lowly Cincinnati Reds today with an effective seven-hit pitching performance that gave him a 4-1 decision over the top-place Boston Braves.

Blackwell, usually a soft touch for the Tribesmen in their own wigwam, missed a shutout because of an eighth inning miscue by third baseman Grady Hatton.

The latter let an Earl Torgeson pop fly drop for two bases and Sig Gordon followed with a single to left field.

The Reds pounded starter Johnny Sain for all of their runs and nine of their 11 hits before he was yanked for a pinch-hitter in the seventh. Box:

The B. P. O. Elks took the measure of the Outdoor Club, 4-1, and the Cumberland Loyal Order of Moose won over the Knights of Columbus, 4-2, in Rocking Chair Softball League games staged yesterday.

Frank Williams was the hero in the Moose team's victory as he slammed a two-run homer to break a 2-2 deadlock in the 6th frame. A sensational catch by Walt Davis in short field when two Knights aboard in the 6th was the fielding gem Williams and Bob Wade of the Moose and Jim Browning and Benny LaNeve of the K. of C. had two hits each.

The Elks won their game with O.D.C. by scoring all their runs in the first inning on five hits, including a homer by Junior Hardy.

Hardy also got a double while Bruce Mackey and Bill Underdonk had a two-bagger and single each.

The Elks executed three double plays in the first three innings. Hardy started two of the twin killings and handled eight chances at short in flawless style.

Jones had two singles for O.D.C., which scored its lone run in the 7th on two singles and an overthrow at first base.

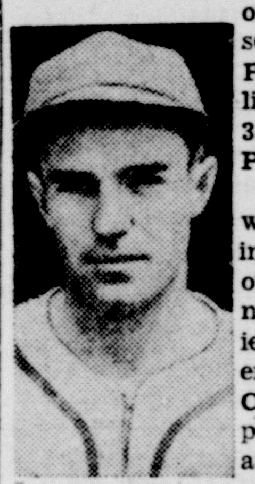
Dickson Hurls Four-Hitter, Blanks Phils

Pittsburgh Defeats Bubba Church, 2-0



Murry Dickson

PHILADELPHIA, May 10—Murray Dickson pitched a four-hit shutout today as the surprising Pittsburgh Pirates won the rubber game of a three game series from the Philadelphia Phillies 2 to 0 before 3,562 at Shibe Park.

All the scoring was wrapped up in the Pirates' half of the sixth inning when Phillies' starting pitcher, Emory (Bubba) Church was rapped for three hits and two runs.

Ted Beard started the sixth with a single and scored on a right field double by George Metkovich. Metkovich was out at third trying to stretch the hit.

Gus Bell accounted for the other run with a mighty blast over the right center field scorboard for his third home run of the season.

Dickson hurled a masterful game, only five balls being hit out of the infield. First sacker Ralph Kiner was credited with 18 putouts as Dickson kept the National League champions hitting into the ground to record his fourth victory against one defeat. It was the second loss for Church who has won two.

The Phillies lost more than the ball game. The Pirates' Wally Westlake smacked into Catcher Del Wilber in a play at the plate. Wilber was knocked unconscious, suffered a deep cut under his right eye and across the nose. Several stitches were required to close the cut under the eye.

Third string catcher Ken Silvestri took over. First string catcher Andy Seminick is still resting at home after being hit in the head by a pitched ball against St. Louis. Box:

All Tracks Expected To Abide By Ruling Made In Maryland

Baltimorean Accused Of Betting Against Horse He Was Riding

BALTIMORE, May 10 (AP) — Jockey Robert J. Martin today was banned from racing for 10 years for betting against the horse he was riding.

The Maryland Racing Commission handed down the order after an all-day session. Although the ban covers only Maryland tracks, all other tracks by custom abide by such rulings.

Martin, 23-year-old Baltimorean, was accused specifically of betting $300 on Shine On in the first race at Laurel/April 10. Martin was up on Librab. Shine On came in third, and Martin's mount finished second.

Set Down 26 Times

Martin, who has been set down 26 times for various infractions since he started racing six years ago, denied the charge.

Commission Chairman H. Courtenay Jenifer asked the jockey who would have won the race if Shine On and Librab were going for the wire and the actual winner, Infaith, were running third.

The little jockey replied he wouldn't have "pulled" his horse.

One of the key witnesses at the hearing was an agent of the Thoroughbred Racing and Protective Bureau, John F. Loome. He testified he overheard Martin bet against his mount on the day of the race.

Loome said the wager was telephoned from a Baltimore hotel, where he occupied a room next to Martin's.

The agent said he heard Martin place phone calls to National 5460 in Washington and to phone number 333 in Bellevernon, Pa.

He gave the details of the Pennsylvania call, only, saying he determined by subsequent investigation that the man Martin talked to at that number was Dominick Anzalone.

Loome identified Anzalone as a gambler and fruit dealer "with a criminal record." He said Anzalone was the subject of a magazine (Collier's) article Nov. 11, 1950, entitled "Something Is Rotten In Pennsylvania."

Wanted To Bet $300

Loome testified he heard Martin say over the telephone, "I want to bet $300 on Shine On in the first race.

"No, I don't ride him, but I've got a good tip on him."

Loome said Martin also wanted a bet of $300 on "Teddie's Imp" in the seventh. Later testimony indicated that Shine On finished third behind Librab, the horse Martin rode in that race, and another

A's And Tribe Trade Players

Chapman Swapped For Clark, Klein

PHILADELPHIA, May 10 (AP) — The Philadelphia Athletics took another step today to bolster their sagging baseball fortunes, swapping veteran centerfielder Sam Chapman to the Cleveland Indians for Outfielder Allie Clark and Infielder Lou Klein.

Chapman, long a favorite with A's fans and players alike, has been a fixture in centerfield. General Manager Art Ehlers, who announced the trade, admitted the A's "hate to part with Sam but we're doing everything we can to bolster the club."

That the Athletics need help is evidenced by their current last-place tie with the St. Louis Browns in the American League. That they're trying to improve is evidenced by the fact this is the club's second major trade in less than two weeks.

Chapman, former University of California football star, is 35. He came to the A's fresh from the college campus in 1938, recommended by Ty Cobb as a "natural hitter." For a couple seasons he lived up to advance billing, roling up a .322 batting average, 25 homers and 106 runs batted in for 1941.

Then he went to the navy, was out of baseball for nearly four seasons while he became a fighter plane pilot. After he came back he never regained his pre-war power, could hit only .251 last season and had a dismal .169 average for 1951 to date. Most of the time he has been No. 4 in the A's batting lineup.

Both Clark and Klein are younger. Allie, 27, played one season with the New York Yankees before being traded to Cleveland in 1947. Last year he hit .215 in 59 games.

Kline, 32, was one of the Mexican League "jumpers" who left the St. Louis Cardinals in 1946. He was reinstated in 1949, then traded to Cincinnati Reds and came up to Cleveland from Los Angeles where he hit .332 last year.

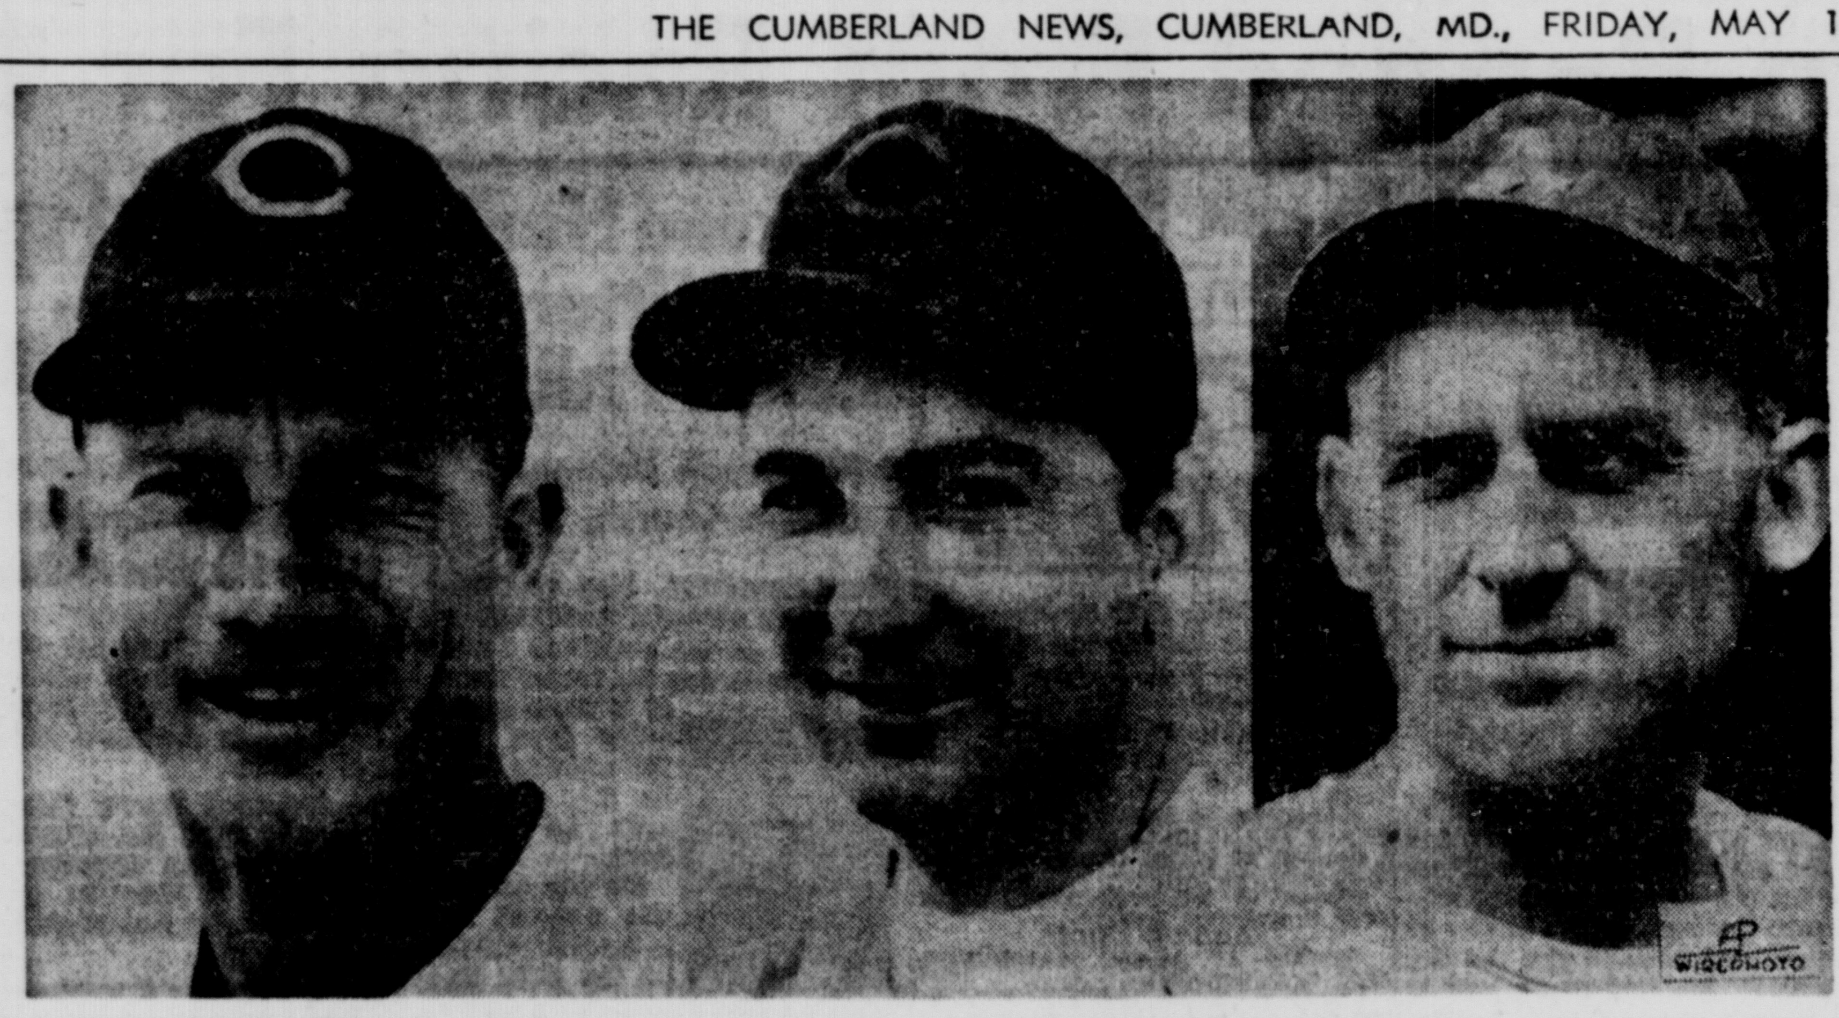

FIGURE IN MAJOR LEAGUE TRADE — Veteran Philadelphia Athletics' outfielder Sam Chapman (right) was traded to the Cleveland Indians yesterday for outfielder Allie Clark (center) and reserve infielder Lou (Chuck) Klein. Athletics' General manager Art Ehlers said it was a straight player transaction, with no cash involved.

Pen-Mar League Schedules Three Games Saturday

Three Pen-Mar Baseball League games that were washed out by rain have been rescheduled for Saturday at 3:30 p. m.

Barrelville plays at Ellerslie, Klondyke at Wellersburg and Zihlman at Mt. Savage.

Kenneth Robertson, secretary-treasurer of the league, announces that five players have been added to the league's list of eligibles.

Eckhart has signed Enardo Arnone, Ellerslie had added Curtis R. Stahlman to its roster and Barrelville has received signed contracts from William Buser, Donald Buser and Robert Yonker.

During the 1913 season Walter Johnson of Washington hiurled 56 consecutive scoreless innings. That record stands today.

West Virginia U. Cops Double Bill

WILLIAMSBURG, Va., May 10 (AP) — West Virginia University's baseball team swept past William and Mary in a doubleheader here today, 10-1 and 5-1, on the stellar pitching of Dick Leposky and Dick Morgan.

Leposky limited the Indians to two hits in the seven-inning opener while Morgan yielded only three safeties in the afterpiece.

The wins were West Virginia's seventh and eighth of the season in Southern Conference Northern Division play and gave the Mountaineers an 8-4 record in the circuit. William and Mary, which has won only three games all year, lost its 15th and 16th contests. Scores:

FIRST GAME

WEST VIRGINIA ...	102 110 5—10	10	0
WM. & MARY	000 000 1— 1	2	4

Arcaro Will Ride Bold In Preakness

BALTIMORE, May 10 (AP)—Jockey Eddie Arcaro signed up today to ride Bold in The Preakness, and thereby hangs a tale—or maybe two or three.

First, it means that Brookmeade Stable and Eddie think Bold is a good bet in next week's $75,000-added classic.

Second, it means that Joe Culmone apparently is out of favor with Brookmeade which holds his contract. Culmone has been in a slump since his great year of 1950 when he tied the all-time record of 388 winners.

Third, it indicates that Cain Hoy Stable's Battle Morn, beaten favorite in the Derby, won't be running for the black-eyed susans. Battle Morn, ridden by Arcaro in the Derby, was injured in that race.

Bold, 3-year-old son of By Jimminy, easily won his 1951 debut yesterday in the $3,500 Jacobus Purse at a mile and a sixteenth by 12 lengths.

Walker Cup Tests Open

U. S., British Play Three Matches Today

BIRKDALE, Eng., May 10 (INS)—United States golfers, seeking their 12th victory in 13 Walker Cup matches with England, expected tonight to make off with three of tomorrow's four scotch foursomes.

Such a performance — equalling that of a year ago—would give Americans an overwhelming l[illegible] going into Saturday's eight singles matches with Britain's best amateur linksmen.

Only Willie Turnesa of White Plains, N. Y., neophyte captain of the Americans, and U. S. amateur champion Sam Urzetta of Rochester will be underdogs in the opening test.

Turnesa, 37-year-old former British and U. S. champion, and the 25-year-old Urzetta, a newcomer to International play, will face Britain's strongest pair, Irish Jim Bruen and former pro John Morgan, a Welshman.

Other pairings are:

Defending British amateur champion Frank Stranahan of Toledo, O., and Bill Campbell of Huntington, W. Va., vs. Ronnie White and Joe Carr, only British pair to win a scotch foursome last year.

Former U. S. Champion Charley Coe of Oklahoma City and Jim McHale of Philadelphia vs. Cecile Ewing and John Langley.

Dick Chapman of Pinehurst, N. C., former U. S. titlist and 1950 British runner-up, and Bob Knowles of Boston vs. Ian Caldwell and Alex Kyle.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Sealed bids will be received at the office of the City Clerk, City Hall, Cumberland, Maryland, until 12 o'clock noon, E.D.S.T., May 28, 1951, for one (1) ELECTRA-MATIC SPEEDMETER for use in the Police Department.

The bidder shall specify the earliest delivery date.

The Mayor and City Council reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

A's And Tribe Trade Players

Chapman Swapped For Clark, Klein

PHILADELPHIA, May 10 (AP) — The Philadelphia Athletics took another step today to bolster their sagging baseball fortunes, swapping veteran centerfielder Sam Chapman to the Cleveland Indians for Outfielder Allie Clark and Infielder Lou Klein.

Chapman, long a favorite with A's fans and players alike, has been a fixture in centerfield. General Manager Art Ehlers, who announced the trade, admitted the A's "hate to part with Sam but we're doing everything we can to bolster the club."

That the Athletics need help is evidenced by their current last-place tie with the St. Louis Browns in the American League. That they're trying to improve is evidenced by the fact this is the club's second major trade in less than two weeks.

Chapman, former University of California football star, is 35. He came to the A's fresh from the college campus in 1938, recommended by Ty Cobb as a "natural hitter." For a couple seasons he lived up to advance billing, roling up a .322 batting average, 25 homers and 106 runs batted in for 1941.

After he came back he never regained his pre-war power, could hit only .251 last season and had a dismal .169 average for 1951 to date. Most of the time he has been No. 4 in the A's batting lineup.

Both Clark and Klein are younger. Allie, 27, played one season with the New York Yankees before being traded to Cleveland in 1947. Last year he hit .215 in 59 games.

Kline, 32, was one of the Mexican League "jumpers" who left the St. Louis Cardinals in 1946. He was reinstated in 1949, then traded to Cincinnati Reds and came up to Cleveland from Los Angeles where he hit .332 last year.

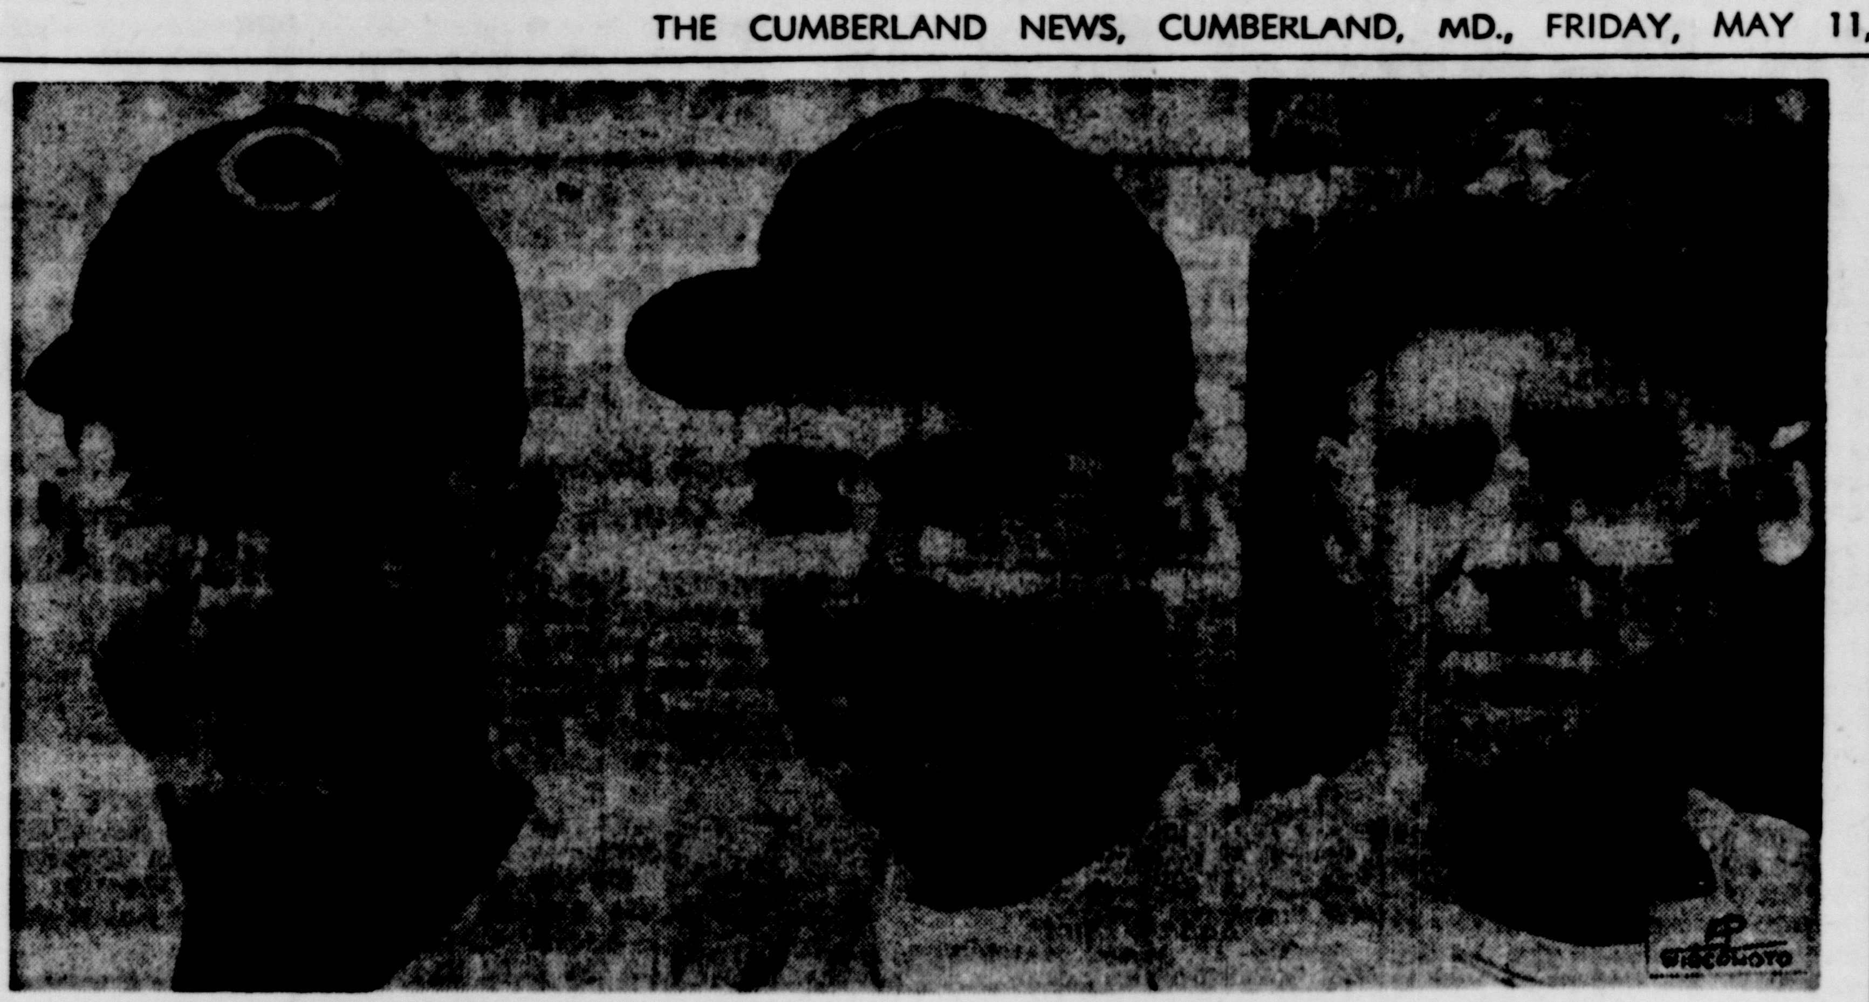

FIGURE IN MAJOR LEAGUE TRADE — Veteran Philadelphia Athletics' outfielder Sam Chapman (right) was traded to the Cleveland Indians yesterday for outfielder Allie Clark (center) and reserve infielder Lou (Chuck) Klein. Athletics' General manager Art Ehlers said it was a straight player transaction, with no cash involved.

Pen-Mar League Schedules Three Games Saturday

Three Pen-Mar Baseball League games that were washed out by rain have been rescheduled for Saturday at 3:30 p. m.

Barrelville plays at Ellerslie, Klondyke at Wellersburg and Zihlman at Mt. Savage.

Kenneth Robertson, secretary-treasurer of the league, announces that five players have been added to the league's list of eligibles.

Eckhart has signed Enardo Arnone, Ellerslie had added Curtis R. Stahlman to its roster and Barrelville has received signed contracts from William Buser, Donald Buser and Robert Yonker.

During the 1913 season Walter Johnson of Washington hiurled 56 consecutive scoreless innings. That record stands today.

West Virginia U. Cops Double Bill

WILLIAMSBURG, Va., May 10 (AP) — West Virginia University's baseball team swept past William and Mary in a doubleheader here today, 10-1 and 5-1, on the stellar pitching of Dick Leposky and Dick Morgan.

Leposky limited the Indians to two hits in the seven-inning opener while Morgan yielded only three safeties in the afterpiece.

The wins were West Virginia's seventh and eighth of the season in Southern Conference Northern Division play and gave the Mountaineers an 8-4 record in the circuit. William and Mary, which has won only three games all year, lost its 15th and 16th contests. Scores:

FIRST GAME

WEST VIRGINIA ... 102 110 5—10 10 0
WM. & MARY ...... 000 000 1—1 2 4

Leposky and Cooper, Wellington. Hersey and Aubin.

SECOND GAME

WEST VIRGINIA .... 020 200 1—5 7 1
WM. & MARY .... 010 000 0—1 3 2

Morgan and Wellington. Carter and Yewcic.

Walker Cup Tests Open

U. S., British Play Three Matches Today

BIRKDALE, Eng., May 10 (INS)—United States golfers, seeking their 12th victory in 13 Walker Cup matches with England, expected tonight to make off with three of tomorrow's four scotch foursomes.

Such a performance — equalling that of a year ago—would give Americans an overwhelming lead going into Saturday's eight singles matches with Britain's best amateur linksmen.

Only Willie Turnesa of White Plains, N. Y., neophyte captain of the Americans, and U. S. amateur champion Sam Urzetta of Rochester will be underdogs in the opening test.

Turnesa, 37-year-old former British and U. S. champion, and the 25-year-old Urzetta, a newcomer to International play, will face Britain's strongest pair, Irish Jim Bruen and former pro John Morgan, a Welshman.

Other pairings are:

Defending British amateur champion Frank Stranahan of Toledo, O., and Bill Campbell of Huntington, W. Va., vs. Ronnie White and Joe Carr, only British pair to win a scotch foursome last year.

Former U. S. Champion Charley Coe of Oklahoma City and Jim McHale of Philadelphia vs. Cecile Ewing and John Langley.

Dick Chapman of Pinehurst, N. C., former U. S. titlist and 1950 British runner-up, and Bob Knowles of Boston vs. Ian Caldwell and Alex Kyle.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Sealed bids will be received at the office of the City Clerk, City Hall, Cumberland, Maryland, until 12 o'clock noon, E.D.S.T., May 28, 1951, for one (1) ELECTRA-MATIC SPEEDOMETER for use in the Police Department.

The bidder shall specify the earliest delivery date.

The Mayor and City Council reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD
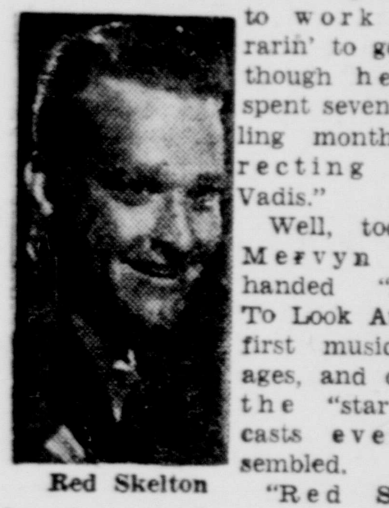
By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, May 10—(INS)—When I had dinner with Mervyn Leroy the other night he didn't know what his next picture would be at MGM. But he was eager to get to work again rarin' to go even though he had spent seven grueling months directing "Quo Vadis."



Red Skelton

Well, today—Mervyn was handed "Lovely To Look At," his first musical in ages, and one of the "star-iest" casts ever assembled.

"Red Skelton has been added to the lineup," Mervyn told me enthusiatically. "Some setup—with Kathryn Grayson, Howard Keel, Marge and Gower Champion and Adrian designing the gowns."

As the picture doesn't start until June—Red Skelton will still have time to keep his date at the London Palladium.

That Don Taylor is certainly in demand. When he finishes "The Blue Veil" he reports to Anson Bond for "East Is East."

Again Don, who was so good in "Father Of The Bride" and "Father's Little Dividend," plays a young husband. This time he is a GI who marries a Japanese girl who will be beautiful Shirley Yamaguchi—maybe.

I say that because when the Japanese actress was here several months ago she used up all her time on her alien visa. To get back requires a special permit from the government.

King Vidor, who will direct, and Anson are hopeful it can be arranged and they will get Shirley for their modern 'Madame Butterfly."

No news travels like theatrical news—that's why I heard, I suppose, that Irving Berlin is coming to Hollywood before long to close a deal with 20th Century-Fox for three musicals.

I hear, through the grapevine that one of these musicals will be based on his song, "No Business Like Show Business," which is one of the great titles of all time.

Maybe you're asking how our popular composer can sell the title of "No Business Like Show Business" when Betty Hutton sang it so recently in "Annie Get Your Gun?" The reason is that Irving made a deal with MGM for all his songs to revert back to him after a certain time, and "No Business Like Show Business" will be his property in a year and nine months.

Chatter in Hollywood:

Ella Raines, in town for a few days to rent her house, tells me she is very unhappy over the reports that she has had trouble with her husband, Commander Robin Olds.

"Robin is on wartime bases," she said: "He's in Pittsburgh in charge of the jet combat planes, and at 28 he's a commander, which I think is terrific.

"We can only see each other weekends since all of his time during the week is spent on the Navy project. Don't you think it's unfair for people to say we've had trouble when we love each other and he is working for the government?"

I certainly do.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Joan Crawford, back from a whirl in New York, is in bed with a bad cold.

Gale Storm and her husband Anita Louise and Buddy Adler, and the Donald O'Connors among the ringsiders.

What's this with Jimmy Cross and Sally Haines? They were glimpsed at the Mocambo two nights in a row.

Mary Pickford telephones to say hail and farewell. She left today (or planned to) for the east. She's due in my former hometown, Chicago, May 11, to open the campaign to raise $250,000 for the support of European war orphans.

From London comes word that Prince Philip with a stag party, attended Bob Hope's closing night.

Dr. Ralph Bunche left for New York for a conference with the U. N. He's a good friend of the motion picture industry and was guest of honor several weeks ago at an important dinner given him at the new Romanoff's at which Averell Harriman was the chief speaker.

The frequent conferences of Grad Sears, former U. A. head, with Joe Moscowitz, of 20th, in New York, bring rumors that Grad may be going with 20th.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Keyser Rotarians Hold Open Forum

KEYSER, W. Va.—An open forum was held by the Keyser Rotary Club in the Odd Fellows Hall a recent evening, following a dinner at which 25 local Rotarians participated.

The forum was held at the request of Rotary International, with the Keyser Club being selected as one of four clubs in the district to present such a meeting.

David G. Nuzum, moderator, led a lively discussion of club service. Kirkland S. McKee discussed "Young Men Needed," James H. Swadley, Jr., "Attendance Regulations," and Kenna Burke "Getting Acquainted with Rotary." "Public Relations" was the subject of a talk by Rev. John C. B. McLaughlin and Calvin McCoole spoke on "How to Inform New Members." Clyde Gardner discussed "Membership and Classification."

Kid Gloves

IN our 'dobe hut on East 72nd Street, we still use coal-oil lamps and scratch matches on our pants, so naturally we don't have any television.

We have rich friends with television, though, and by means of the daily papers—delivered, naturally, by a man in a coonskin cap—we keep track of what's going on the various channels so we can pack the baby in his butcher-basket and go over and visit them at television time when something decent is on.

By something decent I mean Jimmy Durante, Sam Levenson, or, best of all, "Kid Gloves." This last is a television program goes on Saturday nights 6:30 CBS-TV and it is the only fights a person can rely on, strictly on the level, everybody trying, no cook-up by the gonophs that hang around Madison Square Garden (no offense meant to Harry Markson, the honest entrepreneur, who is not a gonoph and therefore stands out like a sore thumb, meaning no offense).

In "Kid Gloves" bruisers aged three and one-half to ten or so go at each other with big padded gloves with such fury that hell wouldn't have it.

My wife and I always come near busting up over this wonderful program. She says is isn't wonderful. She says it is cruel. Sometimes I think my wife doesn't have all her marbles, she's out of her head, but she has other qualities which endear her to me and we won't go into them at this time.

"What's cruel about it, for God's sake?" I keep asking when we are on our way home again from the rich friend's house with the television in it. "What's cruel about it, for God's sake."

"Making those poor little babies fight each other like that," she usually says. "That what's cruel about it."

"There you go, getting all maudlin about babies again," I usually say. "Those kids are pretty near four years old, some of them, and if you had your way they'd still be dawdling around the house, sponging on the old folks, instead of being out manfully trying to learn a trade that will serve them in good stead, as I always say, later on in life."

"Making those poor kids hit each other and hold back the tears when they get hit!" she says, ignoring pure logic the way women always do.

"Did you ever see Marauder McManus, the three-year-old assassin, holding back a tear?" I throw at her. "You certainly didn't. The Marauder hasn't got a teardrop in him! And tonight, just to refresh your memory, Don (The Fiend) Finan was as far from tears as a man can get. Cut out that maudlin nonsense. The kids are crazy about it themselves, you spoilsport!"

Granting that the man who gives the spiel on "Kid Gloves," a man named Ox Something-or-Other, throws a horrid heap of mullarkey, this is a heartening show, enough to make me go out and hock my racing-binoculars to buy a television—almost. (I still have the binoculars).

Take a couple weeks ago one Saturday night. The main go, as far as I'm concerned, was Don The Fiend Finan, three-and-a-half, weighing thirty-five pounds, wearing cerise trunks, versus Jim The Motor McFarlane, same age, same weight. These boys were hot. The referee gave them their instructions and expected them to go back into their corners and wait for the bell. He expected wrong. No sooner was the last syllable out of his learned mouth than Zingo! The Fiend and The Motor started swinging. It was like Louis coming out for the first round in the second fight against Schmeling (the only time Louis was ever angry with an opponent; he kayoed the German in the first round). The Motor was true to his name, a human dynamo, never stopped going. The Fiend was a miniature Harry Greb, with a complete knowledge of every trick in the book. In our house, or, strictly speaking, the house we were using for television purposes, pandemonium reigned. The end was a draw and nobody booed. The boys stepped up to the mike and there was none of this "Hello Mom" hooey; these fighters are always beyond that cheap sentimentality. They simply stepped up to the mike, with expressions that said "Thank God my record isn't marred. A draw is nothing against a man."

"Who do you think would win between Dempsey and Louis?" the announcer asked The Fiend.

The Fiend pondered a moment, no doubt discounting a lot of stuff he had heard about these two fighters as only hearsay, since they were before his time.

"Dempsey," he said, succinctly.

"How about you, Motor, who do you think would win?" the announcer asked Jim The Motor McFarlane.

"Dempsey," he said, between rubbing his undeviated nasal septum with a brawny boxing-glove.

"Why?" the announcer pressed.

The Motor meditated.

"Because he sure would," he said.

No arguing with a guy who can say that. I don't want to argue with him anyway. The Motor's a tough baby, thanks be to God and never mind what my wife says about "Kid Gloves," it's a swell show.

Shifter Jumps Track At Frederick Street

The rear trucks on the tender of a B. and O. Railroad switch engine jumped the tracks at the Frederick Street crossing yesterday.

Traffic was held up for about an hour during noon time as a railroad crane lifted the tender back on the tracks.

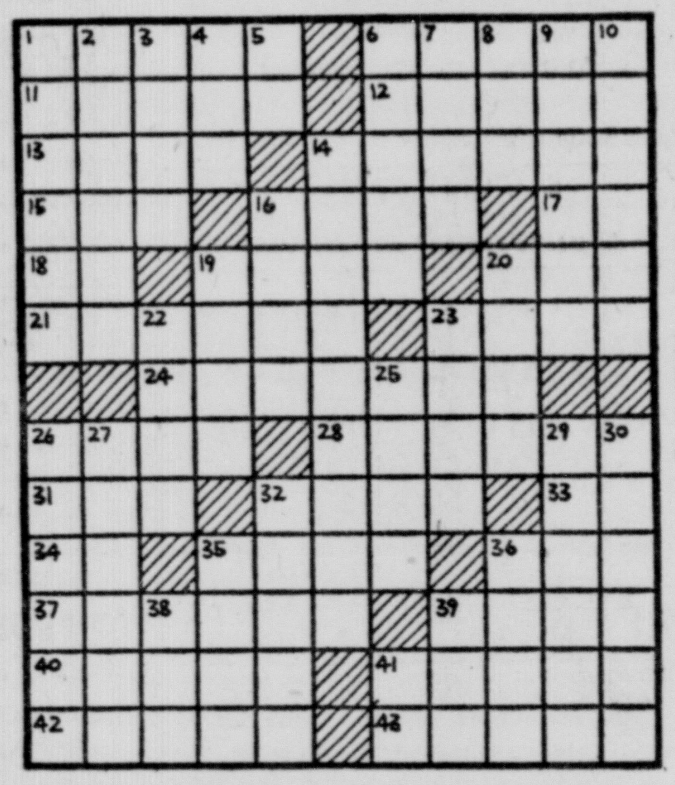
Yesterday's Answer



DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Shifter Jumps Track At Frederick Street

The rear trucks on the tender of a B. and O. Railroad switch engine jumped the tracks at the Frederick Street crossing yesterday.

Traffic was held up for about an hour during noon time as a railroad crane lifted the tender back on the tracks.

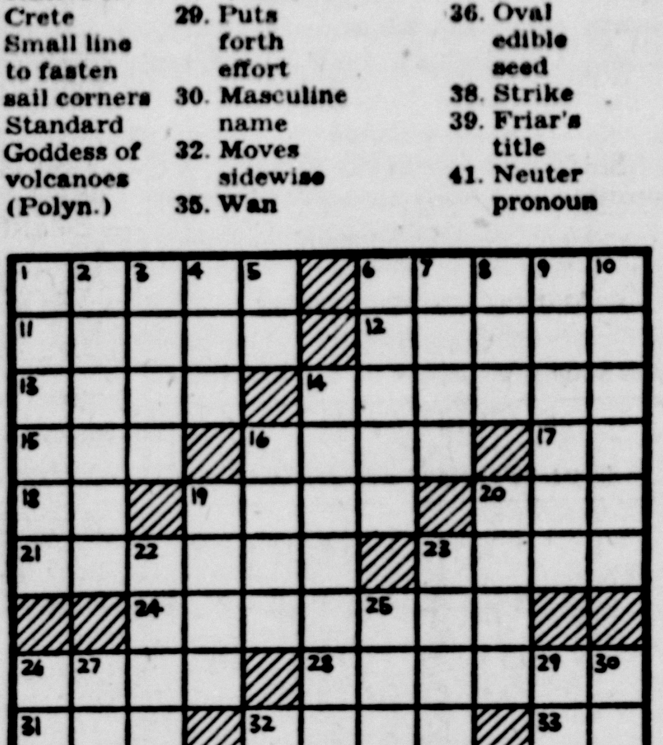
Yesterday's Answer



DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

W A H F K Q Y F F D C V U N A C F H W A P D N F
X K L H F X K Q A, Y X K K C Y F X U E F W T C, N A E K C O Q U N F C F D C H Q A — V X V C.

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: HIGH MINDS OF NATIVE PRIDE AND FORCE, MOST DEEPLY FEEL THY PANGS, REMORSE! —SCOTT.

ORDINANCE NO. 1902

AN ORDINANCE OF THE MAYOR AND CITY COUNCIL OF CUMBERLAND, MARYLAND, ENTITLED, "AN ORDINANCE TO PLACE AN ADMISSIONS TAX OF FIVE CENTS ($.05) PER PERSON UPON ALL ADULT PERSONS ATTENDING RECREATIONAL EVENTS, SHOWS OR ENTERTAINMENTS WITHIN THE CITY OF CUMBERLAND, AND TO PROVIDE FOR THE COLLECTION OF THE SAME THROUGH ANY PERSON, FIRM, CORPORATION OR ORGANIZATION CONDUCTING SAID RECREATIONAL EVENTS, SHOWS OR ENTERTAINMENTS."

SECTION 1. BE IT ORDAINED BY THE MAYOR AND CITY COUNCIL OF CUMBERLAND, That from and after the 15th day of May, 1951, there shall be charged and collected the sum of five cents ($.05) as an admissions tax for each adult person attending any recreational event, show or entertainment held by any person, firm, corporation or organization lawfully entitled to conduct the same within the limits of the City of Cumberland.

SECTION 2. AND BE IT FURTHER ORDAINED, That each person, firm, corporation or organization conducting a recreational event, show or entertainment within the City of Cumberland, shall be and is hereby required to provide suitable admission tickets which shall be serially numbered and in roll form, perforated so that each ticket may be detached and containing the name of the person, firm, corporation or organization conducting said recreational event, show or entertainment. Said person, firm, corporation or organization shall collect from each adult person applying for admission to a recreational event, show or entertainment, the admissions tax hereinbefore set forth and shall detach one ticket for each adult person so admitted, and said ticket shall be immediately torn in two and the serial number thereof shall be preserved and held for the examination of the City Clerk, if he shall so require. Each roll of tickets, together with the serial numbers thereof, shall be registered before the use thereof with the City Clerk, and it shall be unlawful for any person, firm, corporation or organization to reissue or reuse any of said tickets after the same has been issued.

(b) Each person, firm, corporation or organization shall be and is hereby required to remit to the City Clerk for the use of the City, all sums of money collected for said admissions tax, and said remittance shall be made twice in each month, namely, upon the 15th day of the month and the last day of the month; provided that, if the said 15th or last day of the month shall fall upon a Sunday or holiday, then on the next succeeding business day, and said remittances shall be accompanied by a statement sworn to by the proper officer of the person, firm, corporation or organization making the remittance and setting forth the number of tickets sold during the period and giving the number of the first ticket sold for said period and the number of the last ticket sold for said period. Said sums of money when received by the City Clerk shall be properly receipted for by him and deposited with the City Treasurer.

(c) No admissions tax shall be charged and collected on tickets sold by any motion picture theatre or for any lecture on scientific, historical, benevolent, artistic, religious, educational, political or literary subjects and apparatus for the elucidation of the same.

(d) Said sums derived from the aforesaid charges shall be kept and maintained in a separate fund by the City Treasurer and distributed and paid over to the Recreational Program Director of the City, in addition to such funds as may be appropriated from time to time from the General Fund of the City for the Recreation Department.

SECTION 3. AND BE IT FURTHER ORDAINED, That any person, firm, corporation or organization violating any provision of this ordinance, shall upon conviction thereof, be fined not less than Fifty Dollars ($50.00) nor more than One Hundred Dollars ($100.00) for each offense.

Passed this 7th day of May, 1951.

ORDINANCE NO. 1902

AN ORDINANCE OF THE MAYOR AND CITY COUNCIL OF CUMBERLAND, MARYLAND, ENTITLED, "AN ORDINANCE TO PLACE AN ADMISSIONS TAX OF FIVE CENTS ($.05) PER PERSON UPON ALL ADULT PERSONS ATTENDING RECREATIONAL EVENTS, SHOWS OR ENTERTAINMENTS WITHIN THE CITY OF CUMBERLAND, AND TO PROVIDE FOR THE COLLECTION OF THE SAME THROUGH ANY PERSON, FIRM, CORPORATION OR ORGANIZATION CONDUCTING SAID RECREATIONAL EVENTS, SHOWS OR ENTERTAINMENTS."

SECTION 1. BE IT ORDAINED BY THE MAYOR AND CITY COUNCIL OF CUMBERLAND, That from and after the 15th day of May, 1951, there shall be charged and collected the sum of five cents ($.05) as an admissions tax for each adult person attending any recreational event, show or entertainment held by any person, firm, corporation or organization lawfully entitled to conduct the same within the limits of the City of Cumberland.

SECTION 2. AND BE IT FURTHER ORDAINED, That each person, firm, corporation or organization conducting a recreational event, show or entertainment within the City of Cumberland, shall be and is hereby required to provide suitable admission tickets which shall be serially numbered and in roll form, perforated so that each ticket may be detached and containing the name of the person, firm, corporation or organization conducting said recreational event, show or entertainment. Said person, firm, corporation or organization shall collect from each adult person applying for admission to a recreational event, show or entertainment, the admissions tax hereinbefore set forth and shall detach one ticket for each adult person so admitted, and said ticket shall be immediately torn in two and the serial number thereof shall be preserved and held for the examination of the City Clerk, if he shall so require. Each roll of tickets, together with the serial numbers thereof, shall be registered before the use thereof with the City Clerk, and it shall be unlawful for any person, firm, corporation or organization to reissue or reuse any of said tickets after the same has been issued.

(b) Each person, firm, corporation or organization shall be and is hereby required to remit to the City Clerk for the use of the City, all sums of money collected for said admissions tax, and said remittance shall be made twice in each month, namely, upon the 15th day of the month and the last day of the month; provided that, if the said 15th or last day of the month shall fall upon a Sunday or holiday, then on the next succeeding business day, and said remittances shall be accompanied by a statement sworn to by the proper officer of the person, firm, corporation or organization making the remittance and setting forth the number of tickets sold during the period and giving the number of the first ticket sold for said period and the number of the last ticket sold for said period. Said sums of money when received by the City Clerk shall be properly receipted for by him and deposited with the City Treasurer.

(c) No admissions tax shall be charged and collected on tickets sold by any motion picture theatre or for any lecture on scientific, historical, benevolent, artistic, religious, educational, political or literary subjects and apparatus for the elucidation of the same.

(d) Said sums derived from the aforesaid charges shall be kept and maintained in a separate fund by the City Treasurer and distributed and paid over to the Recreational Program Director of the City, in addition to such funds as may be appropriated from time to time from the General Fund of the City for the Recreation Department.

SECTION 3. AND BE IT FURTHER ORDAINED, That any person, firm, corporation or organization violating any provision of this ordinance, shall upon conviction thereof, be fined not less than Fifty Dollars ($50.00) nor more than One Hundred Dollars ($100.00) for each offense.

Passed this 7th day of May, 1951.

Rubber Issues Exception As Stock Market Declines

NEW YORK, May 10 (AP)—In a soggy and spiritless manner the stock market declined today.

The fall extended to around $2 a share throughout the list of leaders and $4 in the case of Nickel Plate which closed at $214.

Rails, steels, motors, chemicals, distillers, aircrafts and non-ferrous metals all were on the downside.

Rubbers and utilities alone among the major groups made headway. Sugars also were higher. These advances, together with those of individual issues, went to more than $2 a share in outstanding instances.

General Motors off 1⅛ at 52¾ unsettled the rest of the motor division. The big motor maker reported declining first quarter profits because of taxes and forecast a none too optimistic second quarter. It was the fourth most actively traded issue.

All of the major steels were off. U. S. Steel down ¼ at 44⅜ was seventh most active. Surveys show possibilities of a production slowdown because of a scrap shortage.

Nervous selling of distillers came along with talk of production cutbacks arising either through government fiat or consumer buying resistance. Schenley Industries off 1⅛ at 37¾ was sixth most active.

U. S. Rubber was up 2½ at 67⅛, and others in that division were higher, following the U. S. Rubber dividend of $1.50 as against $1 paid in March.

Montana-Dakota Utilities was the day's most active issue up 2¼ at 19½ with 33,200 shares changing hands. Reports show the company hopes to benefit in its gas and pipeline divisions from nearby oil discoveries.

Bond Stores was in second place up ¾ at 16¼. It opened unchanged at 15½ on the movement of a block of 25,000 shares.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dropped 50 cents to $96.60 with industrials off 80 cents and rails off 60, and with utilities up 10 cents. Prices on average were just about at the bottom when the market closed.

Totals trading came to only 1,650,000 shares, well under average. Yesterday in a rising market the total was 1,950,000 shares.

Rubber Issues Exception As Stock Market Declines

NEW YORK, May 10 (AP)—In a soggy and spiritless manner the stock market declined today.

The fall extended to around $2 a share throughout the list of leaders and $4 in the case of Nickel Plate which closed at $214.

Rails, steels, motors, chemicals, distillers, aircrafts and non-ferrous metals all were on the downside.

Rubbers and utilities alone among the major groups made headway. Sugars also were higher. These advances, together with those of individual issues, went to more than $2 a share in outstanding instances.

General Motors off 1⅛ at 52¾ unsettled the rest of the motor division. The big motor maker reported declining first quarter profits because of taxes and forecast a none too optimistic second quarter. It was the fourth most actively traded issue.

All of the major steels were off. U. S. Steel down ¼ at 44⅜ was seventh most active. Surveys show possibilities of a production slowdown because of a scrap shortage.

Nervous selling of distillers came along with talk of production cutbacks arising either through government fiat or consumer buying resistance. Schenley Industries off 1⅛ at 37¾ was sixth most active.

U. S. Rubber was up 2½ at 67⅛, and others in that division were higher, following the U. S. Rubber dividend of $1.50 as against $1 paid in March.

Montana-Dakota Utilities was the day's most active issue up 2¼ at 19½ with 33,200 shares changing hands. Reports show the company hopes to benefit in its gas and pipeline divisions from nearby oil discoveries.

Bond Stores was in second place up ¾ at 16¼. It opened unchanged at 15½ on the movement of a block of 25,000 shares.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dropped 50 cents to $96.60 with industrials off 80 cents and rails off 60, and with utilities up 10 cents. Prices on average were just about at the bottom when the market closed.

Totals trading came to only 1,650,000 shares, well under average. Yesterday in a rising market the total was 1,950,000 shares.

Kimble Says Liquor Board Has "Teeth"

Control Board Can Limit All Licenses

Senate Minority Leader Robert B. Kimble last night predicted that the Allegany County liquor control bill which becomes effective June 1 will result in strict enforcement for the benefit of all citizens of this county.

He declared the bill was designed to eliminate loopholes in the present measure and to provide positive enforcement.

Any additional loopholes which remain in the measure, he added, will be plugged when the General Assembly meets two years from now.

He said the measure which was signed by the governor recently should have been stricter than it is but it was the best that could be developed during the past session of the assembly.

Senator Kimble said he does not know who Governor McKeldin will appoint to the control board but if the board does not enforce the law rigidly he will not confirm them when their names are presented to the Senate for approval.

The measure, Senate Bill 209, was sponsored by Senator Kimble.

Spells Out Plan

The senator said the bill was not sponsored by any group in Allegany County but was designed to plug all the holes in the present bill, spell out just what the board and license holders could and could not do, and was written for the benefit of the public as a whole.

The heart of the bill, Senator Kimble said, was to strike at the greatest evil which has arisen in the county, 'teen age drinking.

Many places, he said, have been allowing 'teen agers to bring whiskey to taverns and, after buying a bottle of ginger ale, make up drinks.

He said the attempt to stop this evil is not directed at the beer dispensing places, who have licenses, as long as they obey the law which applies to all license holders.

Must Take Action

To put teeth in the bill, he said, the Board is required to take definite action if violations are found.

Senator Kimble said the law requires the Board to "suspend or revoke" licenses in case of violations and definitely does not allow "reprimanding".

Should a board revoke a license, no license may be issued to the same person or for the same premises for a year.

Senator Kimble said this provision, a substitute for the old padlocking of premises, will effectively stop "silent partners" from taking over if disciplinary action is taken by the Board.

The senator said he will seek to secure permission to appear before the Ministerial Association to discuss provisions of the new liquor control measure.

Defines Restaurants

The senator referred also to a provision in the bill referring to restaurants. The bill has this to say on the subject:

Any licensed place which sells beer or beer and wine only shall have displayed on the said premises at least four conspicuous notices with the following words: "Unlawful to drink or expose liquor upon these premises".

The word restaurant as used in the issuing of alcoholic beverage licenses shall mean a business establishment for the accomodation of the public, fully equipped with a proper and adequate dining room, tables and chairs and sufficient facilities for preparing and serving regular meals as may be approved by the Liquor Board and having sanitary facilities, running hot and cold water, equipment for the proper cleansing of dishes, adequate toilets and sufficient food on the premises for serving regular meals.

He said this provision was added in the interest of good health to protect the public which has a right to know, when they enter a food dispensing establishment, that they will receive wholesome food from clean dishes and that adequate sanitary facilities will be available.

Has Been Deleted

He said the number of Class C, or Club, licenses shall not exceed 60. "A provision that if a club license is revoked or surrendered, the total number of club licenses would be permanently reduced, was deleted from the bill," he explained.

Walter C. Capper, chairman of the Liquor Control Board, said the board has received numerous queries on reports that revocation of Class C licenses would permanently reduce the number available. The report is false, he emphasized.

The bill as signed set the max-

AHS Senior Class Play Set May 18

Three-Act Show Was Written By Director

Production and rehearsals for this year's annual Allegany High School Senior Class Play, "Corny, But Sweet," are now underway. The original story concerning teen-agers and their problems, written and directed by Arthur W. Taylor, mathematics instructor at the school, will be presented in the school auditorium, Friday, May 18.

Cast for the three-act play includes Lee Lacy, as Howard Tennis; Mervin Trail, as Bung; Edwin Goetz, as Juker; and Helen Yoder as Gloria. Others in the cast are Marjorie Kinsinger, Lou Ann Burkett, Doris Platt, Richard Beeghly and Raymond Goetz.

The plot involves a house party given by a spoiled girl at the beginning of the summer vacation. All the students have gone to school together for six years and are reluctant to end their association.

Mary Dee Rice is mistress of properties, Pauline Likens, wardrobe mistress, and Wilda Winterberg, script girl. The stage crew is under the direction of Lee Chenowith and Joseph Strock will be in charge of the lighting effects. Joyce Often and Ann Riggleman are in charge of the ticket sales which are now underway. Eileen Ort and Joan Bosely are co-house managers.

Dig-Up Day Set At North End

Tomorrow is "dig-up day" at the North End Playgrounds. Leveling, grading and drainage ditches of the area will be done so as to make a safer place for the children to play.

Volunteer workers, especially drivers and field workers are needed. Residents of the area have agreed to "do their bit." Lunches will be served to the volunteers. Trucks, bulldozers and equipment have been donated by the city, local contractors, the State Roads Commission and the C. & A. Gas Company.

A concrete court measuring 50 feet by 50 feet will be built for dancing and skating.

The workers will be given a party on May 16 by the Queen City Brewery.

Jerry Yankelevitz To Be Bar Mitzvah

Jerry Yankelevitz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Yankelevitz, 317 Holland Street, will be Bar Mitzvah Saturday morning at 10 o'clock at special confirmation ceremonies at Beth Jacob Synagogue.

The youth's parents will receive relatives and friends Saturday evening from 8 to 10 o'clock in the vestry of the synagogue.

Out-of-town guests who are expected to attend the confirmation ceremonies include Mrs. Maurice Jacobson and Mrs. Leon Fine, Norfolk, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dworin and Peretz Michelson, all of New York City; Mr. and Mrs. Tobas Silverman and Mrs. Harry Olin, Washington, D. C., and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pierce, Baltimore.

The Yankelevitz boy will take part in the regular services of the synagogue tonight at 8 o'clock.

Improvement Is Noted In Health Of Area Youths

Dental Caries Lead List Of Defects

A marked improvement in the general health of Allegany County children was noted by Dr. Winter R. Frantz, city and county health officer, who recently conducted examinations of children who will enter school in the fall.

Dr. Frantz said the examinations of 944 children disclosed that the children are better nourished than in past years and that while the presence of dental caries remains the outstanding physical defect, there is a marked improvement in the health of the pre-school child.

Over the past decade, Dr. Frantz said, gradual improvement has been made in this area in children's health as people become more health conscious.

The economic status of the parents, he added is often reflected in the health of the children.

He reported that the examinations disclosed a number of cases of rheumatic fever, tonsil, dental, heart and posture defects but added that in most cases parents were already aware of the conditions.

The pre-school examinations which ended recently included 43 clinics in public and parochial schools.

They included physical examinations of the children and vaccination against smallpox when the parents desired the service.

The examinations will be followed up by immunization clinics in the schools this fall.

Tests for eyes and ears, Dr. Frantz said, are made in the first year at school by technicians of the Board of Education, using the Massachusetts vision tests audiometer.

Flood Project Gets Shower

Workers and "sidewalk superintendents" of the Frederick Street conduit witnessed an unexpected geyser with resulting shower yesterday morning at the corner of Mechanic and Frederick Streets when a valve blew out of a six-inch water main.

David Harr, shovel operator, said that evidently the pounding of a hammer used to break the street bed caused the sudden spout which sent water about 80 feet into the air causing a small "cloudburst." Dirt was being removed from around the main when "it broke loose." Harr swung the bucket around and in doing so knocked over a lamp post.

The Water Department brought the gusher under control, although the area was sprayed for about 50 minutes. The pressure at that point, Fire Department spokesmen said, is about 130 pounds per square inch. Approximately 10,340 gallons of water went into the air, The interruption caused little damage and work on the project continued as usual during the afternoon.

Pair Gets Suspended Sentence In Theft

Donald O. Shoemaker, 19, Oldtown and Leroy J. Shoemaker, 25, North Branch, pleaded guilty Wednesday in Trial Magistrates court to theft of property of John Wilson, Pasadena, Md., and were sentenced to three months in the House of Correction by Magistrate William J. Gunter.

Sentence of the two brothers was suspended by Gunter upon payment of $53.50 damages and repair of damaged property within two weeks plus court costs.

The brothers were arrested last week by Trooper William F. Baker, State Police, and charged with stealing an army cot, ring, chairs and table cloth from a cottage near Little Orleans. The stolen articles were valued at about $24.

Two Men Fined

Two men each were fined $10 and costs in Trial Magistrates Court yesterday for fishing violations. Magistrate J. Milton Dick imposed the fines on Bonner T. Wilks, Virginia Avenue for fishing without a license and on Cloyd V. Owens, Lafayette Avenue, for fishing with more than two lines. Fine and costs for Wilks were suspended by the magistrate.

Equestrian Show Featured In King Bros. Circus To Exhibit Daring Horsemanship

Renowned Cristiani Family Are Starred

Is there anyone in this world who doesn't love horses, or who isn't struck speechless with admiration at graceful and daring feats of horsemanship?

Gracefulness, beauty, and daring. Those three words form a rare combination which, this year, gives the King Brothers Circus, coming to Cumberland, Monday, May 14 at Taylor Field in South Cumberland, the greatest and most skillful equestrian aggregation of all times.

Follow the hunt and horse show crowds where you will — from Long Island to San Diego — and you'll seldom see so many pretty and smartly turned out girls as you'll find in the high school and menage displays of the big show this season.

Yes, the booted and spurred youngsters with the show are extremely attractive in appearance and in person, and they are all horsewomen as well as expert equestriennes. They know their stuff and, besides, many of them have ridden in horse shows time and again. Several hail from the West Coast, some from the East, and there are several from 'Ol Kentuck', including Margie Cunningham, who rides "Bourbon King", a high-jumper.

As to their beauty and smart turnouts, you'll see and agree they are a bit of all right, when the huge show rolls into Cumberland next Sunday morning with a small army of people, three great herds of elephants, handsome horses and ponies, wild animals, and acres of tents.

The world renowned Christiani Family of somersaulting bareback riding stars, heads the long list of 1951 attractions.

Performances will be given at 1:30, 3:30 and 8 p.m., and as an extra special feature show day, "The Parade Of The Elephants" will be presented downtown at noon as a reminder of circus day and the scores of thrills in store for youngsters of all ages.

Maryland Pollution Control Commission Working On Laurel Run Contamination

Survey Discloses Mine Flooded; Company Asked To Seal Openings

An effort is being made by the State of Maryland Water Pollution Control Commission to stop contamination of Laurel Run in Garrett County and the Potomac River by mine water flowing from the abandoned operation at Kempton.

According to J. Henry Schilpp, sanitary engineer for the commission, a survey was made at Kempton last March 7 and the condition has been called to the attention of the Davis Coal and Coke Company, which abandoned the workings.

Schilpp points out that the Cumberland News gave considerable publicity to the condition two weeks ago when residents in the Kitzmiller area complained about the unusual amount of surphur mine water in the river. They described the stream as being in "the worst condition we have ever seen it."

Residents there investigated and found the polluted waters flowing from the old Kempton diggings.

Commission Notified

Schilpp said that on January 30, 1951, Melvin Lewis of Gormania wrote to Joseph A. Minke, regional game warden, and notified him that sulphur water was pouring from the old Kempton mines, killing the fish and driving out 30 or more colonies of beaver.

Minke forwarded the letter to Ernest A. Vaughn, director of the Fish and Game Commission, after investigating the complaint, and his communications were in turn sent to Paul W. McKee, executive secretary of the Water Pollution Control Commission.

Engineer Schilpp was notified and together with Game Wardens Lloyd Cook and Leo Friend visited the Kempton mines on March 7.

Investigation shows, Schilpp reports, that the Kempton operation at Shaft 39 and Slope No. 43 have filled with water and the overflow is going into Laurel Run which empties into the Potomac.

The main shaft at the mine is 428

April Reports Given To Chest

The treasurer of the Cumberland Community Chest reported $1167.13 in receipts from 1950-51 pledges for the month of April at a meeting held last night at the chest office.

The report also showed total disbursements of $6,386.93 and a balance in the bank of $24,038.27. A total of $63,434.67 or 72 percent of total receipts from 1950-51 pledges up until the first of this month has been realized.

During the Executive Committee meeting last night the monthly service and financial reports of the Red Feather Agencies were approved.

NEWS IN BRIEF

John Herman, son of Mrs. Juanita Herman, 6 Altamont Terrace, and the late C. T. Herman, has been elected a member of the Honor Society at Potomac State School, Keyser, W. Va. He is a member of the freshman class.

Ronald Decker, a member of this year's graduating class at Allegany High School, has been awarded a four-year scholarship to Swarthmore College, Swarthmore, Pa.

Sunday has been designated as the day for the "Festival of The Christian Home" in Emmanuel Methodist Church. The morning worship theme will be devoted to the family and its contributions to the world today.

Chamber Group To Meet

The Membership Activities Committee of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce will meet this afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Chamber office to discuss plans for the May luncheon meeting. The luncheon scheduled for May 18 is being cancelled and a tentative date has been set for the 24th.

Mission Rally Program Set For Sunday

Rev. Vaeth To Give Out Student Awards

The program for the Catholic Students Mission Crusade religious rally Sunday at 3 p. m. at Fort Hill stadium has been completed, Rev. Robert F. Hopkins, assistant pastor of St. Mary's Catholic Church, said yesterday.

The recital will open with the National Anthem by the Arion Band of Frostburg and the assembly to be followed by Hymn to Christ the King by the Crusaders.

Vaeth To Give Awards

Presentation of awards to the outstanding members of the school units in the Catholic Students Mission Crusade will then be made by Rt. Rev. Louis C. Vaeth, archdiocesan director of the Sodality for the Propagation of the Faith.

Another hymn, Come Holy Ghost, will precede the sermon by Rev. John U. Lyness, assistant pastor of St. Patrick's Church. Following the sermon the hymn, Mother Dearest, Mother Fairest will be sung by the assembly. The recitation of the rosary will then be led by Rev. Hopkins with the assembly participating.

After the recitation of the rosary the members will sing the hymn, Mother Dear, Oh, Pray For Me, and the solemn benediction will be given by Very Rev. J. Lawrence Kilkenny, pastor of St. Patrick's Church, celebrant; Rev. Louis Glantz, pastor of SS. Peter and Paul Church, deacon; Rev. Francis Montgomery, administrator of St. Michael's Church in Frostburg, sub-deacon; and Rev. Regis Larkin, also of St. Michael's, master of ceremonies.

To Hold Parade

The assemblage will then sing the hymnal, Holy God, prior to final dismissal of the units.

A parade will precede the rally

Official Tells Kiwanis Club Of Gas Boom

Uncertain About Allegany County

Members of Cumberland Kiwanis Club learned more about the current natural gas boom in Garrett County at their weekly luncheon meeting yesterday but they received no assurance that gas might be found beneath the soil of Allegany County.

The speaker was Stephen Day, vice-president in charge of production of the Columbia Gas Company, Pittsburgh, Pa.

"You never can tell whether there is gas until you have drilled," Day stated when asked by a Kiwanian whether there was a supply of natural gas in Allegany County.

The speaker suggested that no doubt some leases have been taken on Allegany County land with the intention of exploring for a supply of gas. He added that he knew of no geologic work having been done in this county in preparation for well drilling.

Day told the Kiwanians yesterday that there now are 25 wells in Garrett County which have been drilled or are in process of being drilled. Nine of these have been brought in and the rest still are being drilled.

The first Garrett well, brought in on the Beachy Farm, now is yielding about 11,000,000 cubic feet daily, the gas company official explained. He offered an illustration as to how much a few feet can mean in well drilling. He said that one well in Garrett County was producing 10,000,000 cubic feet daily and when it was drilled just three feet deeper the yield jumped to more than 15,000,000 cubic feet.

Much of this new Garrett County gas is brought into the Cumberland area through a West Virginia pipeline that extends into Garrett County. Day said that the Columbia Gas Company, of which the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company is a subsidiary has considered connecting the Garrett County wells with two pipelines running into Pennsylvania. In this manner, he believes, the Garrett gas supply could be handled more effectively.

After the meeting some of the Kiwanians stayed and discussed the gas boom with Day for as long as an hour.

Radar Speed Meter Sought

Cumberland motorists who yield to the temptation to step on the gas may learn about radar the hard way.

John J. Long, police and fire commissioner, is asking bids for an Electra-Matic Speedmeter to be used by the Police Department.

He said that if the purchase of the equipment is approved by the Mayor and Council it will be placed in operation in Cumberland.

City officials authorized the department some months ago to seek bids on the equipment.

Commissioner Long said the chief benefit of the device so far has been psychological.

He said the Attorney General has ruled that he sees no reason why arrests cannot be made with the device.

Present plans call for the radar device as a warning to speeders, who would be informed clearly that a given stretch of street was under surveillance of the radar equipment.

285 License Sets Sold Before Deadline

About 285 sets of Maryland automobile license tags were sold yesterday at the office of Tax Collector Ernest B. Treat at the Court House as motorists made a rush to get their plates before the deadline at midnight last night.

Treat reports that he still has about 325 sets of plates for passenger cars out of a total of 14,500 that have been issued to him.

Now that the automobile deadline has passed, Treat will focus his attention on new tags for half and three-quarter ton commercial trucks and farm trucks. These tags must be acquired by midnight Thursday, May 31.

Permits Sought

Applications for permits have been been filed with the Allegany Sounty Liquor Control Board. Noel Beverlin and Edna Beverlin seek a beer and wine license for premises at 143 North Centre Street. Kenneth T. Hager wants a beer, wine and liquor permit for premises at 814-816 North Mechanic Street.

Mock Drill By Area Firemen Scheduled For Next Week

The time, date, and place for the "mock drill" to be held in conjunction with the Civil Defense Program have been set by area firemen. Plans were discussed Wednesday night at a meeting of Allegany-Garrett County firemen at Frostburg.

Twenty companies attended the meeting and Virgil A. Parker, acting assistant chief of the Cumberland Fire Department and liaison officer for the firemen, said last night that each unit received necessary instructions.

Parker said the drill will occur next week but the element of "surprise" will be used in order to get more effective results and also to test the alertness and quick action of the companies involved.

The drill will consist of part of the city's department and some of the area companies. The practice will be concentrated in one district, Parker said, and other companies will move into the places where those who respond leave.

Joseph G. Wenrich, Cresaptown, president of the area firemen branch of the Civil Defense Program, spoke at the meeting Wednesday night and told of future plans.

Frostburg cooperated fully last night as well as the other companies represented, Parker added.

Those companies attending included delegates from the George's Creek section, the Tri-Towns, Bowman's Addition, Baltimore Pike, Ellerslie, Cresaptown, Ridgeley, District 16, and Cumberland.

Youngsters Win Book Fair Art Contest Prizes

These seven Allegany County youngsters were prize winners in the art contest which the Centre Street School conducted in conjunction with its second annual Book Fair. They were pictured on the auditorium stage at Centre Street School where they received their awards. First prize was $5, second was $3, third was $2 and each of the four honorable mention winners was given a book. Standing on the stage, left to right, LaDonna Cashman, Cresaptown, honorable mention; Harry Little, St. Patrick's honorable mention; Gary Harbel, Midland, second; Lynn Workmeister, LaVale, first; Ruth Lee Schramm, Jackson, Westernport, third; Harold Milburn, Columbia Street, honorable mention, and Helen Shelley, Penn Avenue, honorable mention. Over 80 youngsters from 23 schools competed. The Book Fair will close today, with visitors being welcome from 9 a. m. until 4 p. m.

First Lonaconing Korean War Veteran Returns Home

Pfc. John Klipstein, twice wounded veteran of the Korean conflict, surprised his parents when he arrived at his home in Lonaconing last night after being overseas for the past year. He is the first veteran returning to Lonaconing from Korea.

Klipstein, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Klipstein, 56 Jackson Street, is home on a 28 day furlough under the present rotation plan. He came into the Queen City Railroad Station yesterday at two o'clock after travelling across country from Seattle, Wash.

"I'm sure glad to be back," the 19-year-old veteran said yesterday. He has been in Korea for the past nine and a half months fighting the Reds and was notified while at the front that he would get his furlough.

He enlisted in October 1949, received basic training at Fort Knox, Ky., went to Camp Stoneman, Calif. for further training and then left for overseas, in July of last year. He was wounded August 3 and September 15, 1950. He holds the Purple Heart, Silver Star with cluster among other citations. A member of the 1st Cavalry Infantry Division, he will report to Fort George G. Meade, for reassignment.

Jerry Yankelevitz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Yankelevitz, 317 Holland Street, will be Bar Mitzvah Saturday morning at 10 o'clock at special confirmation ceremonies at Beth Jacob Synagogue.

The youth's parents will receive relatives and friends Saturday evening from 8 to 10 o'clock in the vestry of the synagogue.

Out-of-town guests who are expected to attend the confirmation ceremonies include Mrs. Maurice Jacobson and Mrs. Leon Fine, Norfolk, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dworin and Peretz Michelson, all of New York City; Mr. and Mrs. Tobas Silverman and Mrs. Harry Oiin, Washington, D. C., and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pierce, Baltimore.

The Yankelevitz boy will take part in the regular services of the synagogue tonight at 8 o'clock.

Improvement Is Noted In Health Of Area Youths

Dental Caries Lead List Of Defects

A marked improvement in the general health of Allegany County children was noted by Dr. Winter R. Frantz, city and county health officer, who recently conducted examinations of children who will enter school in the fall.

Dr. Frantz said the examinations of 944 children disclosed that the children are better nourished than in past years and that while the presence of dental caries remains the outstanding physical defect, there is a marked improvement in the health of the pre-school child.

Over the past decade, Dr. Frantz said, gradual improvement has been made in this area in children's health as people become more health conscious.

The economic status of the parents, he added is often reflected in the health of the children.

He reported that the examinations disclosed a number of cases of rheumatic fever, tonsil, dental, heart and posture defects but added that in most cases parents were already aware of the conditions.

The pre-school examinations which ended recently included 43 clinics in public and parochial schools.

They included physical examinations of the children and vaccination against smallpox when the parents desired the service.

The examinations will be followed up by immunization clinics in the schools this fall.

Tests for eyes and ears, Dr. Frantz said, are made in the first year at school by technicians of the Board of Education, using the Massachusetts vision tests audiometer.

Flood Project Gets Shower

Workers and "sidewalk superintendents" of the Frederick Street conduit witnessed an unexpected geyser with resulting shower yesterday morning at the corner of Mechanic and Frederick Streets when a valve blew out of a six-inch water main.

David Harr, shovel operator, said that evidently the pounding of a hammer used to break the street bed caused the sudden spout which sent water about 80 feet into the air causing a small "cloudburst." Dirt was being removed from around the main when "it broke loose." Harr swung the bucket around and in doing so knocked over a lamp post.

The Water Department brought the gusher under control, although the area was sprayed for about 50 minutes. The pressure at that point, Fire Department spokesmen said, is about 130 pounds per square inch. Approximately 10,340 gallons of water went into the air, The interruption caused little damage and work on the project continued as usual during the afternoon.

Pair Gets Suspended Sentence In Theft

Donald O. Shoemaker, 19, Oldtown and Leroy J. Shoemaker, 25, North Branch, pleaded guilty Wednesday in Trial Magistrates court to theft of property of John Wilson, Pasadena, Md., and were sentenced to three months in the House of Correction by Magistrate William J. Gunter.

Sentence of the two brothers was suspended by Gunter upon payment of $53.50 damages and repair of damaged property within two weeks plus court costs.

The brothers were arrested last week by Trooper William F. Baker, State Police, and charged with stealing an army cot, ring, chairs and table cloth from a cottage near Little Orleans. The stolen articles were valued at about $24.

Two Men Fined

Two men each were fined $10 and costs in Trial Magistrates Court yesterday for fishing violations. Magistrate J. Milton Dick imposed the fines on Bonner T. Wilks, Virginia Avenue for fishing without a license and on Cloyd V. Owens, Lafayette Avenue, for fishing with more than two lines. Fine and costs for Wilks were suspended by the magistrate.

Equestrian Show Featured In King Bros. Circus To Exhibit Daring Horsemanship

Renowned Cristiani Family Are Starred

Is there anyone in this world who doesn't love horses, or who isn't struck speechless with admiration at graceful and daring feats of horsemanship?

Gracefulness, beauty, and daring. Those three words form a rare combination which, this year, gives the King Brothers Circus, coming to Cumberland, Monday, May 14 at Taylor Field in South Cumberland, the greatest and most skillful equestrian aggregation of all times.

Follow the hunt and horse show crowds where you will — from Long Island to San Diego — and you'll seldom see so many pretty and smartly turned out girls as you'll find in the high school and menage displays of the big show this season.

Yes, the booted and spurred youngsters with the show are extremely attractive in appearance and in person, and they are all horsewomen as well as expert equestriennes. They know their stuff and, besides, many of them have ridden in horse shows time and again. Several hail from the West Coast, some from the East, and there are several from 'Ol Kentuck', including Margie Cunningham, who rides "Bourbon King", a high-jumper.

As to their beauty and smart turnouts, you'll see and agree they are a bit of all right, when the huge show rolls into Cumberland next Sunday morning with a small army of people, three great herds of elephants, handsome horses and ponies, wild animals, and acres of tents.

The world renowned Christiani Family of somersaulting bareback riding stars, heads the long list of 1951 attractions.

Performances will be given at 1:30, 3:30 and 8 p.m., and as an extra special feature show day, "The Parade Of The Elephants" will be presented downtown at noon as a reminder of circus day and the scores of thrills in store for youngsters of all ages.

Maryland Pollution Control Commission Working On Laurel Run Contamination

Survey Discloses Mine Flooded; Company Asked To Seal Openings

An effort is being made by the State of Maryland Water Pollution Control Commission to stop contamination of Laurel Run in Garrett County and the Potomac River by mine water flowing from the abandoned operation at Kempton.

According to J. Henry Schilpp, sanitary engineer for the commission, a survey was made at Kempton last March 7 and the condition has been called to the attention of the Davis Coal and Coke Company, which abandoned the workings.

Schilpp points out that the Cumberland News gave considerable publicity to the condition two weeks ago when residents in the Kitzmiller area complained about the unusual amount of surphur mine water in the river. They described the stream as being in "the worst condition we have ever seen it."

Residents there investigated and found the polluted waters flowing from the old Kempton diggings.

Commission Notified

Schilpp said that on January 30, 1951, Melvin Lewis of Gormania wrote to Joseph A. Minke, regional game warden, and notified him that sulphur water was pouring from the old Kempton mines, killing the fish and driving out 30 or more colonies of beaver.

Minke forwarded the letter to Ernest A. Vaughn, director of the Fish and Game Commission, after investigating the complaint, and his communications were in turn sent to Paul W. McKee, executive secretary of the Water Pollution Control Commission.

Engineer Schilpp was notified and together with Game Wardens Lloyd Cook and Leo Friend visited the Kempton mines on March 7.

Investigation shows, Schilpp reports, that the Kempton operation at Shaft 39 and Slope No. 43 have filled with water and the overflow is going into Laurel Run which empties into the Potomac.

The main shaft at the mine is 428

April Reports Given To Chest

The treasurer of the Cumberland Community Chest reported $1167.13 in receipts from 1950-51 pledges for the month of April at a meeting held last night at the chest office.

The report also showed total disbursements of $6,386.93 and a balance in the bank of $24,038.27. A total of $63,434.67 or 72 percent of total receipts from 1950-51 pledges up until the first of this month has been realized.

During the Executive Committee meeting last night the monthly service and financial reports of the Red Feather Agencies were approved.

NEWS IN BRIEF

John Herman, son of Mrs. Juanita Herman, 6 Altamont Terrace, and the late C. T. Herman, has been elected a member of the Honor Society at Potomac State School, Keyser, W. Va. He is a member of the freshman class.

Ronald Decker, a member of this year's graduating class at Allegany High School, has been awarded a four-year scholarship to Swarthmore College, Swarthmore, Pa.

Sunday has been designated as the day for the "Festival of The Christian Home" in Emmanuel Methodist Church. The morning worship theme will be devoted to the family and its contributions to the world today.

Chamber Group To Meet

The Membership Activities Committee of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce will meet this afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Chamber office to discuss plans for the May luncheon meeting. The luncheon scheduled for May 18 is being cancelled and a tentative date has been set for the 24th.

Mission Rally Program Set For Sunday

Rev. Vaeth To Give Out Student Awards

The program for the Catholic Students Mission Crusade religious rally Sunday at 3 p. m. at Fort Hill stadium has been completed, Rev. Robert F. Hopkins, assistant pastor of St. Mary's Catholic Church, said yesterday.

The recital will open with the National Anthem by the Arion Band of Frostburg and the assembly to be followed by Hymn to Christ the King by the Crusaders.

Vaeth To Give Awards

Presentation of awards to the outstanding members of the school units in the Catholic Students Mission Crusade will then be made by Rt. Rev. Louis C. Vaeth, archdiocesan director of the Sodality for the Propagation of the Faith.

Another hymn, Come Holy Ghost, will precede the sermon by Rev. John U. Lyness, assistant pastor of St. Patrick's Church. Following the sermon the hymn, Mother Dearest, Mother Fairest will be sung by the assembly. The recitation of the rosary will then be led by Rev. Hopkins with the assembly participating.

After the recitation of the rosary the members will sing the hymn, Mother Dear, Oh, Pray For Me, and the solemn benediction will be given by Very Rev. J. Lawrence Kilkenny, pastor of St. Patrick's Church, celebrant; Rev. Louis Glantz, pastor of SS. Peter and Paul Church, deacon; Rev. Francis Montgomery, administrator of St. Michael's Church in Frostburg, sub-deacon; and Rev. Regis Larkin, also of St. Michael's, master of ceremonies.

To Hold Parade

The assemblage will then sing the hymnal, Holy God, prior to final dismissal of the units.

A parade will precede the rally

Fort Hill Elects Student Council

Vernon Smith was elected president of the student council at Fort Hill High School in balloting held Wednesday in which class officers of the 10th, 11th and 12th grades also were named.

Smith, a junior, gained the presidency of the council after a vigorous campaign and a primary several weeks ago. Members of the Senate of the Student Council are Earlene Grim, Lois Myers and David Ritter, seniors, and Joan Schaidt, Shirlee Twigg and James Squires, juniors.

Class officers for the coming year are: Senior Class—Maurice Miller, president; Allan Mease, vice president; Sherrell Parsons, secretary; and Jo Ann Cross, treasurer.

Balloting at the polls in the gymnasium was supervised by Donald Brake, a senior and secretary of industry of the Student Council and Miss Madeline Mewshaw, faculty advisor.

WEATHER

Cumberlanders had another summer day yesterday although the skies clouded up and rain threatened in the afternoon. The weather station at Constitution Park reported a high of 72, a low of 54 and at 8:15 p. m. last night it was 59 degrees. The dew point was 48.25 and humidity 70 percent. The forecast for today is mostly cloudy and somewhat cooler with showers and possible thunderstorms.

Official Tells Kiwanis Club Of Gas Boom

Uncertain About Allegany County

Members of Cumberland Kiwanis Club learned more about the current natural gas boom in Garrett County at their weekly luncheon meeting yesterday but they received no assurance that gas might be found beneath the soil of Allegany County.

The speaker was Stephen Day, vice-president in charge of production of the Columbia Gas Company, Pittsburgh, Pa.

"You never can tell whether there is gas until you have drilled," Day stated when asked by a Kiwanian whether there was a supply of natural gas in Allegany County.

The speaker suggested that no doubt some leases have been taken on Allegany County land with the intention of exploring for a supply of gas. He added that he knew of no geologic work having been done in this county in preparation for well drilling.

Day told the Kiwanians yesterday that there now are 25 wells in Garrett County which have been drilled or are in process of being drilled. Nine of these have been brought in and the rest still are being drilled.

The first Garrett well, brought in on the Beachy Farm, now is yielding about 11,000,000 cubic feet daily, the gas company official explained. He offered an illustration as to how much a few feet can mean in well drilling. He said that one well in Garrett County was producing 10,000,000 cubic feet daily and when it was drilled just three feet deeper the yield jumped to more than 15,000,000 cubic feet.

Much of this new Garrett County gas is brought into the Cumberland area through a West Virginia pipeline that extends into Garrett County. Day said that the Columbia Gas Company, of which the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company is a subsidiary has considered connecting the Garrett County wells with two pipelines running into Pennsylvania. In this manner, he believes, the Garrett gas supply could be handled more effectively.

After the meeting some of the Kiwanians stayed and discussed the gas boom with Day for as long as an hour.

Radar Speed Meter Sought

Cumberland motorists who yield to the temptation to step on the gas may learn about radar the hard way.

John J. Long, police and fire commissioner, is asking bids for an Electra-Matic Speedmeter to be used by the Police Department.

He said that if the purchase of the equipment is approved by the Mayor and Council it will be placed in operation in Cumberland.

City officials authorized the department some months ago to seek bids on the equipment.

Commissioner Long said the chief benefit of the device so far has been psychological.

He said the Attorney General has ruled that he sees no reason why arrests cannot be made with the device.

Present plans call for the radar device as a warning to speeders, who would be informed clearly that a given stretch of street was under surveillance of the radar equipment.

285 License Sets Sold Before Deadline

About 285 sets of Maryland automobile license tags were sold yesterday at the office of Tax Collector Ernest B. Treat at the Court House as motorists made a rush to get their plates before the deadline at midnight last night.

Treat reports that he still has about 325 sets of plates for passenger cars out of a total of 14,500 that have been issued to him.

Now that the automobile deadline has passed, Treat will focus his attention on new tags for half and three-quarter ton commercial trucks and farm trucks. These tags must be acquired by midnight Thursday, May 31.

Permits Sought

Applications for permits have been been filed with the Allegany Sounty Liquor Control Board. Noel Beverlin and Edna Beverlin seek a beer and wine license for premises at 143 North Centre Street. Kenneth T. Hager wants a beer, wine and liquor permit for premises at 814-816 North Mechanic Street.

Mock Drill By Area Firemen Scheduled For Next Week

The time, date, and place for the "mock drill" to be held in conjunction with the Civil Defense Program have been set by area firemen. Plans were discussed Wednesday night at a meeting of Allegany-Garrett County firemen at Frostburg.

Twenty companies attended the meeting and Virgil A. Parker, acting assistant chief of the Cumberland Fire Department and liaison officer for the firemen, said last night that each unit received necessary instructions.

Parker said the drill will occur next week but the element of "surprise" will be used in order to get more effective results and also to test the alertness and quick action of the companies involved.

The drill will consist of part of the city's department and some of the area companies. The practice will be concentrated in one district, Parker said, and other companies will move into the places where those who respond leave.

Joseph G. Wenrich, Cresaptown, president of the area firemen branch of the Civil Defense Program, spoke at the meeting Wednesday night and told of future plans.

Frostburg cooperated fully last night as well as the other companies represented, Parker added.

Those companies attending included delegates from the George's Creek section, the Tri-Towns, Bowman's Addition, Baltimore Pike, Ellerslie, Cresaptown, Ridgeley, District 16, and Cumberland.

Youngsters Win Book Fair Art Contest Prizes

These seven Allegany County youngsters were prize winners in the art contest which the Centre Street School conducted in conjunction with its second annual Book Fair. They were pictured on the auditorium stage at Centre Street School where they received their awards. First prize was $5, second was $3, third was $2 and each of the four honorable mention winners was given a book. Standing on the stage, left to right, LaDonna Cashman, Cresaptown, honorable mention; Harry Little, St. Patrick's honorable mention; Gary Harbel, Midland, second; Lynn Workmeister, LaVale, first; Ruth Lee Schramm, Jackson, Westernport, third; Harold Milburn, Columbia Street, honorable mention, and Helen Shelley, Penn Avenue, honorable mention. Over 80 youngsters from 23 schools competed. The Book Fair will close today, with visitors being welcome from 9 a. m. until 4 p. m.

First Lonaconing Korean War Veteran Returns Home

Pfc. John Klipstein, twice wounded veteran of the Korean conflict, surprised his parents when he arrived at his home in Lonaconing last night after being overseas for the past year. He is the first veteran returning to Lonaconing from Korea.

Klipstein, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Klipstein, 56 Jackson Street, is home on a 28 day furlough under the present rotation plan. He came into the Queen City Railroad Station yesterday at two o'clock after travelling across country from Seattle, Wash.

"I'm sure glad to be back," the 19-year-old veteran said yesterday. He has been in Korea for the past nine and a half months fighting the Reds and was notified while at the front that he would get his furlough.

He enlisted in October 1949, received basic training at Fort Knox, Ky., went to Camp Stoneman, Calif. for further training and then left for overseas, in July of last year. He was wounded August 3 and September 15, 1950. He holds the Purple Heart, Silver Star with cluster among other citations. A member of the 1st Cavalry Infantry Division, he will report to Fort George G. Meade, for reassignment.

Weather Forecast
Cloudy and cooler today with scattered showers.

Marshall Would Veto China U. N. Bid

iew Clashes Vith "Ruling" y State Dept.

MacArthur Wanted Showdown In 1945

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP)—Sec- ary of Defense Marshall indicat- today that the United States ould use its veto power if neces- ry to block the entry of Red ina into the United Nations.

The Department of State has held at Red China's admission to the N. is a "procedural" matter ich cannot be vetoed in the Se- rity Council—even though this vernment is reported opposed to e entry.

The Secretary gave senators this w as he defended—for the fourth aight day — the administration ogram in Asia with arguments ich President Truman told re- rters are the exact truth, word for rd.

He will resume his testimony to- orrow at 9 a. m., EST.

Earlier, Marshall had said the S. government will fight Com- unist China's admission to the N. and will not permit the island Formosa to fall into Red hands.

"Mac" Backed Ultimatum

Marshall's statement on the veto me after he denied that old pre- dices, growing out of clashing ews over the Chinese Reds coming power, had played a part in the ster of Gen. Douglas MacArthur. He said: "I don't think that had y connection with it whatsoever." e has said MacArthur was fired cause he was openly out of sym- hy with the present U. S. policies Asia.

Earlier, MacArthur was reported have been ready in 1945 to march lied troops against the Chinese ed army unless the Communists id down their arms and agreed to free election in China.

Sen. Smith (R-NJ) said this re- rt came from "a pretty good thority" and stated that after -J Day MacArthur told the War epartment the Chinese Red force as composed of only 125,000 to 0,000 guerillas.

"He proposed," Smith said, "that th Chinese government agree- ent, America guarantee the per- nal safety of the Communist aders and their right to partici- te as a legal political party in free ctions under American supervis- n, after peace was restored.

Marshall Can't Recall Report

"For this, they were to lay down eir arms. If the Communists re- sed to agree he (MacArthur) oposed that he surround and dis- m them by force."

Smith said he was told "dozens of fficials" of the Army, Navy, Air orce, Marines and Office of Stra- gic Services saw the MacArthur port. But Marshall declared he ad no recollection of ever having

Dawson Admits Accepting Free Vacation At Luxury Hotel Which Got RFC Loan

DAWSON QUIZZED — Donald S. Dawson, President Truman's patronage adviser, is shown as he was questioned yesterday by members of the Senate Banking subcommittee investigating the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. He denied he influenced the granting of big loans by the RFC. (AP Wirephoto)

Truman Aide Denies He Influenced Agency

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP) — White House Aide Donald Dawson acknowledged today that he and two other members of President Truman's staff took free vacations at a $30-a-day luxury hotel in Miami Beach, Fla., after the hotel borrowed $1,500,000 from the government.

But Dawson told senators he understood some lawmakers themselves have accepted similar on-the-cuff courtesies from the same hotel, the Saxony.

He named the other two presidential staffers as David K. Niles and Col. Charles Maylon, deputy White House military aide.

Admits "Social" Contacts

Making his long-awaited appearance as a witness in the RFC inquiry, Dawson swore he never abused his White House prestige by attempting to sway multi-million dollar federal loans.

Quietly but with intermittent flashes of anger, Dawson acknowledged he had "social" contacts with members of what senators call an "influence clique" operating around the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the government's big money-lending agency.

He insisted, however, that he had "no influence" with the RFC.

At the end of Dawson's long testimony, Chairman Fulbright (D-Ark) of the Senate inquiry committee told newsmen:

"I Did Nothing Improper"

"Maybe Mr. Dawson isn't conscious that sitting next to the President, as he does, is regarded as a place of great significance. He sees nothing wrong with what he did in the Saxony case. I do."

Under questioning, Dawson contended that he did not know the Saxony had borrowed money from the RFC when he accepted free lodging at the hotel for himself, Mrs. Dawson and their daughter in December, 1949.

Besides that 13-day visit, he said, he took expenses-paid holidays at the hotel on two other occasions.

"I did nothing improper," he said, "but I would not do it again."

The White House aide was instructed to return for further questioning tomorrow.

Congress Votes Medical Benefits For Korea Vets

Truman's Request Speedily Granted

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP)—One day after a veteran of the Korean fighting was denied admission to a government hospital, Congress today passed legislation to give Korea veterans the same medical benefits as survivors of other wars.

The legislation went to President Truman for his signature late today, only hours after he had asked for a change in the present law. He and Congress agreed that men fighting in Korea should not be discriminated against because their war is an undeclared one.

Unanimous Votes

Unanimous votes in the Senate and House pushed through two slightly different versions. Then, to speed matters even more, the Senate agreed to the House version and thereby completed congressional action. The agreed-upon version was a little broader than the Senate's original.

As it reached Mr. Truman, the legislation provides that Korean war veterans are entitled to these World War II privileges:

1. Medical, hospital and domiciliary benefits; 2. burial benefits; 3. compensation and pensions for the veteran and his dependents.

It was only yesterday that ex-Marine David R. Arellano, 21, was denied treatment at a Veterans Administration hospital at Tucson, Ariz., because he had not served in a recognized war.

Capitol Responds Quickly

Washington was quick to respond, in this sequence:

1. President Truman told a morning news conference that the law which barred Arellano from treatment at federal expense ought to be changed. He followed up with letters to the House and Senate presiding officers.

2. With the bi-partisan backing of Sen. George (D-Ga) and Taft (R-Ohio), the Senate Finance Committee waived hearings on the request and the Senate passed by voice vote a resolution granting the Korean veterans the benefits enjoyed by those of World War II.

3. The House, likewise by voice vote, followed suit.

More Steel Will Go For Defense

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP)—Officials disclosed today that more than half of the nation's record-size output of steel may be set aside for defense and defense supporting programs in July—and still more in August.

That will mean a 10 to 15 per cent greater defense bite into supplies of that basic metal and, conseqeutly, a proportionate reduction in the amount of steel available for producing civilian goods.

The upshot is likely to be a further cut in production of autos, refrigerators and other consumer goods along with additional cutbacks in construction for non defense purposes.

Production of durable consumer goods in general is already down to a rate about 20 per cent below the level of a year ago.

The National Production Authority previewed the July-August picture for its steel products industry advisory committee, composed of major steel company executives, then issued a statement saying:

"Steel set-aside for defense and defense-supporting programs may exceed 50 per cent of the total output of ingots in July. This percentage may run much higher than 50 per cent on some products such as plates, tubes and steel alloys."

Man Cures Snoring In Vain; Wife Seeks Divorce Anyway

CHICAGO, May 10. (AP)—Richard Michalak, the man whose snore wrecked health and home, is cured—too late.

The 25-year-old egg inspector came jubilantly into Superior Court today to reclaim the affections of his wife, Florence, 20, an attractive blonde.

She agreed a month ago to hold up her suit for separate maintenance while he sought a cure for his big snore. Richard's night noises, she maintained, had wrecked her health.

Richard fought his affliction with gusto. He moved into a small room in a YMCA hotel. He pored over more than 500 suggested cures submitted by snore-wise folk in many cities who had learned of his plight.

Richard enlisted "snore listeners" in adjacent rooms to listen while he slept.

With a hopeful sidewise glance at his pretty wife, the young man informed Judge F. Desort today that his snoring days were over.

But before he could elaborate his wife's attorney, Charles C. Cooley, intervened.

He told the court Mrs. Michalak felt she could not live up to her agreement and return to Richard whom she married two years ago. He said she intended to file suit for divorce.

Panama Police Subdue Arias In Bloody Fight

At Least 9 Killed In Palace Battle

PANAMA, Panama, May 10 (AP)—Deposed President Arnulfo Arias was arrested and jailed today after a bloody four-hour stand against the nation's armed forces driven to action by the greatest civil resistance movement in Panama's history. At least nine persons were killed and scores wounded.

Entrenched with hundreds of followers in the presidential palace overlooking picturesque Panama harbor, Arias fought to stay in office in the face of impeachment by the National Assembly and popular clamor against him. He lost—and was thrown behind bars.

The nine dead and the scores wounded in today's fighting added to a toll of three deaths and 110 wounded or injured in the violent disorders touched off by Arias' act Monday night switching the country's constitutions by decree.

Arias was flushed out of the third floor residential quarters of the palace by national police who fought their way in with machine guns, rifles and tear gas. He came out in a bloodstained white suit but was not wounded.

Col. Jose Antonio Remon — the same man who put Arias into power Nov. 24, 1949 in a bloodless police coup—said Arias was being held at the orders of the National Assembly. Wednesday night the Assembly impeached Arias for abuse of his constitutional powers and called on First Vice-President Alcibiades Arosemena to take over the presidency. The Assembly's action was held legal today by the Supreme Court.

The Panama radio said Arias was taken to national police headquarters with his wife, former Government Minister Jose Clemente De Obaldia, and former Finance Minister Norberto Zurita. Arias was described as "pale and fearful" at the end of what police had called a "state of revolution."

Shortly before his arrest was announced, the Panama radio reported the Arias men were surrendering in large groups and "the people, as represented by the national police, have won a great victory."

But civilians were warned to stay indoors and let the police deal with the situation because some Arias supporters still were shooting.

The radio said two of the men killed at the palace were Maj. Alfredo Gomez and Lt. Juan Flores of the national police.

Drought, Insects Cut Wheat Crop

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP)—The Agriculture Department reported today that drought and insects have destroyed about a fourth of this year's prospective winter wheat crop. As a consequence, some users abroad may have to get along with less.

Last December the crop was forecast at 899,000,000 bushels, but the department's May estimate today cut prospects to 682,196,000. The loss in April was put at 44,000,000 bushels. Previously, the agency reduced its December estimate by 173,000,000 bushels.

Last year's winter crop was 750,000,000 bushels and the 10-year average 791,000,000.

Unless there is a sharp upturn in the condition of the crop between now and early summer harvest, it is quite likely that the combined production of winter and spring wheat will be the smallest since 1943 and the first crop of less than 1,000,000,000 bushels since the same year.

Officials are hoping for a spring crop of at least 300,000,000 bushels. No estimate was given for this type inasmuch as planting has not been completed.

Ridgway's Promotion Confirmed By Senate

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP)—The Senate today approved the promotion of Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway to the rank of four-star general in his posts as successor to Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

The action was by unanimous non-record vote, after Sen. Cain (R-Wash) had praised Ridgway as a man who "in the sight and presence of the enemy" on Korean battlefields has "answered conclusively every possible question about his courage and capacity for leadership."

Dewey Urges Total Embargo Against China

Suggests 11-Point 'Stop Russia' Policy

NEW YORK, May 10 (AP) — Gov. Thomas E. Dewey tonight urged an "absolute and total" embargo by the free world against trade of any kind with Communist China.

It was one of 11 planks in a global policy which he said is most urgently needed to stop Russia from taking the world "bit by bit."

In the Far East especially, Dewey accused the Truman administration of courting wars by "weak-kneed wobbling" and added:

"I suggest that now is the time for the force of public opinion to compel our government to formulate a policy for the whole Far East — a policy that will stop the spread of Communism and start turning it back."

Address N. Y. GOP Committee

The speech — a major foreign policy address by a two-time candidate for president — was prepared for the third annual dinner of the New York State Republican Committee.

Dewey's 11 points covering both Asia and Europe were:

1. No appeasement or retreat from Communism anywhere in the world.

2. No recognition ever of Red China and use of the veto if needed to keep her out of the U. N.

3. A free Formosa never permitted at any time to fall into Communist hands.

4. More aid for Chiang Kai-Shek's Nationalists and releasing his troops for any use he wants to make of them against the Chinese mainland.

Embargo Against China

5. A total trade embargo against Red China.

6. Continued bi-partisan support for a Japanese peace treaty.

7. A policy aimed at an eventual United States of Europe.

8. Admittance of Turkey, Greece, Spain and Yugoslavia into the North Atlantic treaty alliance.

9. A solid front of free nations, guarded against any Soviet attempt to split them apart.

10. Universal military training at once.

11. A speedup in production of tanks and airplanes no matter what it costs.

Russia, West Agree On Incomplete Agenda

PARIS, May 10 (AP) — Russia agreed with the three Western Powers tonight on an incomplete agenda that would leave to the Big Four foreign ministers the question of how to discuss disarmament.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko also insisted that the question of the Atlantic pact and American bases in Europe be submitted to the foreign ministers as a "disagreed item."

This means that the foreign ministers of the United States, Great Britain, Russia and France—when and if they meet—would have first to decide on the wording of the agenda items dealing with armed forces and arms and on whether to take up the Atlantic pact.

Britain Cuts Off Rubber To China

LONDON, May 10. (AP)—Britain's Labor government today halted rubber shipments to Communist China for the rest of 1951. Aroused American public opinion and whipsawing attacks by Winston Churchill's Conservatives provoked the decision.

The rubber ban was announced in the House of Commons a few moments after Churchill had thundered a demand for the change at once "on the grounds of national safety and even survival."

Churchill also attacked Britain's maintenance of diplomatic relations with Red China, saying these ties had brought no advantage to Britain or the United Nations "and they have become a reproach against us in wide circles in America."

A revival of isolationist sentiment in the United States, he warned, might lessen American help for Europe, which could lead to the ruin of "the whole free world."

He said the Labor government should avoid giving the United States the impression that, while Americans carried the heaviest load in Korea, Britain "pulled at their coat tails and read them moral lessons in statecraft and the love we ought to have for China."

JERUSALEM, May 10 (AP) — Israeli troops paraded today in celebration of the third anniversary of Israel's nationhood. The show was the biggest of its kind ever seen in this 3,000-year old city.

Otto Of Hapsburg, Princess Wed In Regal Pomp Of Old

NANCY, France, May 10 (AP) — Archduke Otto of Hapsburg, whose followers call him ruler of the Austro-Hungarian empire, today married German Princess Regina of Saxony-Meiningen in the lavish pomp of old.

Barred from Austria by the law of that republic which was once the center of his family's dominion, the 38-year-old pretender and the 25-year-old blonde, blue-eyed Princess went throug civil and religious ceremonies in this ancient city. Nancy was once the capital of Otto's French ancestors, the Dukes of Lorraine.

Only the flag of the Duchy of Lorraine flew from the balcony of the ornate City Hall, where the civil ceremony required by French law was performed. The religious ceremony was held in the Roman Catholic Cathedral of the Ropemakers, where many of Otto's Lorraine ancestors are buried.

Communist-inspired students marred the wedding procession by hurling a few badly-aimed eggs. The eggs missed by 10 yards and failed to ruffle the royal couple. Police said three persons were arrested for handing out Communist leaflets protesting the absence of the French flag.

American guests at the ceremony included David K. Bruce, ambassador to France, and Mrs. Perle Mesta, minister to Luxembourg.

House Group OKs Corporation Tax Hike Of 2 Billion

Would Increase Rate 5 Percentage Points

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP)—The House Ways and Means Committee voted today to levy an additional $2,080,000,000 a year taxes on corporations, by adding five percentage points to their normal tax rate.

The administration had asked for eight percentage points, and increase which Secretary of the Treasury Snyder estimated would bring in an additional $3,300,000,000 annually.

Altogether, the committee has raked together an estimated $5,460,000,000 in additional revenue during the past two weeks deliberations behind closed doors. The biggest single increase, voted yesterday, would take nearly $3,000,000,000 more from individual income taxpayers.

Decisions Are Tentative

Chairman Doughton (D-NC) emphasized that all the decisions are tentative and are subject to later reconsideration.

Although the vote was not officially announced, the motion to add five percentage points to the corporate rate was reported to have been supported by the 15 Democrats on the committee and opposed by the 10 Republican members.

Here is how today's decision will affect corporations, if the increase is upheld by the House and Senate:

Ceiling Would Rise

The normal rate on the first $25,000 of taxable corporate income will go up from 25 to 30 per cent. On income over $25,000, the rate will be 52 per cent rather than the existing 47 per cent. On income subject to the excess profits tax (30 per cent on top of the combined normal and surtax rates) the effective rate will be 82 per cent instead of 77 per cent.

However, Congress has fixed a ceiling on the total taxes the federal government can take from a corporation in all kinds of income taxes. That ceiling, now 62 per cent of net income, would rise to 67 per cent.

U. N. Patrols Meet Stiffer Resistance

Ridgway Says Tide Turns Against Reds

TOKYO, Friday, May 11 (AP)—Fresh Red forces streamed into buildup areas along the western and central fronts today. Resistance against aggressive Allied patrols stiffened generally across the peninsula.

An Eighth Army spokesman reported "a considerable amount" of Red movement east of Munsan, some 10 miles below parallel 38 and 20 miles northwest of Seoul.

AP Correspondent George McArthur, on the west-central front, said Allied bombers ran into heavy antiaircraft fire last night in attacks on a buildup in the Kapyong area.

Kapyong is 12 miles south of the parallel and 32 miles northeast of Seoul. McArthur reported the Chinese evidenly have shifted east after withdrawing north of the old Korean capital.

Turning Of Tide Ridgway Says

Field commanders expect a renewal of the big Red spring offensive at any time in this battle of Korea.

Gen. Matthew R. Ridgway said Thursday the battle marked a turning of the tide against world communism.

Ridgway, United Nations commander, said that because of Allied successes in Korea, history might record "that the crest of the Communist wave has been broken."

His message was addressed to Lt. Gen. James A .Van Fleet, Eighth Army commander whose armored patrols punched into Munsan, 21 miles northwest of Seoul and 10 miles south of the parallel.

Van Fleet had congratulated Ridgway on his nomination to full general by President Truman. Ridgway told Van Fleet it was "quite possible" history would show that the flood of Communist aggression, "reaching its high mark on your front, thereafter began its recession."

Van Fleet had said earlier that he felt more confident of whipping the Reds now than he did at the outset of the Chinese and Korean Red offensive April 22. After 10 days and losses of an estimated 75,000 men, the Reds began a withdrawal that—in most sectors—still continues.

Chinese "Wilting On Vine"

Lt. Gen. Edward M. Almond, commander of the U. S. 10th Corps, observed that the Chinese armies along Korea's mid-section were "wilting on the vine" for lack of supplies.

Red supply lines have been hit 'round-the-clock by Allied fighters and bombers. More than 650 sorties were flown by dusk Thursday.

Almond cautioned that the Reds presumably will try to renew their offensive, however.

The tank-infantry column stabbed into Munsan and withdrew Thursday after South Korean troops erased a threat by 6,000 Korean Reds to flank Seoul from the west.

An Eighth Army spokesman said the Reds were killed or routed in three days of fighting.

Red Trade Ban Put In Money Bill

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP)—The Senate voted tonight to cut off economic aid to any nation which permits shipment of arms or other war-useful materials to Communist areas.

It wrote this ban into a $431,127,477 appropriation bill, which it passed by a voice vote. The money is to finance several government agencies in what remains of the fiscal year ending next June 30.

The measure now goes to conference with House, which had passed the measure in different form. The Senate ordered its conferees to yield no ground on the ban on aid to nations trading with the Communists.

It acted after Sen. Wherry of Nebraska, the Republican floor leader, recalled that in a similar situation last year, the House blocked in the conference an "identical" proposal, and insisted on substitute language which merely made such a ban permissive.

He demanded, and the Senate went along with him, that the conferees this time refuse to approve "watered-down, permissive legislation."

Sen. Kem (R-Mo) led the fight in the Senate for the outright ban. He left no doubt he was aiming at Great Britain primarily, although he said many other beneficiaries of U. S. aid also have shipped vital materials to Communist nations.

Marshall Would Veto China U. N. Bid

View Clashes With "Ruling" By State Dept.

MacArthur Wanted Showdown In 1945

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP)—Sec- ary of Defense Marshall indicat- today that the United States ould use its veto power if neces- ry to block the entry of Red ina into the United Nations.

The Department of State has held at Red China's admission to the N. is a "procedural" matter ich cannot be vetoed in the Se- rity Council—even though this vernment is reported opposed to e entry.

The Secretary gave senators this w as he defended—for the fourth aight day — the administration ogram in Asia with arguments ich President Truman told re- rters are the exact truth, word for rd.

He will resume his testimony to- orrow at 9 a. m., EST.

Earlier, Marshall had said the S. government will fight Com- unist China's admission to the N. and will not permit the island Formosa to fall into Red hands.

"Mac" Backed Ultimatum

Marshall's statement on the veto me after he denied that old pre- dices, growing out of clashing ews over the Chinese Reds coming power, had played a part in the ster of Gen. Douglas MacArthur. He said: "I don't think that had y connection with it whatsoever." e has said MacArthur was fired cause he was openly out of sym- hy with the present U. S. policies Asia.

Earlier, MacArthur was reported have been ready in 1945 to march lied troops against the Chinese ed army unless the Communists id down their arms and agreed to free election in China.

Sen. Smith (R-NJ) said this re- rt came from "a pretty good thority" and stated that after -J Day MacArthur told the War epartment the Chinese Red force as composed of only 125,000 to 0,000 guerillas.

"He proposed," Smith said, "that ith Chinese government agree- ent, America guarantee the per- nal safety of the Communist aders and their right to partici- te as a legal political party in free ections, under American supervis- n, after peace was restored.

Marshall Can't Recall Report

"For this, they were to lay down eir arms. If the Communists re- sed to agree he (MacArthur) oposed that he surround and dis- m them by force."

Smith said he was told "dozens of ficials" of the Army, Navy, Air orce, Marines and Office of Stra- gic Services saw the MacArthur port. But Marshall declared he ad no recollection of ever having

Dawson Admits Accepting Free Vacation At Luxury Hotel Which Got RFC Loan

DAWSON QUIZZED — Donald S. Dawson, President Truman's patronage adviser, is shown as he was questioned yesterday by members of the Senate Banking subcommittee investigating the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. He denied he influenced the granting of big loans by the RFC. (AP Wirephoto)

Truman Aide Denies He Influenced Agency

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP) — White House Aide Donald Dawson acknowledged today that he and two other members of President Truman's staff took free vacations at a $30-a-day luxury hotel in Miami Beach, Fla., after the hotel borrowed $1,500,000 from the government.

But Dawson told senators he understood some lawmakers themselves have accepted similar on-the-cuff courtesies from the same hotel, the Saxony.

He named the other two presidential staffers as David K. Niles and Col. Charles Maylon, deputy White House military aide.

Admits "Social" Contacts

Making his long-awaited appearance as a witness in the RFC inquiry, Dawson swore he never abused his White House prestige by attempting to sway multi-million dollar federal loans.

Quietly but with intermittent flashes of anger, Dawson acknowledged he had "social" contacts with members of what senators call an "influence clique" operating around the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the government's big money-lending agency.

He insisted, however, that he had "no influence" with the RFC.

At the end of Dawson's long testimony, Chairman Fulbright (D-Ark) of the Senate inquiry committee told newsmen:

"I Did Nothing Improper"

"Maybe Mr. Dawson isn't conscious that sitting next to the President, as he does, is regarded as a place of great significance. He sees nothing wrong with what he did in the Saxony case. I do."

Under questioning, Dawson contended that he did not know the Saxony had borrowed money from the RFC when he accepted free lodging at the hotel for himself, Mrs. Dawson and their daughter in December, 1949.

Besides that 13-day visit, he said, he took expenses-paid holidays at the hotel on two other occasions.

"I did nothing improper," he said, "but I would not do it again."

The White House aide was instructed to return for further questioning tomorrow.

Congress Votes Medical Benefits For Korea Vets

Truman's Request Speedily Granted

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP)—One day after a veteran of the Korean fighting was denied admission to a government hospital, Congress today passed legislation to give Korea veterans the same medical benefits as survivors of other wars.

The legislation went to President Truman for his signature late today, only hours after he had asked for a change in the present law. He and Congress agreed that men fighting in Korea should not be discriminated against because their war is an undeclared one.

Unanimous Votes

Unanimous votes in the Senate and House pushed through two slightly different versions. Then, to speed matters even more, the Senate agreed to the House version and thereby completed congressional action. The agreed-upon version was a little broader than the Senate's original.

As it reached Mr. Truman, the legislation provides that Korean war veterans are entitled to these World War II privileges:

1. Medical, hospital and domiciliary benefits; 2. burial benefits; 3. compensation and pensions for the veteran and his dependents.

It was only yesterday that ex-Marine David R. Arellano, 21, was denied treatment at a Veterans Administration hospital at Tucson, Ariz., because he had not served in a recognized war.

Capitol Responds Quickly

Washington was quick to respond, in this sequence:

1. President Truman told a morning news conference that the law which barred Arellano from treatment at federal expense ought to be changed. He followed up with letters to the House and Senate presiding officers.

2. With the bi-partisan backing of Sen. George (D-Ga) and Taft (R-Ohio), the Senate Finance Committee waived hearings on the request and the Senate passed by voice vote a resolution granting the Korean veterans the benefits enjoyed by those of World War II.

3. The House, likewise by voice vote, followed suit.

More Steel Will Go For Defense

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP)—Officials disclosed today that more than half of the nation's record-size output of steel may be set aside for defense and defense supporting programs in July—and still more in August.

That will mean a 10 to 15 per cent greater defense bite into supplies of that basic metal and, conseqeutly, a proportionate reduction in the amount of steel available for producing civilian goods.

The upshot is likely to be a further cut in production of autos, refrigerators and other consumer goods along with additional cutbacks in construction for non defense purposes.

Production of durable consumer goods in general is already down to a rate about 20 per cent below the level of a year ago.

The National Production Authority previewed the July-August picture for its steel products industry advisory committee, composed of major steel company executives, then issued a statement saying:

"Steel set-aside for defense and defense-supporting programs may exceed 50 per cent of the total output of ingots in July. This percentage may run much higher than 50 per cent on some products such as plates, tubes and steel alloys."

Man Cures Snoring In Vain; Wife Seeks Divorce Anyway

CHICAGO, May 10. (AP)—Richard Michalak, the man whose snore wrecked health and home, is cured —too late.

The 25-year-old egg inspector came jubilantly into Superior Court today to reclaim the affections of his wife, Florence, 20, an attractive blonde.

She agreed a month ago to hold up her suit for separate maintenance while he sought a cure for his big snore. Richard's night noises, she maintained, had wrecked her health.

Richard fought his affliction with gusto. He moved into a small room in a YMCA hotel. He pored over more than 500 suggested cures submitted by snore-wise folk in many cities who had learned of his plight.

Richard enlisted "snore listeners" in adjacent rooms to listen while he slept.

With a hopeful sidewise glance at his pretty wife, the young man informed Judge F. Desort today that his snoring days were over.

But before he could elaborate his wife's attorney, Charles C. Cooley, intervened.

He told the court Mrs. Michalak felt she could not live up to her agreement and return to Richard whom she married two years ago. He said she intended to file suit for divorce.

Panama Police Subdue Arias In Bloody Fight

At Least 9 Killed In Palace Battle

PANAMA, Panama, May 10 (AP)—Deposed President Arnulfo Arias was arrested and jailed today after a bloody four-hour stand against the nation's armed forces driven to action by the greatest civil resistance movement in Panama's history. At least nine persons were killed and scores wounded.

Entrenched with hundreds of followers in the presidential palace overlooking picturesque Panama harbor, Arias fought to stay in office in the face of impeachment by the National Assembly and popular clamor against him. He lost—and was thrown behind bars.

The nine dead and the scores wounded in today's fighting added to a toll of three deaths and 110 wounded or injured in the violent disorders touched off by Arias' act Monday night switching the country's constitutions by decree.

Arias was flushed out of the third floor residential quarters of the palace by national police who fought their way in with machine guns, rifles and tear gas. He came out in a bloodstained white suit but was not wounded.

Col. Jose Antonio Remon — the same man who put Arias into power Nov. 24, 1949 in a bloodless police coup—said Arias was being held at the orders of the National Assembly. Wednesday night the Assembly impeached Arias for abuse of his constitutional powers and called on First Vice-President Alcibiades Arosemena to take over the presidency. The Assembly's action was held legal today by the Supreme Court.

The Panama radio said Arias was taken to national police headquarters with his wife, former Government Minister Jose Clemente De Obaldia, and former Finance Minister Norberto Zurita. Arias was described as "pale and fearful" at the end of what police had called a "state of revolution."

Shortly before his arrest was announced, the Panama radio reported the Arias men were surrendering in large groups and "the people, as represented by the national police, have won a great victory."

But civilians were warned to stay indoors and let the police deal with the situation because some Arias supporters still were shooting.

The radio said two of the men killed at the palace were Maj. Alfredo Gomez and Lt. Juan Flores of the national police.

Drought, Insects Cut Wheat Crop

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP)—The Agriculture Department reported today that drought and insects have destroyed about a fourth of this year's prospective winter wheat crop. As a consequence, some users abroad may have to get along with less.

Last December the crop was forecast at 899,000,000 bushels, but the department's May estimate today cut prospects to 682,196,000. The loss in April was put at 44,000,000 bushels. Previously, the agency reduced its December estimate by 173,000,000 bushels.

Last year's winter crop was 750,000,000 bushels and the 10-year average 791,000,000.

Unless there is a sharp upturn in the condition of the crop between now and early summer harvest, it is quite likely that the combined production of winter and spring wheat will be the smallest since 1943 and the first crop of less than 1,000,000,000 bushels since the same year.

Officials are hoping for a spring crop of at least 300,000,000 bushels. No estimate was given for this type inasmuch as planting has not been completed.

U. N. Patrols Meet Stiffer Resistance

Ridgway Says Tide Turns Against Reds

TOKYO, Friday, May 11 (AP)—Fresh Red forces streamed into buildup areas along the western and central fronts today. Resistance against aggressive Allied patrols stiffened generally across the peninsula.

An Eighth Army spokesman reported "a considerable amount" of Red movement east of Munsan, some 10 miles below parallel 38 and 20 miles northwest of Seoul.

AP Correspondent George McArthur, on the west-central front, said Allied bombers ran into heavy antiaircraft fire last night in attacks on a buildup in the Kapyong area.

Kapyong is 12 miles south of the parallel and 32 miles northeast of Seoul. McArthur reported the Chinese evidenly have shifted east after withdrawing north of the old Korean capital.

Turning Of Tide Ridgway Says

Field commanders expect a renewal of the big Red spring offensive at any time in this battle of Korea.

Gen. Matthew R. Ridgway said Thursday the battle marked a turning of the tide against world communism.

Ridgway, United Nations commander, said that because of Allied successes in Korea, history might record "that the crest of the Communist wave has been broken."

His message was addressed to Lt. Gen. James A .Van Fleet, Eighth Army commander whose armored patrols punched into Munsan, 21 miles northwest of Seoul and 10 miles south of the parallel.

Van Fleet had congratulated Ridgway on his nomination to full general by President Truman. Ridgway told Van Fleet it was "quite possible" history would show that the flood of Communist aggression, "reaching its high mark on your front, thereafter began its recession."

Van Fleet had said earlier that he felt more confident of whipping the Reds now than he did at the outset of the Chinese and Korean Red offensive April 22. After 10 days and losses of an estimated 75,000 men, the Reds began a withdrawal that—in most sectors—still continues.

Chinese "Wilting On Vine"

Lt. Gen. Edward M. Almond, commander of the U. S. 10th Corps, observed that the Chinese armies along Korea's mid-section were "wilting on the vine" for lack of supplies.

Red supply lines have been hit 'round-the-clock by Allied fighters and bombers. More than 650 sorties were flown by dusk Thursday.

Almond cautioned that the Reds presumably will try to renew their offensive, however.

The tank-infantry column stabbed into Munsan and withdrew Thursday after South Korean troops erased a threat by 6,000 Korean Reds to flank Seoul from the west.

An Eighth Army spokesman said the Reds were killed or routed in three days of fighting.

Red Trade Ban Put In Money Bill

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP)—The Senate voted tonight to cut off economic aid to any nation which permits shipment of arms or other war-useful materials to Communist areas.

It wrote this ban into a $431,127,477 appropriation bill, which it passed by a voice vote. The money is to finance several government agencies in what remains of the fiscal year ending next June 30.

The measure now goes to conference with House, which had passed the measure in different form. The Senate ordered its conferees to yield no ground on the ban on aid to nations trading with the Communists.

It acted after Sen. Wherry of Nebraska, the Republican floor leader, recalled that in a similar situation last year, the House blocked in the conference an "identical" proposal, and insisted on substitute language which merely made such a ban permissive.

He demanded, and the Senate went along with him, that the conferees this time refuse to approve "watered-down, permissive legislation."

Sen. Kem (R-Mo) led the fight in the Senate for the outright ban. He left no doubt he was aiming at Great Britain primarily, although he said many other beneficiaries of U. S. aid also have shipped vital materials to Communist nations.

'Self-Discipline' Is Key To Peace, Baruch Declares

NEW YORK, May 10 (INS)—Bernard Baruch said tonight that the western world's key to peace and to security is "self-discipline," which he defined as ability to put aside "petty comforts and petty profits" in favor of the national interest.

The elder statesman and adviser to presidents spoke in New York before the Boys' Clubs of America.

"Our choice," he said, "is self-discipline or slavery.

"The Soviet regime stands for no new, progressive philosophy. It seeks to re-establish one of the oldest dogmas in history—that people are unfit to govern themselves but must obey the dictates of a chosen few who claim that they alone know all the answers."

Baruch said the United States stands for "faith in mankind, in man's ability to govern himself through representatives of his own choosing," and he added:

"The test we face, along with those other nations who believe in man, is one of government. Either we succeed in governing ourselves or, if we fail, we invite others to shackle us in ruthless subjection."

If the United States is overwhelmed, he said, it will not be because others had a superior strength, but because we failed "to discipline ourselves — because we failed to discipline the various pressure groups in the national interest."

"What greater incentive, profit or comfort can we desire," he asked, "than to preserve our liberty. What baubles that we clutch to our bosoms are worth a tithe of that?"

OPS Violator Joins Road Gang

SPOKANE, Wash., (AP) — Six months in a federal road camp is the price Cloy Magnuson, meat market operator, must pay for violating regulations of the Office of Price Stabilization.

Magnuson was sentenced after pleading guilty to charges of not keeping proper invoices of ownership and transfer on 1,850 pounds of beef.

OPS officials said Magnuson was one of the first persons in the nation prosecuted under the new law governing meat dealers.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Frank Freeman said the meat was stolen from a packing plant at Davenport, west of here.

Magnuson knew the meat was stolen, Freeman said, "because he unloaded it at 4 a. m. Sunday morning and paid only 30 cents a pound for it."

Federal officials were tipped off on the illegal transaction by prowl car officers who saw the meat being unloaded.

Magnuson's attorney urged a light sentence saying Magnuson had been losing $1000 a month in his two markets and could not pay a fine.

"Oldest" University Of Americas Celebrates Its Fourth Centennial

LIMA, Peru—(AP)—The Major San Marcos University of Lima, which prides itself on being the oldest of American universities, this week starts celebration of its fourth centennial.

The commemoration program, which starts officially Saturday, will continue several months. Among the scheduled activities, mostly academic, will be lectures to be delivered by some of the most noted intellectuals of Peru, North and South America and Europe.

The University of San Marcos considers itself the oldest of the new world because the 'cedula real' (royal decree) ordering its creation was dated May 12, 1551. It was signed by Queen Mother Juana La Loca (the Mad), who was ruling the immence Spanish empire of those days because her son, King Charles I of Spain and Emperor Charles V of the Holy German Empire, was away in Germany. San Marcos University also bases its claim on the fact that its existence never was interrupted during the 400 years.

In this regard San Marcos keeps a cordial rivalry with the Universities of Santo Domingo and Mexico City. The first one started its activities in 1538 under authority granted by a papal bull, but without the participation of the Spanish government. Furthermore the Santo Domingo University functioned at an insular possession and not on the American mainland. Also this university has been in recess, for different causes, for about 100 years.

In Mexico it is reported the Mexican University started its activities earlier than San Marcos, but local authorities said it is difficult to verify this contention. The royal decree ordering the university at Mexico City was dated September 21, 1551, several months after the foundation of the University of Lima by the Spanish crown.

Although the University of San Marcos is completely independent from the government, as regards its teaching programs, and administration, the government has allocated three million soles (about $180,000) to help celebrate the beginning of its fifth century.

Its curriculum embraces faculties in law, medicine, letters, science, economic science, pharmacy, dentistry, chemical education and veterinary medicine. Total enrollment of students is about 10,000.

Only 16 years had passed from the beginning of the conquest of Peru by Francisco Pizarro when the Dominican friars who were holding one of their periodical chapters at Cuzo in 1548 decided to create a university in Peru. The rebellion of Gonzalo Pizarro, a brother of the conqueror, had just been crushed bloodily by loyal troops.

The city council of Lima in the following year approved the plan and dispatched two emissaries to Spain to ask new benefits and grants from the king.

The emissaries were Captain Don Jeronimo De Aliaga, one of the founders of the City of Kings—later Lima—and Friar Tomas De San Martin.

The royal decree approving the foundation of the university mentioned only Friar Tomas De San Martin and the 'padre' has always been considered as the founder of San Marcos.

Because the royal command said that the university should function at the monastery or convent of the Dominican Order, its first rectors down to Friar Antonio De Hervias, elected in 1571, were the Dominic provincials. That year rivalries and intrigues among the clergy caused serious trouble and measures were taken to modify the situation. The bylaws of the university were sent to the viceroy and the first secular rector was appointed. He was Don Pedro Fernandez De Valenzuela. The same year—July 25, 1571—a papal bull was received, 'ratifying and confirming' the creation of the university which thereafter was entitled to take the rank of 'royal and pontificial'.

Another Peruvian university which bears the title of pontificial is the Catholic University of Lima, a private institution founded some 30 years ago.

Besides the Major University of San Marcos there are three others in Peru. They are the "minor" Universities of Arequipa, Cuzco and Trujillo.

There are actually 1,692 islands in the "Thousand Islands" on the St. Lawrence river in New York State.

Controversial Brain Surgery Helps "Hopeless" Patients, Doctors Say

By FRANK CAREY

CINCINNATI—(AP)—The controversial "ice pick" brain operation has helped some hopeless patients and also alleviate a housing and personnel problem in an overcrowded New Jersey mental hospital, a team of doctors said today.

For the first time in a long while "many" detention rooms stand vacant because their former occupants were able to be returned to their homes following a relatively simple surgical technique, the doctors declared.

This was reported to the American Psychiatric Association by a team of psychiatrists of the New Jersey State Hospital at Trenton. They said the discharging of some patients and lessening of supervision required for others had lightened a personnel-shortage problem.

They referred to the relatively-new operation called "transorbital lobotomy" in which an instrument resembling an ice pick is inserted between the patient's eyelid and eyeball so that it severs certain nerves in the brain.

Designed to help certain forms of mental illness, especially where persons are chronically depressed and disturbed, the operation cuts off the connection between the main part of the brain and the so-called "frontal lobe"—the area believed to be the "worry" center.

But this same area is believed also to play a role in influencing judgment, the sense of responsibility, and one's ability to work efficiently and neatly.

And some doctors say that while operations involving the frontal lobe sometimes relieve a patient's worrying, they may leave him slovenly in habits and care-free to the extent that he can't do productive work.

But the doctors who reported today said that in their series of 200 cases—all of whom had been considered "hopeless" insofar as any degree of improvement was concerned—26 were returned to their homes and 76 others showed such "marked improvement that they are being considered for discharge. Meanwhile, they are working around the hospital and do not need the great amount of supervision required before operation."

Forty-five others showed "fair" improvement, 50, were not improved and there were three deaths from the operation itself.

Dr. W. W. Wilson and three colleagues, in their report to the APA, said that practically all the patients had previously been confined in small seclusion rooms for varying lengths of time up to 20 years. And they declared that "many other types" of treatment had failed in these cases.

"We do not wish to be enthusiastic to the point of indiscriminate operation before other types of therapy are used," they said, "but with the failure of other types of therapy after reasonable length of time we feel this procedure is indicated."

Saying that even those patients considered to have made only "fair" improvement no longer requires seclusion in detention rooms, the doctors declared:

"For the first time the doors of many seclusion rooms at the New Jersey State Hospital are standing open."

They said this was important because of the need for such rooms to take care of the criminally insane and because of the shortage of trainned personnel and attendants in their hospital and in certain other institutions.

Designed to help certain forms of mental illness, especially where persons are chronically depressed and disturbed, the operation cuts off the connection between the main part of the brain and the so-called "frontal lobe"—the area believed to be the "worry" center.

But this same area is believed also to play a role in influencing judgment, the sense of responsibility, and one's ability to work efficiently and neatly.

And some doctors say that while operations involving the frontal lobe sometimes relieve a patient's worrying, they may leave him slovenly in habits and care-free to the extent that he can't do productive work.

But the doctors who reported today said that in their series of 200 cases—all of whom had been considered "hopeless" insofar as any degree of improvement was concerned—26 were returned to their homes and 76 others showed such "marked improvement that they are being considered for discharge. Meanwhile, they are working around the hospital and do not need the great amount of supervision required before operation."

Forty-five others showed "fair" improvement, 50, were not improved and there were three deaths from the operation itself.

Dr. W. W. Wilson and three colleagues, in their report to the APA, said that practically all the patients had previously been confined in small seclusion rooms for varying lengths of time up to 20 years. And they declared that "many other types" of treatment had failed in these cases.

"We do not wish to be enthusiastic to the point of indiscriminate operation before other types of therapy are used," they said, "but with the failure of other types of therapy after reasonable length of time we feel this procedure is indicated."

Saying that even those patients considered to have made only "fair" improvement no longer requires seclusion in detention rooms, the doctors declared:

"For the first time the doors of many seclusion rooms at the New Jersey State Hospital are standing open."

They said this was important because of the need for such rooms to take care of the criminally insane and because of the shortage of trainned personnel and attendants in their hospital and in certain other institutions.

Blessed Advance

Cortisone has been a wonder hormone. As made in any quantity only from cattle bile it has been gaining steadily in acceptance for more and more human miseries, headed, of course, by arthritis. It also helps suffers from an array of troubles including alcoholism, rheumatic fever, asthma and snake bite.

But cortisone still comes in quantity only from cattle bile, and only from three per cent of that. Present production, by a slow and complex process, is only enough to supply 20,000 to 40,000 patients. In the U. S. there are 2,000,000 rheumatoid arthritics who could benefit from cortisone if they could get it. The cost is approximately $1,000 an ounce.

The hope, then, has been to find a cortisone substitute to do the job as well or better—or to synthesize cortisone from common chemicals.

Now comes big news from the meeting of the National Academy of Sciences in Washington. A team of Harvard chemists has started with a coal-tar derivative and come up with the synthesis of cortisone to a point where success is certain. Within a short time, it is hoped, the process of rearranging organic molecules will be finished.

The process of making cortisone from bile involves 30 steps. Only 20 steps need be taken now. It may be months or years before synthetic cortisone is on the market in the "unlimited quantities" heralded at Washington. But it is certain that human suffering will be forced to take a seat still farther back.

Who are to be thanked? Well, the research money was put up by Merck and Monsanto, two great chemical concerns. The research team was headed by Dr. Robert B. Woodward, duPont research professor at Harvard in 1949-1950. Nearly all great new discoveries today are the result of teamwork.

No exclusive rights to the manufacturing process will be given out. Cortisone a few years from now may be cheap and abundant enough for every medical use. Are there many new advances of science which could be of much greater potential blessing to the human race?

Selling "Serious" Books

"Serious book publishing might represent less of a gamble" if publishers had a better idea of what would sell and what would not.

That is the conclusion of the committee on reading development of the American Book Publishers' Council, and there is nobody to dispute it. But to assume, as this committee does, in recommending studies of reading habits to lessen financial risks, that blame for aversion to reading serious books can be laid at the door of the schools is going pretty far. The report says:

"Whatever emotions are aroused by memories of school are transferred to books. Thus book reading connotes the ordeal of examinations and the chore of compulsory assignment. It is not a symbol of pleasurable activity, but of imposed discipline."

That is altogether too easy a conclusion. Of a piece with this is the assertion that "the man in the street"—how many things he has to take the blame for!—looks on book reading as "a highbrow activity which smacks of devotion to the aristocratic way of life distasteful to his notions of democracy."

Of course not all adults are readers of serious books, but that there is a considerable body of opinion which regards scholarship as undemocratic, is certainly open to challenge. A year or two years hence when the suggested studies of reading patterns are completed, the publishers' council may have a different picture to present. It may have learned that serious, if not ponderous, books are eagerly absorbed as collateral reading in schools, and that the youngsters who devour them will be the readers years hence of what publishers most want to present to the public. Certainly the nonreaders of school and college days are not likely to be serious readers in later life.

The fear on the part of some of the publishers that "widely read, easily understood popularization" may defeat their highest aims is understandable. As the report says, the serious book "may be the one medium through which modern man can escape from the pressure of contemporary living." But it has to have reader interest, which presupposes a knowledge of reading taste that can be stimulated.

Essential Knowledge

It is essential for every American who wants to be a useful citizen to understand the purpose and nature of his government. Unlike people in most foreign lands, he has something to say about who shall direct the affairs of the country as well as locally. If he knows how the management operates, he is better prepared to protect his own interests so far as they may be affected by government regulations.

The 4-H Club organization—national and state—is supplying the means whereby its members can acquire the fundamentals of this knowledge. The parent body has established a week's camp in Washington for representatives of local groups throughout the country. Delegates chosen are those who show outstanding ability in leadership and community service in relation to their work. These are young people, banded together in clubs, who live in agricultural areas.

Of course, the entire membership cannot be sent to Washington. Yet those who attend the camp will be in a position to disseminate to their club associates at home the things they will have learned, thereby benefiting the whole organization. While in Washington the delegates will meet and talk with men and, women concerned with public affairs and can see the national government in action.

The basic knowledge thus obtained, if winnowed objectively, ought to be helpful in any follow-up study they make.

Fewer Britons

Direful days are ahead for Great Britain if Dr. Robert H. Parry, health officer of Bristol, England, and honorary physician to King George, is correct. He told students of the Cornell University Medical College that the population of the British Isles, now 50.000.000, would have to drop to 20.000.000. He thinks the present number could not possibly live off the land.

Such a drastic drop would seriously weaken the British position in the world. During the early modern period of history France was the greatest power in Europe, not merely because of her resources and the talents of her people, but because she was the most populous country. When wars killed off her best fighting men and her birth rate declined, France sank lower in the international scale. One reason for the formidable quality of Russia is her immense population.

Patriotic Britons, therefore, may well be alarmed for the future internatonal standing of their country.

How To Keep Well

Protection For Pork Eaters

TRICHINOSIS is prevalent wherever hogs are eaten as food. Cooking generally controls the disease by killing the causative parasites. Sausage remains a potential offender, especially when it is made without supervision from meat that has not been inspected.

One of our New York readers asked us several good questions concerning trichinosis. She is aware of the fact that the disorder comes from eating infested meat and that the larvae are freed of the protective coating by the digestive action of the ferments of the stomach. Here the worms set up housekeeping and mama gives birth to several hundred babies which in turn penetrate the intestinal wall and travel via the blood stream to the muscles, where they find a permanent home.

One inquirer was particularly interested in knowing about "the subsequent course of these larvae, now embedded in the human muscle, such as how long they remain larvae, where they go for reproduction. . . ." When the organisms reach human muscles their life cycle ends except perhaps in regions where cannibals abound. They are incased in a fibrous capsule that ultimately becomes hard as stone. Death usually takes place after six months but the calcified cage remains and can be identified years later if the tissues of the individual should be placed under a microscope.

The course of the ailment is the same in animals as in man. The pig, for example, acquires the disease as a rule by eating garbage that contains bits of infected pork. The parasites mate and multiply within the hog's stomach and some of the youngsters escape thru the intestinal tract, whereas the remainder burrow thru the wall of the bowel and finally end up in the muscles. But trichinae that locate in pig muscles are lucky because they have a chance to be freed. This occurs when the porker is sent to market and reaches our table without being cooked or cured propertly.

Our reader has been told that "trichinosis is generally acute, violent, and fatal." This is not true because the majority of victims hardly are aware of their plight. Much depends upon the number of parasites ingested and the age and physical status of the man or woman. A more violent illness occurs in the young and old, particularly after eating heavily tainted meat. Nausea, vomiting, abdominal pain, fever, and now and then diarrhea appear within 24 hours. A week later the suffered develops malaise, weakness, sweating, puffiness of the face, muscular aching, laryngitis, and hemorrhage beneath the skin and nails. This period coincides with the migration of the worms thru the walls of the intestine and into various parts of the body. After two to three weeks the illness subsides gradually. Recovery is complete altho occasionally vague muscular pains persist for a month or two. The individual is not left with chronic muscle disability "something like what used to be called muscular rheumatism," as she put it.

There is no treatment unless the individual discovers within 24 hours that the pork consumed was contaminated, in which case Epsom salts can be used to rid the digestive system of the intruders. After 24 hours little can be done because by this time the organisms have found refuge in the walls of the intestine. Preventive measures center about the garbage fed to pigs, meat inspection, and proper curing and cooking of pork.

BICYCLE NOT BUILT FOR TWO

Mrs. R. writes: I always ride a bike when doing my marketing. Now that I'm pregnant how long can I keep it up? We don't have a car as we are saving for the baby.

REPLY

Why not resort to walking after the third month? As you grow larger and more awkward there is greater danger that you will fall while riding a bike and thus harm yourself or the baby.

RINGWORM OF FOOT

J. L. writes: How long does it take to clear up athlete's foot?

REPLY

This varies with the individual. New cases may require only a few days whereas chonic dermotophytosis requires weeks or months; occasionally it never is cured, particularly when the nails are invaded by the fungus. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on athlete's foot.

REPLY

No. I know many underweight individuals with hypertension. Weight of itself does not cause high blood pressure but obesity is likely to aggravate the condition.

Treasury Should Probe Income Tax Of John Capone; Democrats Knife Low-Cost Housing; Real Estate Lobby Wins By Congressional Default

WASHINGTON—Secretary of the Treasury Snyder has now appointed an A-1 man, J. B. Dunlap, to head the special tax squad probing underworld income tax returns. Here is one tax return he might take a special look at—that of Chicago's Erminio John Capone, brother of Al Capone.

John has quite a free and easy way of making out his income tax return—so free and easy that the average businessman would be locked up if he operated the same way.

In 1949, for instance, Capone reported a total income of $23,135, which he said came from "miscellaneous" sources. In 1949 his income was $20,150, also from "miscellaneous." In 1946 he reported $10,180 from "miscellaneous," and in 1945 $8,810 from "miscellaneous" plus $800 from the Precision Metal and Machine Company.

During closed-door hearings of the Kefauver crime committee, Capone was questioned regarding this by Investigator George Robinson.

"Mr. Capone," observed Robinson, "I notice that you list your sole source of income over a period of years as being simply miscellaneous. Do you prepare your own returns?"

"I do. And I give the figure to an auditor and he files the return," replied Capone.

"What kind of figure do you give him? Do you break the figure down . . . or do you give him just a lump sum?" asked Robinson.

"Well, I give him my entire income," Capone retorted.

"How do you arrive at that lump sum?" Robinson pressed.

"Well, I just keep track of it," Capone fidgeted.

"How do you keep track of it?" demanded the investigator.

"I keep track of it from day to day," parried Capone.

"Do you put it down in a book?" Robinson persisted.

"Well," explained Capone, "if I win any money today, and I win the next day, I forget about the first day and just keep track of the total balance."

Miraculous Memory

'How do you keep track of the total balance?" Robinson fired again.

"In my mind," reported Capone.

"How many times did you speculate last year?" asked Robinson.

"I can't keep track of the times," snapped Capone. "There were numerous times."

'You kept it all in your head?" demanded Robinson.

"That is right," Capone agreed.

"Then you come up at the end of the year with a balance?" Robinson continued.

"Yes," Capone nodded.

"And that is what you put down as 'miscellaneous' in your return?" asked Robinson.

"Am I being tried for income tax here?" snarled Capone angrily.

"You aren't being tried for anything," shot back Robinson. "We are making an inquiry, Mr. Capone."

Maybe the Internal Revenue Bureau ought to make an inquiry, too.

Real Estate Lobby Wins

Republican congressmen have been chiefly identified with the real estate lobby in the past. However, House Democrats helped knife their own President in virtually killing the Taft low-cost public housing program last week.

It was Democrat Ed Gossett of Texas, long the spokesman for Eastern business, who sponsored and led the fight to slash the program to 5,000 low-cost, public housing units a year, 70,000 units less than President Truman says is our minimum need.

The Gossett amendment, while seeming to keep the housing program alive by a few token projects, actually snuffs out the whole program. For 5,000 units aren't enough to satisfy the slum-clearance of one big defense center—like New York or Chicago—and the administrative costs of a shoestring program will be so heavy that congressional economyites are bound to follow up with a demand that the whole housing program is ditched.

This is exactly what the National Association of Home Builders and other real estate lobbyists have been openly demanding—a suspension of public housing altogether.

FDR, Jr., Was Absent

Ironically, Administration Democrats from big cities, which need public housing most, had as much to do with adoption of the Gossett amendment—if not more—than the Republican-Dixiecrat coalition.

Gossett and GOP Rep. Jesse Wolcott of Michigan, another real estate lobby wheelhorse, cleverly forced a vote late Friday after members of the famous in-Tuesday-out-Thursday Absentee Club had made their usual mass exodus to New York and elsewhere. As a result, the Gossett amendment won by default, 181 to 113.

Though New York would gain more than any other city from continuance of the public housing program, only five of its 24 House members were sufficiently interested in their constituents to remain in Washington and vote against Gossett. They were Democrats Gary Clemente, Vincent Quinn, James Delaney, Donald O'Toole and Christopher McGrath, all of New York and Brooklyn.

Sixteen Manhattan and Brooklyn Democrats, however, were absent for the vital vote affecting their districts — Heller, Anfuso, Keogh, Kelly, Heffernan, Rooney, Multer, Celler, Murphy, Donovan, Klein, Fine, Powell, Dollinger and Buckley, and even Franklin Roosevelt, Jr., whose father helped pioneer public housing, did not stick around to vote. Three New York City Republicans also were not present to vote—Latham, Coudert and Javits.

Philadelphia, another big city with slums, also was let down by its Democratic congressmen. Its two Republican members, Hardie and Hugh Scott, were on the floor to vote against the Gossett amendment, but all four Democrats from Philadelphia — Barrett, Granahan, Chudoff and Green—took a run-out powder.

So also did Chicago's Democrats William Dawson and John Kluczynski. Dawson, a Negro congressman, represents one of the most congested areas in the world, while Kluczynski's Polish district is only a little less so. However, they did not bother to vote. Another significant absentee was Democrat Bob Poague of Waco, Texas, whose constituents recently voted for public housing in a referendum.

Other Texas absentees from cities with public housing programs were Frank Wilson of Dallas, Paul Kilday of San Antonio and Clark Thompson of Galveston.

NOTE—Some of these absentees may have been ill or out of town on legitimate business, but the great majority had no excuse for missing an important roll call like this.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

January 11 And 12

GENERAL Douglas MacArthur threw many more bombshells in his testimony before the Senate committees than was at first apparent. Only the most careful reading of the record brings out the points at issue. General MacArthur makes much of a program for action prepared by the Joint Chiefs of Staff on January 12. The ideas and purpose in that document showed that he and the Joint Chiefs of Staff were in full agreement. This program, as General MacArthur read it, is as follows:

"Continue and intensify now an economic blockade of trade with China.

"Prepart now to impose a naval blockade of China and place it into effect as soon as our position in Korea is stabilized or when we have evacuated Korea, and depending upon circumstances then obtaining.

"Remove now any restrictions on air reconnaissance of China coastal areas and of Manchuria.

"Remove now the restrictions on operation of the Chinese Nationalist forces and give such logistic support to those forces as will contribute to effective operations against the Communists."

Now, let us go back to January 11. On that day, a new five-point "cease-fire plan" was supported by the United States but criticized by Soviet Russia. This plan included these five provisions:

1. An immediate cease-fire with safeguards against use of the truce "as a screen for mounting a new offensive."

2. Action during the truce on a permanent Korean peace.

3. Exit of "non-Korean" forces by "appropriate stages."

4. UN-approved administration of Korea during the truce.

5. Creation of a UN agency, including the U.S., Russia, Britain, and Red China, to settle Far Eastern issues, including Formosa's future and Chinese representation in UN.

If we compare these two statements, one day apart, the question must arise as to whether the State Department knew what the Joint Chiefs of Staff were doing, or vice versa. For the Joint Chiefs of Staff were planning to blockade China while the State Department was planning to get Soviet China into the United Nations. The Joint Chiefs were planning to work with Nationalist China while the State Department was planning to ditch Nationalist China.

The cease-fire plan was passed on January 13, 50 to 7.

On January 15, Senator Eastland introduced a resolution for the United States to withdraw from the United Nations if Soviet China were seated and that President Truman be directed to defend Formosa. Senator Taft called the cease-fire plan "the most complete surrender to which the U.S. has ever agreed . . ."

Chou En-lai of Soviet China countered with the following proposals:

1. It should be assumed on both sides that all "foreign" troops will be withdrawn from Korea. (He did not specify whether this would cover Chinese "volunteers.") Negotiations for the withdrawal should be begun "so that the war in Korea may be brought to a speedy end."

2. The negotiations "must include the withdrawal of U.S. armed forces from Taiwan (Formosa) and the Taiwan Strait and Far Eastern related problems."

3. Participants in the negotiations should be Red China, Russia, U.S., Britain, France, India, and Egypt.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—It's just another Pearl Harbor investigation all over again.

Back in December, 1941, General Marshall and Admiral Stark thought that someone had told General Short and Admiral Kimmel what Washington knew about the forthcoming attack through breaking the Japanese code—but nobody did tell them.

Today, it comes out that the President and the Secretary of State and the Secretary of Defense and Special assistant Averell Harriman and General Bradley, who advised that General MacArthur be summarily dismissed, never told him that any of the public statements he had made during the preceding four weeks were violative of military orders or any other orders relating to policy statements.

The Administration may have thought that General MacArthur, at a distance of 10,000 miles, was a mind reader and as well informed about the state of mind of persons in Washington as were the five men who fired him, but there is not a single bit of evidence in the record after three days of testimony to support that point.

More Bad Liaison

In fact, the official record gets worse and worse for the Administration in revealing the same kind of bad liaison in the last few months with Tokyo as the War and Navy Departments had with Pearl Harbor ten years ago.

Not a single word of disapproval went to General MacArthur on December 6 last, when a general directive was issued advising all departments and all persons in the field as well as in Washington to clear policy statements with the departments back home. Although General Marshall now testifies that the Administration didn't like General MacArthur's answers to the questions of the press prior to December 6—even though they primarily concerned military matters in his theatre of action—not a word of such criticism was ever relayed to General MacArthur. He could as easily have inferred that there were no complaints here.

Not a single word of criticism or of any other kind went to General MacArthur specifically refering to his own statements or pointing out any deviation from policy to him between December 6, 1950, when the general directive was issued, and the day he was dismissed—April 11, 1951.

The now famous letter which General MacArthur wrote in routine fashion, answering an inquiry from Representative Joseph Martin, Republican, of Massachusetts, was dated March 20 at Tokyo. Although he had written letters to members of Congress and had talked with them in Tokyo during a period of nearly six years and they had made public the views which the General gave them, not a single word of criticism of his relations with members of Congress had ever been conveyed to him by his superiors in Washington.

Had No Word

When, on March 24 last, General MacArthur addressed a plea to the Chinese commander to agree to a "cease fire," not a single word of the statement or declaration being planned by the government here—and which it says it was circulating among 13 governments—had been sent to MacArthur for his information. Actually it is reliably reported that he had prepared his communication to the Chinese commander ten days before and was waiting for an opportune moment to release it. Likewise, Trygve Lie, secretary-general of the UN, has since stated publicly that a military commander in the field has the right to address the enemy commander on armistice terms at any time.

The message that was sent to MacArthur saying the State Department was "planning" some kind of a peace offer to the Red Chinese did not give him any details. It was a speculative message and failed to instruct him not to make any communication on this or any other subject related to it. The home office manager who failed to keep a branch manager better informed than that on company policy would be the one dismissed in American business today.

Even when the MacArthur statement to the Chinese commander was published, the Joint Chiefs merely asked him a day afterward to be sure and report if any request for armistice came from the enemy commander. There was not a word of criticism or of approval or disapproval sent General MacArthur concerning that statement to the Red Chinese commander.

Secretary Marshall has testified, moreover, that it was an "accumulation" of things that caused the dismissal, but what it looks like is an accumulation of hostile thoughts pent up somewhere in the Pentagon and the White House which came to a head when General MacArthur answered a letter that Representative Martin, on his own initiative, made public.

Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH ALSOP

Where Eisenhower Stands

PARIS

FOR THE TIME being, General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower and his international staff are polishing up their plans, getting on with whatever can be done immediately, and biding their time. But before long, some pretty grim decisions are going to have to be taken about the ultimate size of the Atlantic defense forces and their eventual composition and disposition.

The mere fact that these absolutely fundamental decisions have not been taken yet, is enough to show the hollowness of recent optimistic talk. The American productive machine has been put into high gear, but it will be a year to eighteen months before the really critical items, such as aircraft and tanks, are available in quantity. Gen. Eisenhower has begun his great effort, but it will be two to three years before Western Europe and the Western world are really secure. This is the true state of affairs today.

For the present, the French government is visibly incapable of any positive action whatever until after a national election. Moreover, the long range Western defense plans are still incomplete. Thus the uncomfortable time of fact-facing and of decision-taking will probably not come before July. Meanwhile, however, it is already possible to define the main policy problems which the American, British and French governments are going to have to solve somehow, if Gen. Eisenhower is to have a really firm foundation to build upon.

German Issue

First, comes the great issue of German participation. For the present, all efforts are being directed towards organizing a preliminary defense of the line of the Rhine, to which, of course the Germans will not contribute. But this Rhine plan has long been recognized as a very poor stopgap. And, German divisions are essential for a defense nearer the Elbe.

The signs suggest that this delicate question will be approached obliquely. The global requirements for an adequate forward defense will be plainly stated. It will then be obvious that this number of divisions cannot possibly be provided except by German participation, or by the heaviest sacrifices by the other Western Europeans. Thus the French and their sympathizers will have to choose between rejecting the principle of an adequate defense, or accepting the Germans as equal defense partners.

Second, comes the controversial problem of the air-ground balance within the overall Western defense force. When this reporter left Washington at least the Pentagon was still firmly clinging to the old rule of thumb, one division, one air group. But the best minds here on the Allied staffs, among the prospective German military leaders and among Gen. Eisenhower's subordinates, all have a different concept. Their rule is: the smaller the ground force, the larger the air force. Thus the necessarily limited Western ground army must be supported and sustained by really overwhelming tactical air power.

Air Groups Needed

By severing enemy lines of communication, by chopping up enemy forces moving into position, by destroying enemy supplies, the air is to cut the enemy's larger ground army down to the size of our smaller defending force. Such is the theory. But for these purposes, perhaps a hundred air groups overall will be needed in Europe alone, in addition to the home defense air forces in America, Britain and elsewhere. As Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge has already shrewdly demonstrated, getting this kind of satisfactory air balance may demand drastic rethinking of American air plans and programs in all fields from appropriations to production.

Third, comes the unpleasant problem of manpower. The French and several other European Atlantic pact partners still follow the pre-first World War training system, which will not put modern, combat worthy divisions promptly into the field. If the French, for example, are to meet their commitment of forces for Western defense, they must extend the conscript training period from eighteen months to two to three years. And they must allow some conscripts to serve in Indo-China, so that professional troops can be brought home and formed into the training cadres that the French army now lacks. Here are more thorns to grasp.

Fourth, there is the troublesome question of facilities. The need to get on with the construction of air bases is apparent everywhere from Turkey and Cyprus and Tripoli around to France. Here in France particularly, there is a massive air base requirement, since this is the natural region from which to back up a ground effort in Germany or on the Rhine. Many other sorts of installations, from headquarters to supply depots must also be provided and paid for. And the difficulties thus far have been so great that even the headquarters from which Generals Juin and Norstad are to command the main European ground and air forces are not yet available.

There are other items that might be added to the long list, such as the crucial Mediterranean problems already explored in this space. Enough has been said, however, to prove two points. Gen. Eisenhower will not even have a full set of tools for his job before the leaders of the Western nations have done a lot more hard work. And even after his tools have been provided, Gen. Eisenhower's job will take a long time to complete.

Blessed Advance

Cortisone has been a wonder hormone. As made in any quantity only from cattle bile it has been gaining steadily in acceptance for more and more human miseries, headed, of course, by arthritis. It also helps suffers from an array of troubles including alcoholism, rheumatic fever, asthma and snake bite.

But cortisone still comes in quantity only from cattle bile, and only from three per cent of that. Present production, by a slow and complex process, is only enough to supply 20,000 to 40,000 patients. In the U. S. there are 2,000,000 rheumatoid arthritics who could benefit from cortisone if they could get it. The cost is approximately $1,000 an ounce.

The hope, then, has been to find a cortisone substitute to do the job as well or better—or to synthesize cortisone from common chemicals.

Now comes big news from the meeting of the National Academy of Sciences in Washington. A team of Harvard chemists has started with a coal-tar derivative and come up with the synthesis of cortisone to a point where success is certain. Within a short time, it is hoped, the process of rearranging organic molecules will be finished.

The process of making cortisone from bile involves 30 steps. Only 20 steps need be taken now. It may be months or years before synthetic cortisone is on the market in the "unlimited quantities" heralded at Washington. But it is certain that human suffering will be forced to take a seat still farther back.

Who are to be thanked? Well, the research money was put up by Merck and Monsanto, two great chemical concerns. The research team was headed by Dr. Robert B. Woodward, duPont research professor at Harvard in 1949-1950. Nearly all great new discoveries today are the result of teamwork.

No exclusive rights to the manufacturing process will be given out. Cortisone a few years from now may be cheap and abundant enough for every medical use. Are there many new advances of science which could be of much greater potential blessing to the human race?

Selling "Serious" Books

"Serious book publishing might represent less of a gamble" if publishers had a better idea of what would sell and what would not.

That is the conclusion of the committee on reading development of the American Book Publishers' Council, and there is nobody to dispute it. But to assume, as this committee does, in recommending studies of reading habits to lessen financial risks, that blame for aversion to reading serious books can be laid at the door of the schools is going pretty far. The report says:

"Whatever emotions are aroused by memories of school are transferred to books. Thus book reading connotes the ordeal of examinations and the chore of compulsory assignment. It is not a symbol of pleasurable activity, but of imposed discipline."

That is altogether too easy a conclusion. Of a piece with this is the assertion that "the man in the street"—how many things he has to take the blame for!—looks on book reading as "a highbrow activity which smacks of devotion to the aristocratic way of life distasteful to his notions of democracy."

Of course not all adults are readers of serious books, but that there is a considerable body of opinion which regards scholarship as undemocratic, is certainly open to challenge. A year or two years hence when the suggested studies of reading patterns are completed, the publishers' council may have a different picture to present. It may have learned that serious, if not ponderous, books are eagerly absorbed as collateral reading in schools, and that the youngsters who devour them will be the readers years hence of what publishers most want to present to the public. Certainly the nonreaders of school and college days are not likely to be serious readers in later life.

The fear on the part of some of the publishers that "widely read, easily understood popularization" may defeat their highest aims is understandable. As the report says, the serious book "may be the one medium through which modern man can escape from the pressure of contemporary living." But it has to have reader interest, which presupposes a knowledge of reading taste that can be stimulated.

Essential Knowledge

It is essential for every American who wants to be a useful citizen to understand the purpose and nature of his government. Unlike people in most foreign lands, he has something to say about who shall direct the affairs of the country as well as locally. If he knows how the management operates, he is better prepared to protect his own interests so far as they may be affected by government regulations.

The 4-H Club organization—national and state—is supplying the means whereby its members can acquire the fundamentals of this knowledge. The parent body has established a week's camp in Washington for representatives of local groups throughout the country. Delegates chosen are those who show outstanding ability in leadership and community service in relation to their work. These are young people, banded together in clubs, who live in agricultural areas.

Of course, the entire membership cannot be sent to Washington. Yet those who attend the camp will be in a position to disseminate to their club associates at home the things they will have learned, thereby benefiting the whole organization. While in Washington the delegates will meet and talk with men and, women concerned with public affairs and can see the national government in action.

The basic knowledge thus obtained, if winnowed objectively, ought to be helpful in any follow-up study they make.

Fewer Britons

Direful days are ahead for Great Britain if Dr. Robert H. Parry, health officer of Bristol, England, and honorary physician to King George, is correct. He told students of the Cornell University Medical College that the population of the British Isles, now 50.000.000, would have to drop to 20.000.000. He thinks the present number could not possibly live off the land.

Such a drastic drop would seriously weaken the British position in the world. During the early modern period of history France was the greatest power in Europe, not merely because of her resources and the talents of her people, but because she was the most populous country. When wars killed off her best fighting men and her birth rate declined, France sank lower in the international scale. One reason for the formidable quality of Russia is her immense population.

Patriotic Britons, therefore, may well be alarmed for the future internatonal standing of their country.

How To Keep Well

By DR. T. R. VAN DELLEN

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Protection For Pork Eaters

TRICHINOSIS is prevalent wherever hogs are eaten as food. Cooking generally controls the disease by killing the causative parasites. Sausage remains a potential offender, especially when it is made without supervision from meat that has not been inspected.

One of our New York readers asked us several good questions concerning trichinosis. She is aware of the fact that the disorder comes from eating infested meat and that the larvae are freed of the protective coating by the digestive action of the ferments of the stomach. Here the worms set up housekeeping and mama gives birth to several hundred babies which in turn penetrate the intestinal wall and travel via the blood stream to the muscles, where they find a permanent home.

One inquirer was particularly interested in knowing about "the subsequent course of these larvae, now embedded in the human muscle, such as how long they remain larvae, where they go for reproduction. . . ." When the organisms reach human muscles their life cycle ends except perhaps in regions where cannibals abound. They are incased in a fibrous capsule that ultimately becomes hard as stone. Death usually takes place after six months but the calcified cage remains and can be identified years later if the tissues of the individual should be placed under a microscope.

The course of the ailment is the same in animals as in man. The pig, for example, acquires the disease as a rule by eating garbage that contains bits of infected pork. The parasites mate and multiply within the hog's stomach and some of the youngsters escape thru the intestinal tract, whereas the remainder burrow thru the wall of the bowel and finally end up in the muscles. But trichinae that locate in pig muscles are lucky because they have a chance to be freed. This occurs when the porker is sent to market and reaches our table without being cooked or cured propertly.

Our reader has been told that "trichinosis is generally acute, violent, and fatal." This is not true because the majority of victims hardly are aware of their plight. Much depends upon the number of parasites ingested and the age and physical status of the man or woman. A more violent illness occurs in the young and old, particularly after eating heavily tainted meat. Nausea, vomiting, abdominal pain, fever, and now and then diarrhea appear within 24 hours. A week later the suffered develops malaise, weakness, sweating, puffiness of the face, muscular aching, laryngitis, and hemorrhage beneath the skin and nails. This period coincides with the migration of the worms thru the walls of the intestine and into various parts of the body. After two to three weeks the illness subsides gradually. Recovery is complete altho occasionally vague muscular pains persist for a month or two. The individual is not left with chronic muscle disability "something like what used to be called muscular rheumatism," as she put it.

There is no treatment unless the individual discovers within 24 hours that the pork consumed was contaminated, in which case Epsom salts can be used to rid the digestive system of the intruders. After 24 hours little can be done because by this time the organisms have found refuge in the walls of the intestine. Preventive measures center about the garbage fed to pigs, meat inspection, and proper curing and cooking of pork.

BICYCLE NOT BUILT FOR TWO

Mrs. R. writes: I always ride a bike when doing my marketing. Now that I'm pregnant how long can I keep it up? We don't have a car as we are saving for the baby.

REPLY

Why not resort to walking after the third month? As you grow larger and more awkward there is greater danger that you will fall while riding a bike and thus harm yourself or the baby.

RINGWORM OF FOOT

J. L. writes: How long does it take to clear up athlete's foot?

REPLY

This varies with the individual. New cases may require only a few days whereas chonic dermotophytosis requires weeks or months; occasionally it never is cured, particularly when the nails are invaded by the fungus. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaet on athlete's foot.

HIGH PRESSURE AND LOW WEIGHT

V. G. writes: Is high blood pressure in an underweight person unusual?

REPLY

No. I know many underweight individuals with hypertension. Weight of itself does not cause high blood pressure but obesity is likely to aggravate the condition.

Treasury Should Probe Income Tax Of John Capone; Democrats Knife Low-Cost Housing; Real Estate Lobby Wins By Congressional Default

WASHINGTON—Secretary of the Treasury Snyder has now appointed an A-1 man, J. B. Dunlap, to head the special tax squad probing underworld income tax returns. Here is one tax return he might take a special look at—that of Chicago's Erminio John Capone, brother of Al Capone.

John has quite a free and easy way of making out his income tax return—so free and easy that the average businessman would be locked up if he operated the same way.

In 1949, for instance, Capone reported a total income of $23,135, which he said came from "miscellaneous" sources. In 1949 his income was $20,150, also from "miscellaneous." In 1946 he reported $10,180 from "miscellaneous," and in 1945 $8,810 from "miscellaneous" plus $800 from the Precision Metal and Machine Company.

During closed-door hearings of the Kefauver crime committee, Capone was questioned regarding this by Investigator George Robinson.

"Mr. Capone," observed Robinson, "I notice that you list your sole source of income over a period of years as being simply miscellaneous. Do you prepare your own returns?"

"I do. And I give the figure to an auditor and he files the return," replied Capone.

"What kind of figure do you give him? Do you break the figure down . . . or do you give him just a lump sum?" asked Robinson.

"Well, I give him my entire income," Capone retorted.

"How do you arrive at that lump sum?" Robinson pressed.

"Well, I just keep track of it," Capone fidgeted.

"How do you keep track of it?" demanded the investigator.

"I keep track of it from day to day," parried Capone.

"Do you put it down in a book?" Robinson persisted.

"Well," explained Capone, "if I win any money today, and I win the next day, I forget about the first day and just keep track of the total balance."

Miraculous Memory

'How do you keep track of the total balance?" Robinson fired again.

"In my mind," reported Capone.

"How many times did you speculate last year?" asked Robinson.

"I can't keep track of the times," snapped Capone. "There were numerous times."

'You kept it all in your head?" demanded Robinson.

"That is right," Capone agreed.

"Then you come up at the end of the year with a balance?" Robinson continued.

"Yes," Capone nodded.

"And that is what you put down as 'miscellaneous' in your return?" asked Robinson.

"Am I being tried for income tax here?" snarled Capone angrily.

"You aren't being tried for anything," shot back Robinson. "We are making an inquiry, Mr. Capone."

Maybe the Internal Revenue Bureau ought to make an inquiry, too.

Real Estate Lobby Wins

Republican congressmen have been chiefly identified with the real estate lobby in the past. However, House Democrats helped knife their own President in virtually killing the Taft low-cost public housing program last week.

It was Democrat Ed Gossett of Texas, long the spokesman for Eastern business, who sponsored and led the fight to slash the program to 5,000 low-cost, public housing units a year, 70,000 units less than President Truman says is our minimum need.

The Gossett amendment, while seeming to keep the housing program alive by a few token projects, actually snuffs out the whole program. For 5,000 units aren't enough to satisfy the slum-clearance of one big defense center—like New York or Chicago—and the administrative costs of a shoestring program will be so heavy that congressional economyites are bound to follow up with a demand that the whole housing program is ditched.

This is exactly what the National Association of Home Builders and other real estate lobbyists have been openly demanding—a suspension of public housing altogether.

FDR, Jr., Was Absent

Ironically, Administration Democrats from big cities, which need public housing most, had as much to do with adoption of the Gossett amendment—if not more—than the Republican-Dixiecrat coalition.

Gossett and GOP Rep. Jesse Wolcott of Michigan, another real estate lobby wheelhorse, cleverly forced a vote late Friday after members of the famous in-Tuesday-out-Thursday Absentee Club had made their usual mass exodus to New York and elsewhere. As a result, the Gossett amendment won by default, 181 to 113.

Though New York would gain more than any other city from continuance of the public housing program, only five of its 24 House members were sufficiently interested in their constituents to remain in Washington and vote against Gossett. They were Democrats Gary Clemente, Vincent Quinn, James Delaney, Donald O'Toole and Christopher McGrath, all of New York and Brooklyn.

Sixteen Manhattan and Brooklyn Democrats, however, were absent for the vital vote affecting their districts — Heller, Anfuso, Keogh, Kelly, Heffernan, Rooney, Multer, Celler, Murphy, Donovan, Klein, Fine, Powell, Dollinger and Buckley, and even Franklin Roosevelt, Jr., whose father helped pioneer public housing, did not stick around to vote. Three New York City Republicans also were not present to vote—Latham, Coudert and Javits.

Philadelphia, another big city with slums, also was let down by its Democratic congressmen. Its two Republican members, Hardie and Hugh Scott, were on the floor to vote against the Gossett amendment, but all four Democrats from Philadelphia — Barrett, Granahan, Chudoff and Green—took a run-out powder.

So also did Chicago's Democrats William Dawson and John Kluczynski. Dawson, a Negro congressman, represents one of the most congested areas in the world, while Kluczynski's Polish district is only a little less so. However, they did not bother to vote. Another significant absentee was Democrat Bob Poague of Waco, Texas, whose constituents recently voted for public housing in a referendum.

Other Texas absentees from cities with public housing programs were Frank Wilson of Dallas, Paul Kilday of San Antonio and Clark Thompson of Galveston.

NOTE—Some of these absentees may have been ill or out of town on legitimate business, but the great majority had no excuse for missing an important roll call like this.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

January 11 And 12

GENERAL Douglas MacArthur threw many more bombshells in his testimony before the Senate committees than was at first apparent. Only the most careful reading of the record brings out the points at issue. General MacArthur makes much of a program for action prepared by the Joint Chiefs of Staff on January 12. The ideas and purpose in that document showed that he and the Joint Chiefs of Staff were in full agreement. This program, as General MacArthur read it, is as follows:

"Continue and intensify now an economic blockade of trade with China.

"Prepart now to impose a naval blockade of China and place it into effect as soon as our position in Korea is stabilized or when we have evacuated Korea, and depending upon circumstances then obtaining.

"Remove now any restrictions on air reconnaissance of China coastal areas and of Manchuria.

> "Remove now the restrictions on operation of the Chinese Nationalist forces and give such logistic support to those forces as will contribute to effective operations against the Communists."

Now, let us go back to January 11. On that day, a new five-point "cease-fire plan" was supported by the United States but criticized by Soviet Russia. This plan included these five provisions:

1. An immediate cease-fire with safeguards against use of the truce "as a screen for mounting a new offensive."

2. Action during the truce on a permanent Korean peace.

3. Exit of "non-Korean" forces by "appropriate stages."

4. UN-approved administration of Korea during the truce.

5. Creation of a UN agency, including the U.S., Russia, Britain, and Red China, to settle Far Eastern issues, including Formosa's future and Chinese representation in UN.

If we compare these two statements, one day apart, the question must arise as to whether the State Department knew what the Joint Chiefs of Staff were doing, or vice versa. For the Joint Chiefs of Staff were planning to blockade China while the State Department was planning to get Soviet China into the United Nations. The Joint Chiefs were planning to work with Nationalist China while the State Department was planning to ditch Nationalist China.

The cease-fire plan was passed on January 13, 50 to 7.

> On January 15, Senator Eastland introduced a resolution for the United States to withdraw from the United Nations if Soviet China were seated and that President Truman be directed to defend Formosa. Senator Taft called the cease-fire plan "the most complete surrender to which the U.S. has ever agreed . . ."

Chou En-lai of Soviet China countered with the following proposals:

1. It should be assumed on both sides that all "foreign" troops will be withdrawn from Korea. (He did not specify whether this would cover Chinese "volunteers.") Negotiations for the withdrawal should be begun "so that the war in Korea may be brought to a speedy end."

2. The negotiations "must include the withdrawal of U.S. armed forces from Taiwan (Formosa) and the Taiwan Strait and Far Eastern related problems."

3. Participants in the negotiations should be Red China, Russia, U.S., Britain, France, India, and Egypt.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—It's just another Pearl Harbor investigation all over again.

Back in December, 1941, General Marshall and Admiral Stark thought that someone had told General Short and Admiral Kimmel what Washington knew about the forthcoming attack through breaking the Japanese code—but nobody did tell them.

Today, it comes out that the President and the Secretary of State and the Secretary of Defense and Special assistant Averell Harriman and General Bradley, who advised that General MacArthur be summarily dismissed, never told him that any of the public statements he had made during the preceding four weeks were violative of military orders or any other orders relating to policy statements.

The Administration may have thought that General MacArthur, at a distance of 10,000 miles, was a mind reader and as well informed about the state of mind of persons in Washington as were the five men who fired him, but there is not a single bit of evidence in the record after three days of testimony to support that point.

More Bad Liaison

In fact, the official record gets worse and worse for the Administration in revealing the same kind of bad liaison in the last few months with Tokyo as the War and Navy Departments had with Pearl Harbor ten years ago.

Not a single word of disapproval went to General MacArthur on December 6 last, when a general directive was issued advising all departments and all persons in the field as well as in Washington to clear policy statements with the departments back home. Although General Marshall now testifies that the Administration didn't like General MacArthur's answers to the questions of the press prior to December 6—even though they primarily concerned military matters in his theatre of action—not a word of such criticism was ever relayed to General MacArthur. He could as easily have inferred that there were no complaints here.

Not a single word of criticism or of any other kind went to General MacArthur specifically refering to his own statements or pointing out any deviation from policy to him between December 6, 1950, when the general directive was issued, and the day he was dismissed—April 11, 1951.

The now famous letter which General MacArthur wrote in routine fashion, answering an inquiry from Representative Joseph Martin, Republican, of Massachusetts, was dated March 20 at Tokyo. Although he had written letters to members of Congress and had talked with them in Tokyo during a period of nearly six years and they had made public the views which the General gave them, not a single word of criticism of his relations with members of Congress had ever been conveyed to him by his superiors in Washington.

Had No Word

When, on March 24 last, General MacArthur addressed a plea to the Chinese commander to agree to a "cease fire," not a single word of the statement or declaration being planned by the government here—and which it says it was circulating among 13 governments—had been sent to MacArthur for his information. Actually it is reliably reported that he had prepared his communication to the Chinese commander ten days before and was waiting for an opportune moment to release it. Likewise, Trygve Lie, secretary-general of the UN, has since stated publicly that a military commander in the field has the right to address the enemy commander on armistice terms at any time.

The message that was sent to MacArthur saying the State Department was "planning" some kind of a peace offer to the Red Chinese did not give him any details. It was a speculative message and failed to instruct him not to make any communication on this or any other subject related to it. The home office manager who failed to keep a branch manager better informed than that on company policy would be the one dismissed in American business today.

Even when the MacArthur statement to the Chinese commander was published, the Joint Chiefs merely asked him a day afterward to be sure and report if any request for armistice came from the enemy commander. There was not a word of criticism or of approval or disapproval sent General MacArthur concerning that statement to the Red Chinese commander.

Secretary Marshall has testified, moreover, that it was an "accumulation" of things that caused the dismissal, but what it looks like is an accumulation of hostile thoughts pent up somewhere in the Pentagon and the White House which came to a head when General MacArthur answered a letter that Representative Martin, on his own initiative, made public.

Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH ALSOP

Where Eisenhower Stands

PARIS

FOR THE TIME being, General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower and his international staff are polishing up their plans, getting on with whatever can be done immediately, and biding their time. But before long, some pretty grim decisions are going to have to be taken about the ultimate size of the Atlantic defense forces and their eventual composition and disposition.

The mere fact that these absolutely fundamental decisions have not been taken yet, is enough to show the hollowness of recent optimistic talk. The American productive machine has been put into high gear, but it will be a year to eighteen months before the really critical items, such as aircraft and tanks, are available in quantity. Gen. Eisenhower has begun his great effort, but it will be two to three years before Western Europe and the Western world are really secure. This is the true state of affairs today.

For the present, the French government is visibly incapable of any positive action whatever until after a national election. Moreover, the long range Western defense plans are still incomplete. Thus the uncomfortable time of fact-facing and of decision-taking will probably not come before July. Meanwhile, however, it is already possible to define the main policy problems which the American, British and French governments are going to have to solve somehow, if Gen. Eisenhower is to have a really firm foundation to build upon.

German Issue

First, comes the great issue of German participation. For the present, all efforts are being directed towards organizing a preliminary defense of the line of the Rhine, to which, of course the Germans will not contribute. But this Rhine plan has long been recognized as a very poor stopgap. And, German divisions are essential for a defense nearer the Elbe.

The signs suggest that this delicate question will be approached obliquely. The global requirements for an adequate forward defense will be plainly stated. It will then be obvious that this number of divisions cannot possibly be provided except by German participation, or by the heaviest sacrifices by the other Western Europeans. Thus the French and their sympathizers will have to choose between rejecting the principle of an adequate defense, or accepting the Germans as equal defense partners.

Second, comes the controversial problem of the air-ground balance within the overall Western defense force. When this reporter left Washington at least the Pentagon was still firmly clinging to the old rule of thumb, one division, one air group. But the best minds here on the Allied staffs, among the prospective German military leaders and among Gen. Eisenhower's subordinates, all have a different concept. Their rule is: the smaller the ground force, the larger the air force. Thus the necessarily limited Western ground army must be supported and sustained by really overwhelming tactical air power.

Air Groups Needed

By severing enemy lines of communication, by chopping up enemy forces moving into position, by destroying enemy supplies, the air is to cut the enemy's larger ground army down to the size of our smaller defending force. Such is the theory. But for these purposes, perhaps a hundred air groups overall will be needed in Europe alone, in addition to the home defense air forces in America, Britain and elsewhere. As Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge has already shrewdly demonstrated, getting this kind of satisfactory air balance may demand drastic rethinking of American air plans and programs in all fields from appropriations to production.

Third, comes the unpleasant problem of manpower. The French and several other European Atlantic pact partners still follow the pre-first World War training system, which will not put modern, combat worthy divisions promptly into the field. If the French, for example, are to meet their commitment of forces for Western defense, they must extend the conscript training period from eighteen months to two to three years. And they must allow some conscripts to serve in Indo-China, so that professional troops can be brought home and formed into the training cadres that the French army now lacks. Here are more thorns to grasp.

Fourth, there is the troublesome question of facilities. The need to get on with the construction of air bases is apparent everywhere from Turkey and Cyprus and Tripoli around to France. Here in France particularly, there is a massive air base requirement, since this is the natural region from which to back up a ground effort in Germany or on the Rhine. Many other sorts of installations, from headquarters to supply depots must also be provided and paid for. And the difficulties thus far have been so great that even the headquarters from which Generals Juin and Norstad are to command the main European ground and air forces are not yet available.

There are other items that might be added to the long list, such as the crucial Mediterranean problems already explored in this space. Enough has been said, however, to prove two points. Gen. Eisenhower will not even have a full set of tools for his job before the leaders of the Western nations have done a lot more hard work. And even after his tools have been provided, Gen. Eisenhower's job will take a long time to complete.

Truman Backs Beef Price Lids Despite Protests

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP) — President Truman today gave emphatic support to the beef price ceilings now being put into effect.

He told his news conference that protests against the new ceiling orders by packers and others were the same old 1946 fight over again. He indicated he would not be swayed by them.

He said he approved the price orders of Administrator Michael DiSalle and they will be enforced.

Recalling the 1946 controversy and agitation which led to the removal of meat price controls effected during World War II, Mr. Truman said current cries stem from the fact that whenever you tread on the toes of anybody they have to scream.

The DiSalle orders call for progressive reductions in the prices paid for live cattle and for a total reduction of nine or 10 cents a pound at retail by October.

Mr. Truman said there was no foundation in fact for recurring reports that Secretary of State Acheson will leave the cabinet in the next few weeks or months.

He made the same reply to a question whether Ambassador William O'Dwyer will be recalled from his Mexico City post. There had been published reports that the former New York mayor would lose his diplomatic post because the Senate Crime Committee sharply criticized him and because a close friend, James Moran, was convicted of perjury in the aftermath of the Senate inquiry.

The President backed up the testimony of Secretary of Defense Marshall in the Senate foreign policy hearing. He said he was very satisfied with Marshall's statements, adding the Secretary had told the exact truth word for word.

seen it. At this time. Marshall was Army chief of staff and MacArthur's military boss.

Smith gave this information from a letter whose author remained anonymous. The letter went on to imply that the MacArthur proposal to march against the Reds was sent to John Carter Vincent, then "head of the China group in the State Department," to be "polished up" — but it came out "the exact opposite" in the finished report.

LUCKY HIKER — Jerry Wolschon, 20, Detroit, Mich., sustained only a dislocated foot when he fell 130 feet to a rocky ledge while hiking at Yosemite Valley, Calif. Park rangers spent eight hours removing him from the ledge where he had lain for 20 hours, using slings and a specially constructed dolly to return him to the hospital on the floor of the valley.

Bomber Lands Safely Following Fire Scare

SACRAMENTO, Calif., May 10 (AP)—An Air Force B-26 that was thought to have caught fire 400 miles off the California coast landed safely here today and found the smoke came only from too rich a carburetor mixture.

The public information officer at McClellan Field said black smoke started pouring from the plane shortly after it lost visual contact with three other B-26s and a mother B-29.

The craft carrying two men suffered a momentary loss of power, he said, but returned to the mainland without incident.

Kee Funeral Rites Held At Bluefield

BLUEFIELD, W. Va., May 10 (AP) —Simple funeral services lasting 31 minutes were held today for Rep. John Kee (D-WVa) in his hometown of Bluefield.

Some 250 persons filled Christ Episcopal Church and an equal number stood outside.

Kee's son, James Kee, was unable to attend the funeral. He was hospitalized in Bluefield suffering from a severe reaction to penicillin.

Warners Retain Film Firm Stock

NEW YORK, May 10 (AP)—Harry M. Warner said today he and his brothers have decided to retain their interest in Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., and have ended negotiations on an offer to buy their stock.

They had been holding discussions with a syndicate headed by Louis R. Lurie, San Francisco banker and real estate operator, on its offer of $25,000,000 for their interests.

Harry Warner, president, and his brothers, Jack L. and Albert, with their families own 24 per cent of the stock of the big motion picture firm which they founded.

Lurie arrived from the west coast Monday to negotiate with the Warners and after preliminary discussions by attorneys on both sides, he and his associates met with the Warners yesterday and again today.

Harry Warner, in his statement, said the negotiations were concluded in a spirit of friendliness but that "there will be no sale of our stock to Mr. Lurie and his associates."

19,000 Jam Garden To Hear Ben-Gurion

NEW YORK, May 10 (AP)—Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion said tonight Israel is building a "fortress of democracy" in the Near East which will serve as an example to the entire world.

He added that it also would show "our neighbors that they need not live in slavery and poverty."

Ben-Gurion spoke to a Madison Square Garden capacity crowd of 19,000 persons. Some 10,000 others outside milled about or surged against police cordons trying to get in. Loudspeakers were placed outside.

About 200 pickets were on hand, protesting what they called a lack of religious education in Israel under Ben-Gurion's Socialist party.

West Va. May Have Trouble Selling Vets' Bonus Bonds

CHARLESTON, W. Va., May 10 (AP) — State Treasurer W. H. Ansel, Jr., said today there is a possibility the state may be able to sell its veterans' bonus revenue bonds as scheduled even though no bids are indicated.

Smith, Barney and Company, which with two other investment houses jointly headed a 125-member syndicate, said today it would comply with a request of the National Voluntary Credit Restraint Committee and not bid on the $67,500,000 bond issue.

Another firm, Halsey, Stuart and Company, which heads another syndicate, estimated by Ansel to have some 100 members, said earlier it would not bid on the bonds if the committee so requested.

Ansel said advertisements for the bond sale will be in the hands of some 450 major investment houses throughout the nation by Monday. The houses making up the two syndicates are included.

"This would leave about 225 investment firms throughout the country that may bid for our bonds," Ansel said. "From that point of view, there is a possibility we may receive some bids," he added.

The bond issue has been termed inflationary by the National Voluntary Restraint Committee which hav asked firms not to bid on the sale scheduled for May 23.

Md. Housewife Wins Trip Around World

NEW YORK, May 11 (AP)—Mrs. Elizabeth Krause, Sivler Spring, Md., won a trip around the world tonight on the American Broadcasting Company television show "Stop The Music."

She correctly named the "mystery tune" as "There Is A Pig As Went Out To Dig."

Wife of a printer, Mrs. Krause is the mother of a six-year-old girl.

Taft Calls For Steps To Beat Chinese Reds

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP)—Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) told the Senate today the administration "has not hesitated to give Russia cause for war" in Europe and should not hesitate to take steps to beat the Chinese Communists and end the Korean war.

Taft specifically urged use of the Chinese Nationalist troops now "neutralized" on Formosa. Gen. Douglas MacArthur proposed that those troops be loosed for action against the Communists.

Sen. McMahon (D-Conn) suggested to Taft that Russia is trying to lure the U. S. into the "trap" of an all-out war in China. In replv, Taft shouted:

"We have fallen for it. This administration put us into it."

"Brother-Sister" Order Set Aside

TOPEKA, Kas., May 10 (AP)—Mrs. Phyllis Campbell and her former husband don't have to live like "brother and sister," the Kansas Supreme Court ruled today.

The high court set aside the brother-sister provision of a divorce decree granted Mrs. Campbell of Wichita May 1 by Sedgwick County District Judge Ross McCormick.

It also ruled out Judge McCormick's stipulation that the divorce would not become final for six months.

Mrs. Campbell appealed to the Supreme Court after Judge McCormick ordered her to prepare a room in her home to be occupied by her former husband, Telbert.

The judge directed Mrs. Campbell to prepare his meals and to "perform all other acts that would be performed by a good sister toward a good brother."

Mrs. Campbell, 45, and her former husband, 52, had been married 27 years.

Judge McCormick said his main idea in making the "brother-sister" order was to bring about a reconciliation, if possible.

NANCY, France, May 10 (AP) — Mrs. Perle Mesta, American minister to Luxembourg, said tonight she will fly to the United States tomorrow for a speaking tour.

Youth Reported Swept Into Baltimore Tubes

BALTIMORE, May 10 (AP) — The police started taking seriously today the story of two little negro girls that they saw a youth sucked into the big tubes that carry a creek under downtown Baltimore into the harbor.

Investigators found a brown shoe near the mouth of the tunnel. In the slime around one tube they found marks which might have been made by someone clawing frantically for a handhold.

A police boat stood by at the outlets almost two miles away but could find no sign of a body.

About 15 years ago, three children were swept into the Jones Falls tubes at the height of a heavy rain storm. Their bodies came up in the harbor three days later.

The tubes are big enough for a small rowboat.

Truman Backs Beef Price Lids Despite Protests

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP) — President Truman today gave emphatic support to the beef price ceilings now being put into effect.

He told his news conference that protests against the new ceiling orders by packers and others were the same old 1946 fight over again. He indicated he would not be swayed by them.

He said he approved the price orders of Administrator Michael DiSalle and they will be enforced.

Recalling the 1946 controversy and agitation which led to the removal of meat price controls effected during World War II, Mr. Truman said current cries stem from the fact that whenever you tread on the toes of anybody they have to scream.

The DiSalle orders call for progressive reductions in the prices paid for live cattle and for a total reduction of nine or 10 cents a pound at retail by October.

Mr. Truman said there was no foundation in fact for recurring reports that Secretary of State Acheson will leave the cabinet in the next few weeks or months.

He made the same reply to a question whether Ambassador William O'Dwyer will be recalled from his Mexico City post. There had been published reports that the former New York mayor would lose his diplomatic post because the Senate Crime Committee sharply criticized him and because a close friend, James Moran, was convicted of perjury in the aftermath of the Senate inquiry.

The President backed up the testimony of Secretary of Defense Marshall in the Senate foreign policy hearing. He said he was very satisfied with Marshall's statements, adding the Secretary had told the exact truth word for word.

seen it. At this time, Marshall was Army chief of staff and MacArthur's military boss.

Smith gave this information from a letter whose author remained anonymous. The letter went on to imply that the MacArthur proposal to march against the Reds was sent to John Carter Vincent, then "head of the China group in the State Department," to be "polished up" — but it came out "the exact opposite" in the finished report.

Bomber Lands Safely Following Fire Scare

SACRAMENTO, Calif., May 10 (AP)—An Air Force B-26 that was thought to have caught fire 400 miles off the California coast landed safely here today and found the smoke came only from too rich a carburetor mixture.

The public information officer at McClellan Field said black smoke started pouring from the plane shortly after it lost visual contact with three other B-26s and a mother B-29.

The craft carrying two men suffered a momentary loss of power, he said, but returned to the mainland without incident.

Plans were formulated for a trip to Hershey, Pa. It is to be made either the second or third weekend in June. Miss Beatrice Parks and Miss Naomi Parks are in charge.

The May social is to be a dinner and theater party. Dinner will be at Mrs. Moon's at 6:30 May 23.

During the business session routine business was transacted and it was decided to enforce the attendance clause of the constitution.

Members present were Miss Louise Cessna, Miss Beatrice Parks, Miss Naomi Parks, Miss Bernadetta Flora, Miss Betty Creegan, Miss Catherine Kirk, Miss Mary Ottiero, Miss Mary Ellen Helmick, Miss Joann Spiker, Miss Hazel Spiker, Miss Josephine Engle, Miss Hannah Drubeck, Miss Ellen Newman, Miss Mary Collins and Mrs. Ida Lindsay, advisor.

Hairdressers To Meet

The Allegany County Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association will hold its monthly dinner meeting Monday at Central YMCA. Dinner will be served at 7 o'clock with the business session at 8.

Charles Ignozzi, Baltimore, president of the state group, will be the guest speaker. All committee chairmen are asked to have their reports ready.

Western District Baptist Rally Being Held Tonight

The Western District Baptist rally being held at Second Baptist Church tonight at 7:45 will have Miss Margaret Bruce, Birmingham, Ala., convention-wide WMU Young Peoples secretary, as guest speaker.

In observance of Girls Auxiliary Focus Week the young people will present a program of hymns, prayers, a playlet by a group from the host church; vocal solo by Betty Ann Hanna of Welch Memorial church; a skit by the RA of First church and a piano solo by Edith Eckhart of Eckhart.

Talks on the state RA and GA camps will be given by Miss Eunice Hayes, Baltimore, state Young People's secretary.

Tomorrow the WMU conference is being held in Welch Memorial church, Frostburg, beginning at 12:45 with luncheon. Miss Bruce and Miss Hayes will be there to answer questions.

Girl Scouts To Entertain Parents At Tea May 26

Cook-Outs Are Planned

The Girl Scout Leaders Association discussed participation in the parades and formulated plans for a tea and outings at the final meeting before the summer recess, Wednesday evening at the Girl Scout house.

Girl Scouts are to march in full uniform May 19 for the Armed Forces parade and May 30 the Memorial Day parade.

Parents will be invited for the Juliette Low tea, which is being held May 26 from 2 until 5 o'clock at the Girl Scout house. Each troop is to entertain with a skit or folk dancing. A silver offering will be taken to augment the Juliette Low fund.

A cook-out for leaders, council members and committeewomen, will be held at Established Camp site, Green Ridge, June 13. Folders for Day Camp, at Kiwanis Sunshine Camp site, were distributed. Another cook-out for leaders will be held September 12 so that the programs for the year may be outlined.

An invitation was received from Senior Troop to attend a get-acquainted party, June 14. Each leader is to present a list of the girls from her troop who are ready to "fly-up" to the senior troop.

Reports from the National Girl Scouts on what was done in 1950-1951 were read. It was announced that each Girl Scout who has earned her Cooks badge is asked to take her certificate to Shrivers, Baltimore Street, to show she has earned it, and will be presented with a cook book. Plans were also announced for a rummage sale, at 7 p. m., May 11, at the scout house. Proceeds will be used for the electric radio and victrola recently given to the Girl Scouts.

Piney Plains PTA Elects Mrs. Norris

The Piney Plains Parent-Teacher Association had election and installation of officers for 1951-1952 at the final meeting of the year, Tuesday evening in the school.

Delbert Puffinburger, president, conducted the election. New officers are Mrs. Franklin Norris, president; Paul Mann, vice president; Mrs. Floyd Joy, secretary; Mrs. A. R. Shafer, treasurer. Chairmen are Mrs. Paul Mann, Program; Miss Margaret Ringler, Publicity; Mrs. James McCusker, Refreshment; and Mrs. Earl Creek, Membership.

Installation was conducted by D. D. Norris.

A musical program was presented by the Flintstone Junior and Senior High School students, under the direction of Richard Evans, music instructor. The Junior High Chorus and the Senior High School Glee Club sang a number of selections. First year violin students played two numbers. There also were other instrumental selections.

"Country Style" was sung by the Senior High Glee Club and featuring Robert McCusker and Lyle Sipes with string instruments.

A bake sale and cake walks were held to raise funds for the treasury.

The next meeting will be October 9.

WASHINGTON

Recipe for happiness, according to an ancient poem:

If you would be happy for three hours,
Get drunk!
If you would be happy for three days,
Kill a pig and eat it.
If you would be happy for three years,
Get married.
If you would be happy for your whole life long,
Become a gardner.

And since April showers have brought May flowers, this is the best time of year to talk about posies . . . Whether your budget allows a greenhouse with built-in gardeners, or time and space for a small, summer cuttings garden . . . Or only one pink rose from the florist for your dressing table—one of the best investments for turning a house into a home is the money you spend for flowers.

AUSTINE

After interviewing some floral authorities like Mr. Z. D. Blackistone, Jr., Mrs. Clova Demaine, Miss Fay Wright and half a dozen others, I have compiled a little rule sheet from their advice on "The Care and Feeding of Flowers:"

1. Don't order or cut garden flowers for your house the day of the "party" . . . To last and look their best, most blooms should be "conditioned" for at least 24 hours . . . Plunged into cold water—plunged deep, and if possible at a temperature of 40 degrees.

2. Always cut stems on a slant with a very sharp knife so as not to press the veins together . . . If the veins are presed together in cutting, flowers won't be able to "drink."

3. Best preservative under the sun is sugar—just plain, old, everyday granulated sugar which everybody has on the shelf . . . Sugar has a tendency to kill certain bacteria which form scum in water.

4. Mr. Blackistone cautions against pouring those chemical preservatives into vases without measuring. "If anything," warns Mr. Blackistone, "use a diluted solution and less than required. The chemicals kill flowers when the solution is too strong."

5. Receptacles must be scrupulously clean . . . . Should be washed out after each use with baking soda and warm water.

6. Forget about aspirin as a flower preservative. It belongs in the medicine cabinet only.

7. For limp flowers, such as lilacs, a spoon of plain, dark molasses in a quart of water. Break the stems instead of cutting.

8. For roses, a tablespoonful of powered alum for each quart of water.

9. A bunch of violets can be kept for a long time if you'll immerse them in water . . . heads and all.

10. Gardenias drink from the bloom—not the stem. Keep fresh by putting a dampened fold of facial tissue over the flower, sticking in the refrigerator.

Plump, brunette Mrs. Clova Demaine has a rare talent for fixing flowers—and doesn't mind sharing her secrets.

"Flower arrangements should depend on quality, or artistry, not on quantity. Three perfect blooms can be as effective as three dozen," she says.

"First I do the green background—lemon leaves, huckleberry, something like that. Then I stick in flowers, starting with the short stemmed ones and building up the center. If you begin with a green background, when the flowers do get limp you can pluck them out one at a time and still have a pretty picture."

Flowers should be part of your decorations. Small bunches in a small room . . . Exotic flowers like Birds of Paradise in a modern decor, old-fashioned flowers in a Victorian room, etc.

Women will worry themselves sick over the menu for a party and neglect the flowers. They'll have the silver shined up grand but throw a few, badly-arranged flowers in a vase at the last minute. Yet flowers are as important as accessory to your house as a hat is to your costume. Give them some time and thought.

Eye Grafts May Restore Partial Sight To Girl, 17

BOSTON.—(AP)— Flucky Jacqueline Sinnott, 17, was reported "feeling fine" after undergoing two eye grafts that doctors hope may restore some of the sight she lost in a laboratory explosion at Marshfield High School.

Jacqueline, a senior, had been studying chemistry in preparation for a nursing career. The accident occurred almost on the eve of her graduation.

Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary doctors broke the news to her Tuesday that she had lost the sight of both eyes.

Later Dr. Garrett Sullivan grafted corneal tissue from the eyes of a man who died the day before. Jackie went through the first transplant so well that Dr. Sullivan operated again immediately. Usually several days intervene.

He called the lengthy double surgery a "desperate measure" to help restore some vision. He said her sight was "very seriously impaired."

Nurses said Jacqueline showed great courage and stamina as she went through the two operations under local anesthetics.

But it will be a week or 10 days before surgeons know whether they have restored some of her vision.

And there are still other operations ahead for Jacqueline. Cataracts must be removed from her eyes. She will have plastic surgery to restore her burned face.

The girl's mother, Mrs. Lawrence Sinnot of Marshfield, said "Jackie wanted to be a nurse ever since she was old enough to know what a nurse was. That's why she took chemistry."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

UNEVEN SUIT ON SIDE

SUPPOSE your pair is in the fortunate position of owning two suits so good that either would be ideal for trumps, to the extent that no trick would be lost in it. One of those suits has equal, or nearly equal, length in both your hand and that of your partner. The other is very unevenly distributed between you, with great length in one hand opposite shortage in the other. In such a case, it is nearly always best to pick the evenly balanced, or nearly evenly-balanced suit for trump, leaving the unbalanced suit available for discarding losers of other suits.

There was not a chance in the world of making that contract. West led the heart K, which the A of course took, but South couldn't avoid losing a trick then in that suit, so was down one.

North castigated South after the deal for not putting the final contract into diamonds, in which the grand slam would have been a cinch. South's only defense was that he was seeking maximum points for the pair. Seven tricks in spades would be worth 210, or 70 more than the same number in diamonds, and in addition the 150 honors in spades would be worth 50 more than the 100 in diamonds. Thus, it looked to South as if the pair would get 120 points more with spades as the trump.

So South sold his birthright for a mess of pottage. The 7-Diamonds would have been easy to make because the unbalanced side suit of spades would have furnished all the discards of heart losers that might be desired.

North's instant support of diamonds the first time he heard the suit should have given South enough guidance to the right contract. His later takeout of 5-Spades into 5-Diamonds should have clinched the argument if a clincher had been needed.

Make yourself a "beauty book" to use as a portable dressing table whenever you are away from home!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

IT takes a pretty well-equipped purse to carry all the cosmetic items required to keep a woman looking and feeling fresh when she goes out early in the morning and remains away from home until late. How to store all your cosmetics without poking the purse out of shape creates quite a problem. And, according to the Powers Girls, the daily switching of this equipment from purse to purse, depending on the costume you are wearing, is practically a plague.

But Model Jane Jarvis has invented a way to lick the problems of both storing and switching. I call her invention a portable dressing table, but she calls it her "beauty book," and it does look like a handsome, leather-bound volume when she carries it under her arm.

Your Beauty Book

If you'd like to save yourself a lot of discomfort and dishabille during the wearisome summer days ahead, why not outfit yourself with one? It's simple enough. Just get a man's inexpensive traveling case of simulated leather. It measures about five inches in width, nine in length and two in depth. Be sure the one you select has plenty of compartments and a zippered closing. For real chi-chi, at little cost, mark your case with your initials in gold leaf.

Next, supply yourself with a set of small, unbreakable, gilt-topped jars and bottles which are available everywhere. You'll need one to hold your skin cleanser and freshener, foundation, powder, hand lotion, mouth wash and deodorant. To this collection add miniature-sized hair brush and comb, clothes brush, shaving cream to use in place of powder-room soaps, perfume, nail scissors, packet of tissues, emery board and cotton balls. Also include lipstick, (and other cosmetics you habitually use), nail polish and eyebrow tweezers. Arrange all the items in a handy and orderly fashion.

The Whole Story

Your beauty book will be ready for the longest day, week-end trip or vacation — and with no scrambling to get your necessaries together. It will fit in the glove compartment of the car, in the corner of your suitcase, in your desk drawer at the office, on the hatcheck girl's shelf, and wherever it is, it will tell a pretty tale about your grooming!

A RECENT reflection on Gen. MacArthur's previous appearances before Congress, when he was chief of staff in the early 1930's, has jogged the memory of Brig. Gen. Brice P. Disque, Ret., of Spuyten Duyvil, N. Y., who writes:

"I wish your piece had said that in 1933, at a time when Mr. Roosevelt had a couple of billion dollars appropriated for raking leaves and other such useful purposes, MacArthur was unable to get more than about 50 million dollars of that appropriation to help the mechanism of our army.

"About that time, it so happens, I was in command of some troops. We used some rented trucks with stove pipes on them, to represent tanks and motorized artillery, as the Army had no such equipment except in token quantities.

"I visited MacArthur and persuaded him to go to Mr. Roosevelt to get a considerable sum from the slush fund. Later on, he told me he had made the effort but that he was unable to get more than a token amount.

"It seems that Mr. Roosevelt was willing to give more but Madame Perkins and other advisors told him it would be unsocial to use the funds for military purposes.

"Of course, still later on, we expended millions of dollars for purposes which would have been adequately met for thousands of dollars had just a modicum of intelligence been used."

Ed note:—Incidentally, MacArthur got bawled out for applying for PWA funds. On a subsequent trip to Congress, to apply for money which would raise U. S. arms beyond the 17th place they held among the world powers, Rep. Blanton told him bluntly that he did not approve.

"Why don't you come to congress, General?" Blanton demanded. "Hasn't your department been coming to Congress for 150 years? And you have never gone to the PWA until last year?

"That is correct, sir."

"Well, what's the matter? Have you lost confidence in Congress?"

MacArthur apparently did not wish to trust himself to answer.

The full story of Secretary of State Dean Acheson's antipathy toward MacArthur has never been told, and perhaps never will be. But it appears that Acheson was an important figure, if not the most important, in the concerted move that was climaxed by MacArthur's dismissal.

Some say that MacArthur aroused Acheson's ire in September, 1945, when the President suggested to MacArthur that he accept Acheson as a political adviser. MacArthur declined.

The bitterness of the Secretary of State increased, Freda Utley states in her new book "The China Story" (Henry Regnery, Co.) as a result of the suppressed MacArthur message to the Veterans of Foreign Wars last summer.

"It is clear that he (Acheson) has no appreciation of the psychology of Asiatics," he writes.

"Hence presumably the State Department's angry reaction to the MacArthur message to the VFW, which said, 'Nothing could be more fallacious than the threadbare argument of those who advocate appeasement in the Pacific, that if we defend Korea we alienate continental Asia. Those who speak thus do not understand the Orient.'"

Miss Utley, long-time China hand who is British born, adds:

"This was the passage which hurt most in Washington, since it was obviously a description of Dean Acheson and his closest colleagues."

COAT AND SUIT DEPT. . . . PESKINS SECOND FLOOR

Washington Whirl

By AUSTINE

WASHINGTON

Recipe for happiness, according to an ancient poem:

If you would be happy for three hours,
Get drunk!
If you would be happy for three days,
Kill a pig and eat it.
If you would be happy for three years,
Get married.
If you would be happy for your whole life long,
Become a gardner.

And since April showers have brought May flowers, this is the best time of year to talk about posies . . . Whether your budget allows a greenhouse with built-in gardeners, or time and space for a small, summer cuttings garden . . . Or only one pink rose from the florist for your dressing table—one of the best investments for turning a house into a home is the money you spend for flowers.

AUSTINE

After interviewing some floral authorities like Mr. Z. D. Blackistone, Jr., Mrs. Clova Demaine, Miss Fay Wright and half a dozen others, I have compiled a little rule sheet from their advice on "The Care and Feeding of Flowers:"

1. Don't order or cut garden flowers for your house the day of the "party" . . . To last and look their best, most blooms should be "conditioned" for at least 24 hours . . . Plunged into cold water—plunged deep, and if possible at a temperature of 40 degrees.

2. Always cut stems on a slant with a very sharp knife so as not to press the veins together . . . If the veins are presed together in cutting, flowers won't be able to "drink."

3. Best preservative under the sun is sugar—just plain, old, everyday granulated sugar which everybody has on the shelf . . . Sugar has a tendency to kill certain bacteria which form scum in water.

4. Mr. Blackistone cautions against pouring those chemical preservatives into vases without measuring. "If anything," warns Mr. Blackistone, "use a diluted solution and less than required. The chemicals kill flowers when the solution is too strong."

5. Receptacles must be scrupulously clean . . . . Should be washed out after each use with baking soda and warm water.

6. Forget about aspirin as a flower preservative. It belongs in the medicine cabinet only.

7. For limp flowers, such as lilacs, a spoon of plain, dark molasses in a quart of water. Break the stems instead of cutting.

8. For roses, a tablespoonful of powered alum for each quart of water.

9. A bunch of violets can be kept for a long time if you'll immerse them in water . . . heads and all.

10. Gardenias drink from the bloom—not the stem. Keep fresh by putting a dampened fold of facial tissue over the flower, sticking in the refrigerator.

Plump, brunette Mrs. Clova Demaine has a rare talent for fixing flowers—and doesn't mind sharing her secrets.

"Flower arrangements should depend on quality, or artistry, not on quantity. Three perfect blooms can be as effective as three dozen," she says.

"First I do the green background—lemon leaves, huckleberry, something like that. Then I stick in flowers, starting with the short stemmed ones and building up the center. If you begin with a green background, when the flowers do get limp you can pluck them out one at a time and still have a pretty picture."

Flowers should be part of your decorations. Small bunches in a small room . . . Exotic flowers like Birds of Paradise in a modern decor, old-fashioned flowers in a Victorian room, etc.

Women will worry themselves sick over the menu for a party and neglect the flowers. They'll have the silver shined up grand but throw a few, badly-arranged flowers in a vase at the last minute. Yet flowers are as important as accessory to your house as a hat is to your costume. Give them some time and thought.

Eye Grafts May Restore Partial Sight To Girl, 17

BOSTON.—(AP)—Plucky Jacqueline Sinnott, 17, was reported "feeling fine" after undergoing two eye grafts that doctors hope may restore some of the sight she lost in a laboratory explosion at Marshfield High School.

Jacqueline, a senior, had been studying chemistry in preparation for a nursing career. The accident occurred almost on the eve of her graduation.

Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary doctors broke the news to her Tuesday that she had lost the sight of both eyes.

Later Dr. Garrett Sullivan grafted corneal tissue from the eyes of a man who died the day before. Jackie went through the first transplant so well that Dr. Sullivan operated again immediately. Usually several days intervene.

He called the lengthy double surgery a "desperate measure" to help restore some vision. He said her sight was "very seriously impaired."

Nurses said Jacqueline showed great courage and stamina as she went through the two operations under local anesthetics.

But it will be a week or 10 days before surgeons know whether they have restored some of her vision.

And there are still other operations ahead for Jacqueline. Cataracts must be removed from her eyes. She will have plastic surgery to restore her burned face.

The girl's mother, Mrs. Lawrence Sinnot of Marshfield, said "Jackie wanted to be a nurse ever since she was old enough to know what a nurse was. That's why she took chemistry."

"The Authority on Authorities"

UNEVEN SUIT ON SIDE

SUPPOSE your pair is in the fortunate position of owning two suits so good that either would be ideal for trumps, to the extent that no trick would be lost in it. One of those suits has equal, or nearly equal, length in both your hand and that of your partner. The other is very unevenly distributed between you, with great length in one hand opposite shortage in the other. In such a case, it is nearly always best to pick the evenly balanced, or nearly evenly-balanced suit for trump, leaving the unbalanced suit available for discarding losers of other suits.

There was not a chance in the world of making that contract. West led the heart K, which the A of course took, but South couldn't avoid losing a trick then in that suit, so was down one.

North castigated South after the deal for not putting the final contract into diamonds, in which the grand slam would have been a cinch. South's only defense was that he was seeking maximum points for the pair. Seven tricks in spades would be worth 210, or 70 more than the same number in diamonds, and in addition the 150 honors in spades would be worth 50 more than the 100 in diamonds. Thus, it looked to South as if the pair would get 120 points more with spades as the trump.

So South sold his birthright for a mess of pottage. The 7-Diamonds would have been easy to make because the unbalanced side suit of spades would have furnished all the discards of heart losers that might be desired.

North's instant support of diamonds the first time he heard the suit should have given South enough guidance to the right contract. His later takeout of 5-Spades into 5-Diamonds should have clinched the argument if a clincher had been needed.

Make yourself a "beauty book" to use as a portable dressing table whenever you are away from home!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

IT takes a pretty well-equipped purse to carry all the cosmetic items required to keep a woman looking and feeling fresh when she goes out early in the morning and remains away from home until late. How to store all your cosmetics without poking the purse out of shape creates quite a problem. And, according to the Powers Girls, the daily switching of this equipment from purse to purse, depending on the costume you are wearing, is practically a plague.

But Model Jane Jarvis has invented a way to lick the problems of both storing and switching. I call her invention a portable dressing table, but she calls it her "beauty book," and it does look like a handsome, leather-bound volume when she carries it under her arm.

Your Beauty Book

If you'd like to save yourself a lot of discomfort and dishabille during the wearisome summer days ahead, why not outfit yourself with one? It's simple enough. Just get a man's inexpensive traveling case of simulated leather. It measures about five inches in width, nine in length and two in depth. Be sure the one you select has plenty of compartments and a zippered closing. For real chi-chi, at little cost, mark your case with your initials in gold leaf.

Next, supply yourself with a set of small, unbreakable, gilt-topped jars and bottles which are available everywhere. You'll need one to hold your skin cleanser and freshener, foundation, powder, hand lotion, mouth wash and deodorant. To this collection add miniature-sized hair brush and comb, clothes brush, shaving cream to use in place of powder-room soaps, perfume, nail scissors, packet of tissues, emery board and cotton balls. Also include lipstick, (and other cosmetics you habitually use), nail polish and eyebrow tweezers. Arrange all the items in a handy and orderly fashion.

The Whole Story

Your beauty book will be ready for the longest day, week-end trip or vacation — and with no scrambling to get your necessaries together. It will fit in the glove compartment of the car, in the corner of your suitcase, in your desk drawer at the office, on the hatcheck girl's shelf, and wherever it is, it will tell a pretty tale about your grooming!

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

A RECENT reflection on Gen. MacArthur's previous appearances before Congress, when he was chief of staff in the early 1930's, has jogged the memory of Brig. Gen. Brice P. Disque, Ret., of Spuyten Duyvil, N. Y., who writes:

"I wish your piece had said that in 1933, at a time when Mr. Roosevelt had a couple of billion dollars appropriated for raking leaves and other such useful purposes, MacArthur was unable to get more than about 50 million dollars of that appropriation to help the mechanism of our army.

"About that time, it so happens, I was in command of some troops. We used some rented trucks with stove pipes on them, to represent tanks and motorized artillery, as the Army had no such equipment except in token quantities.

"I visited MacArthur and persuaded him to go to Mr. Roosevelt to get a considerable sum from the slush fund. Later on, he told me he had made the effort but that he was unable to get more than a token amount.

"It seems that Mr. Roosevelt was willing to give more but Madame Perkins and other advisors told him it would be unsocial to use the funds for military purposes.

"Of course, still later on, we expended millions of dollars for purposes which would have been adequately met for thousands of dollars had just a modicum of intelligence been used."

• — • — •

Ed note:—Incidentally, MacArthur got bawled out for applying for PWA funds. On a subsequent trip to Congress, to apply for money which would raise U. S. arms beyond the 17th place they held among the world powers, Rep. Blanton told him bluntly that he did not approve.

"Why don't you come to congress, General?" Blanton demanded. "Hasn't your department been coming to Congress for 150 years? And you have never gone to the PWA until last year?

"That is correct, sir."

"Well, what's the matter? Have you lost confidence in Congress?"

MacArthur apparently did not wish to trust himself to answer.

Some say that MacArthur aroused Acheson's ire in September, 1945, when the President suggested to MacArthur that he accept Acheson as a political adviser. MacArthur declined.

The bitterness of the Secretary of State increased, Freda Utley states in her new book "The China Story" (Henry Regnery, Co.) as a result of the suppressed MacArthur message to the Veterans of Foreign Wars last summer.

"It is clear that he (Acheson) has no appreciation of the psychology of Asiatics," he writes.

"Hence presumably the State Department's angry reaction to the MacArthur message to the VFW, which said, 'Nothing could be more fallacious than the threadbare argument of those who advocate appeasement in the Pacific, that if we defend Korea we alienate continental Asia. Those who speak thus do not understand the Orient.'"

Miss Utley, long-time China hand who is British born, adds:

The Old Second Guesser

By JOHN N. WHEELER

The Grand Old Man Of The Press Box

BOB WOODRUFF, the head of the Coca Cola Company, gave a dinner to honor Grantland Rice at the Links Club last night, and the batting order of guests looked like a composite box score of the famous in sports, industry, politics, and the arts. If such a tribute had been paid to this writer, he would probably get a big head and his wife would have to divorce him or shoot him, but old Grant will take it in his stride, as he has the ups and downs of life for 70 years.

Among the champions present were Bobby Jones, Gene Tunney, and Jack Dempsey. The latter two were on very friendly terms, although I remember the days when they hated each other, and each was trying to knock the other's block off. Time is a great dealer, and I wish it would get busy on the world situation and let pugilists take care of themselves.

"They ought to be on a first-name basis and cordial," remarked Bugs Baer. "As a result of their fights, both made a lot of money, and neither could have done it alone. They drew the biggest gate in the history of boxing in Chicago, and each is now rich."

Before we sat down to dinner, while we were nibbling at caviar and grazing on hors d'oeuvre which were not horse meat and sipping an occasional toddy, I was talking to Dempsey.

"I saw Firpo when I was in Buenos Aires last June," I told him.

"How was he—big and fat?" he inquired casually. No love is lost between the two even yet.

"No," I said. "He claimed he weighed two hundred and forty pounds. I asked him about the time he knocked you out of the ring. He didn't want to talk about it and didn't seem very friendly. How good a fighter was he?"

"He wasn't a very good one," answered Jack, "but he could punch and hurt. At the start of the first round, I didn't think much of him and missed with a left, and he caught me with a right which caused all the trouble and excitement."

Old-timers will recall Dempsey made an exit from the ring feet last, but managed to scramble back with the help of a few shoves from ringsiders in time to save the fight. He later knocked Firpo out after a furious exchange in which the South American was down several times.

The post-prandial oratory was so effusive I noticed Grant look around a couple of times and pinch himself, I suppose to be sure the speakers were referring to him and not to some divine spirit who had suddenly returned to earth. It was announced an anonymous donor had given a scholarship to the Pulitzer School of Journalism at Columbia University to be known as the Grantland Rice Fellowship, a nice and deserved tribute to the reputation he has made. Bugs Baer made a good talk and told one story I think can be repeated with propriety.

He spoke of several old-time sports writers who have now gone to their rewards.

"We've stuck together in fair weather and foul," he went on. "Thank goodness typewriters don't get the shakes."

There was one character we all knew who couldn't keep away from the races with the result he had gone broke and borrowed so much money, his former friends looked the other way when he came along to escape a touch. At the track one day, he started for that retreat where ladies are barred and negotiated a loan of a dime to finance the expedition. His luck changed, for as it turned out he didn't need it, finding a gentleman had left the door open.

En route back, he stopped at a slot machine and watched several players lose their money. Figuring it about ripe, he deposited his dime, hit the jackpot, and got five dollars which he bet on a horse at forty to one. He won. At the end of the day, he was $18,000 ahead and decided to reward his benefactor if he could find him by splitting his winnings. Word got around about his charitable intentions, and the philanthropist who loaned him the dime approached, expecting to get $9,000.

"Oh, I don't mean you," said the sports writer. "I am looking for the guy who left the door open." Whether he ever found him was not disclosed.

"Now here is where Grant Rice comes in," concluded Bugs. "He always leaves the door open for the other fellow."

The services ended with Morton Downey singing some sentimental old ballads.

"I saw Firpo when I was in Buenos Aires last June," I told him.

"How was he—big and fat?" he inquired casually. No love is lost between the two even yet.

"No," I said. "He claimed he weighed two hundred and forty pounds. I asked him about the time he knocked you out of the ring. He didn't want to talk about it and didn't seem very friendly. How good a fighter was he?"

"He wasn't a very good one," answered Jack, "but he could punch and hurt. At the start of the first round, I didn't think much of him and missed with a left, and he caught me with a right which caused all the trouble and excitement."

Old-timers will recall Dempsey made an exit from the ring feet last, but managed to scramble back with the help of a few shoves from ringsiders in time to save the fight. He later knocked Firpo out after a furious exchange in which the South American was down several times.

The post-prandial oratory was so effusive I noticed Grant look around a couple of times and pinch himself, I suppose to be sure the speakers were referring to him and not to some divine spirit who had suddenly returned to earth. It was announced an anonymous donor had given a scholarship to the Pulitzer School of Journalism at Columbia University to be known as the Grantland Rice Fellowship, a nice and deserved tribute to the reputation he has made. Bugs Baer made a good talk and told one story I think can be repeated with propriety.

He spoke of several old-time sports writers who have now gone to their rewards.

"We've stuck together in fair weather and foul," he went on. "Thank goodness typewriters don't get the shakes."

There was one character we all knew who couldn't keep away from the races with the result he had gone broke and borrowed so much money, his former friends looked the other way when he came along to escape a touch. At the track one day, he started for that retreat where ladies are barred and negotiated a loan of a dime to finance the expedition. His luck changed, for as it turned out he didn't need it, finding a gentleman had left the door open.

En route back, he stopped at a slot machine and watched several players lose their money. Figuring it about ripe, he deposited his dime, hit the jackpot, and got five dollars which he bet on a horse at forty to one. He won. At the end of the day, he was $18,000 ahead and decided to reward his benefactor if he could find him by splitting his winnings. Word got around about his charitable intentions, and the philanthropist who loaned him the dime approached, expecting to get $9,000.

"Oh, I don't mean you," said the sports writer. "I am looking for the guy who left the door open." Whether he ever found him was not disclosed.

"Now here is where Grant Rice comes in," concluded Bugs. "He always leaves the door open for the other fellow."

The services ended with Morton Downey singing some sentimental old ballads.

Mirror Of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist

Should you tell a small child to "be good"?

Answer: There is not much point in doing so because to a two-or three-year-old such abstract words as "good" have no clear meaning. He realizes that when he is something called "good" it pleases his mother, and he wants to please her so that she will love him, but words alone do not tell him how to go about it. He must be shown how to do certain specific things, like picking up his toys or letting baby sister play with them, and then be praised for it. To have demands made on him which he does not know how to meet makes him feel insecure and frightened.

Does a drunken man know what he is doing?

Answer: Not always. At some times and with some people too much liquor may produce a mental state known as dissociation (popularly called "drawing a blank") in which one part of their minds may function well enough to steer them through familiar activities like finding their way home, even though their consciousness is dazed or comatose. The simplest form of dissociation is the "absent-mindedness" of the proverbial professor, and sleepwalking is another and more dangerous one. When you start to "draw blanks," it's time to quit drinking.

May change of life cause paranoia?

Answer: When change of life brings on a mental illness, either in man or in woman, this is usually of the "depressive" type once known as "involutional melancholia," leading to loss of interest in life, intense sadness and often severe delusions of guilt. But psychiatrists now say that such symptoms generally occur only in a person who has previously had neurotic or psychotic tendencies. On this basis someone who had always been inclined to feel suspicious and "abused" might develop paranoia when faced with the problem of adjusting the new life-conditions.

with students leaving St. Mary's School grounds at 2:30 p. m. and marching to the stadium. Units participating in the parade are requested to be at the school grounds by 2:15 p. m., Rev. Hopkins stated.

In addition to the Arion Band a military color guard will parade with the units. Other representatives in the rally and parade will include the Holy Name Society and the Sodality of the Blessed Virgin Mary; Chief Justice Taney, General Assembly, Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus, Allegany Hospital nurses, parochical troops of the Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, high school students from St. Mary's, SS. Peter and Paul, Girls Central Catholic, and LaSalle, and members of the seventh and eighth grades of St. Mary's, St. Patrick's, SS. Peter and Paul, and St. Michael's, and the Laurana Veterans' Unit, CSMC.

All Catholic laity have been invited to attend the rally which will mark the coincidence of Pentecost Sunday, World Sodality Day, Our Lady of Fatima Day and Mother's Day.

imum Class C licenses as 60 but gives the board full power to restrict the number.

Senator Kimble said members of the Allegany County Delegation were opposed to any permanent cut in the club license, since to do so would limit the possibilities of developing bona-fide clubs.

The bill, he said, not only spells out what can be done but provides penalties for violations.

Can Reduce Number

Senator Kimble said the bill gives the control board the right to reduce the number of all types of licenses and to say in some areas that there shall be no licenses.

Also considered significant by the senator is provisions giving the board the right to regulate mechanical music boxes and other sound producing devices.

He explained that in summer the use of blaring music devices is often a nuisance to persons who live nearby.

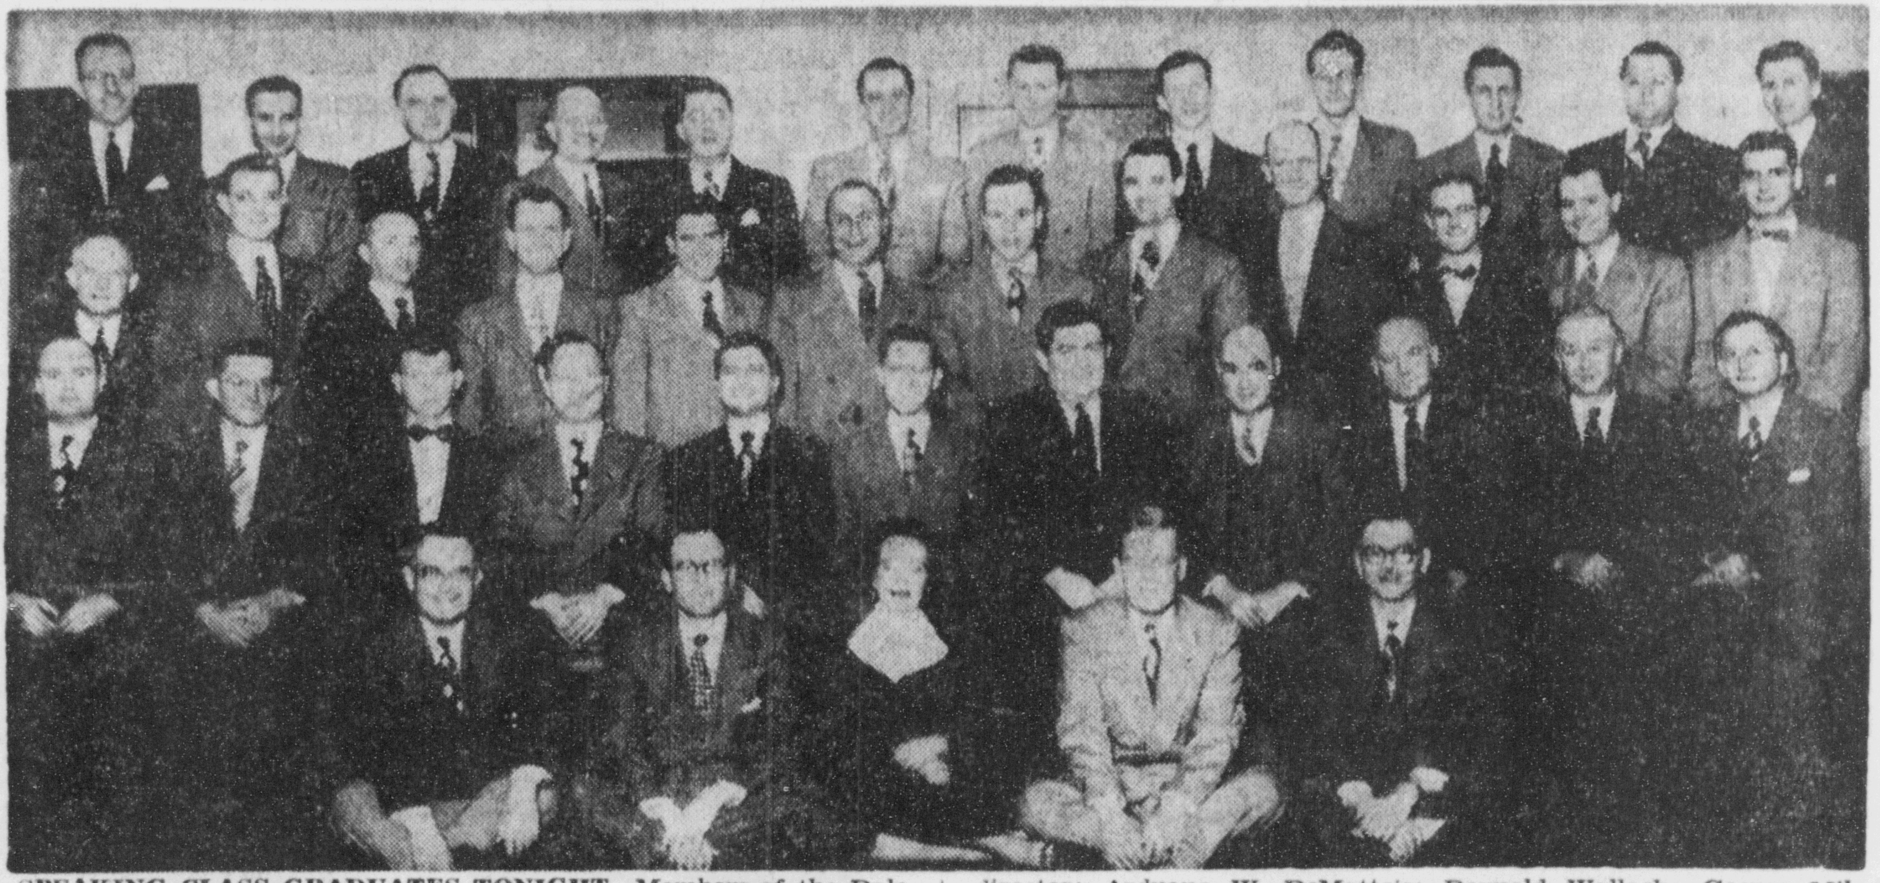
Under the old law, he added, such people had no course but to appeal to the police. If the offending place has a liquor license, all that will now be needed will be for the citizen to notify the board which could take appropriate action.

Spells Out Duties

He emphasized that the new bill will give the board the absolute authority to regulate the liquor industry in Allegany County in the interest of the public and not for any particular group.

It spells out the Board's duties so definitely that there can be no misunderstanding, he declared.

He added that if the governor accepts his recommendations for the new board, they will enforce the law, adding that if they did not, he will refuse to confirm them when their names are sent to the Senate for approval.



SPEAKING CLASS GRADUATES TONIGHT—Members of the Dale Carnegie Public Speaking Class No. 55, will graduate tonight at the Cumberland Country Club. Sponsored by C. S. feet deep and water has risen to about 40 feet of ground level, indicating 389 feet of water in the mines.

Several Openings

The fan house opening at the mines extends down 35 feet to coal. A bore hole, which was used for taking power lines into the mines, extends down 165 feet to the workings.

The fan house is located about a mile downstream from the head of Laurel Run. The bore hole is about 2,000 feet downstream below the fan house. The main section of Laurel Run, about seven miles long, lies between these openings and the Potomac River.

Discharge of mine water at the fan house is at ground elevation. The bore hole, an eight-inch pipe coupled to a six-inch pipe at ground level, is throwing a heavy stream of water as is also the air shaft opening at the fan house. The six-inch pipe at the bore hole extends about 40 inches above the ground surface at which point it overflows.

Schilpp pointed out that the bore hole is on property owned by William Bennett but presumably was leased to the Davis Coal and Coke Company.

Copies of the letters and the report have been forwarded to the Davis Coal and Coke Company, Keyser Building, Baltimore. Replies were received from the company's president, A. R. Matthews, Dante, Va., and also the company's legal representative, D. H. Hill Arnold, Elkins, W. Va.

Schilpp has recommended sealing the bore hole, mine openings and cementing the air shaft. It was noted that the air openings are in West Virginia.

Just what action the company will take remains to be seen, since the Commission has not heard from company representatives since Matthews wrote that he had referred the question to Arnold and the attorney acknowledged the communications.

Residents in the area say Laurel Run was one of the best trout streams in the county, heavily populated with brook, brown and rainbow trout. But the stream is devoid of fish and plant life now. If the mine flow can be cut off and water in the stream neutralized it can be returned as a fishing stream, officials believe.

mum Class C licenses as 60 but ives the board full power to retrict the number.

Senator Kimble said members of he Allegany County Delegation were opposed to any permanent cut n the club license, since to do so would limit the possibilities of developing bona-fide clubs.

The bill, he said, not only spells ut what can be done but provides penalties for violations.

Can Reduce Number

Senator Kimble said the bill gives the control board the right to reduce the number of all types of licenses and to say in some areas that there shall be no licenses.

Martinsburg Men Buy W. Va. Bus Holdings

The bus company that took over the Emery Motor Coach Lines franchises dissolved further when its West Virginia holdings were bought by Martinsburg, W. Va., men.

Potomac Coach Lines, Inc., West Virginia counterpart of Potomac Motor Lines, Inc., of Hagerstown, has been sold.

The line formerly operated between Charles Town, W. Va., and Cumberland, but since November 1 has not come in here. Metropolitan Trailways, managed by R. L. Emery, has two buses daily between Cumberland and Paw Paw, part of his former Emery franchise.

Controlling interest in the Potomac company serving Berkeley Springs, Martinsburg and Charlestown, was bought by Gardner W. Pierce, who has been manager of the firm's Martinsburg branch, and Edgar C. Albright, another Martinsburg branch official, and Floyd E. Wilburn.

In addition to the Berkeley Springs-Charles Town run, the Martinsburg inter-city operation operated by Wilburn was consolidated with the new firm.

Officers are Pierce, president; Albright, vice president; Wilburn, treasurer, and Gray Silver, secretary.

Pierce said that the company is purchasing $10,000 worth of equipment, principally buses, and will also use the vehicles owned by Wilburn for his city line.

There is to be no change in schedules or other operations at this time, Pierce said.

Pierce, Albright and Wilburn have purchased all of the stock in the company which was previously owned by Jack Bowers and Francis Urner, both of Hagerstown, who are also the controlling stockholders in Potomac Motor Lines, Inc., which operates a bus service in Maryland.

Rubber Local Election Brings Brisk Vote

Voting yesterday morning in the annual election of Local 26, United Rubber, Linoleum, Cork and Plastic Workers of America, CIO, was reported brisk at the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company plant.

Booths have been set up in the conference room and were open yesterday 5 to 6:30 p. m. and from 10:30 p. m. to 12:30 a. m.

Ballots will be counted today at Rubber Workers Hall, South Mechanic Street.

Running for president are the incumbent head, R. C. Burkhart, and the present vice president, Ralph C. Beard, who is a former president.

Members of the election committee are Thomas Boone, L. G. Jenkins, F. E. Robinson, Joseph Schnibbe and G. M. Caruthers.

The game of curling originated in Scotland before 1600.

Plane Crash Victim Will Lose Leg

Richard Adair, 23, Danville, Ill., who was badly hurt Saturday in a plane crash atop the Allegheny Mountains near Somerset, Pa., will lose one of his legs.

Physicians at Somerset Community Hospital said a gangrenous infection will require the broken limb to be amputated today.

Adair lay helpless until surveyors found him Tuesday.

The pilot, Robert Seymour, also of Danville, was killed instantly.

The light plane was following the Pennsylvania Turnpike, enroute from Columbus, Ohio, to Baltimore, when it crashed into the rugged mountain area.

Allegany High School Will Present Concert

Junior music groups of Allegany High School will present a spring concert today at 8 p. m. at the school auditorium.

They include the choral club, choir, gleemen, octet, band, orchestra, treble boy's glee club and treble clef club.

The band, directed by S. Lua Syckes, will open the program with a group of four numbers, "Corinthian Overture" by Brockton; "Bolero Non" by Kortz; "Plantation Echoes" arranged by Bennett, and "Crestwood March" by Leonard.

Bible Class Plans Sunday Program

A Mother's Day program will be held Sunday at 9:45 a. m. at Central YMCA by the Duke Memorial Bible Class.

Wilton Syckes, accompanied by Paul Merriott, will present several violin selections while Donald Tharp, accompanied by Miss Maxine Conrad, will sing several numbers.

Andrew Wilson, chorister for the class, will lead group singing. Gifts will be presented to the youngest and oldest mothers attending.

Arrangements are being handled by the entertainment committee comprised of Florian Wilson, chairman; Dr. William Firey and Charles U. Wiebel.

Bananas, 12c lb., 10 lb. basket 98c. Good selection, beautifully ripened fruit. Hager's at Lovers Leap.

Communion Breakfast Planned By K Of C

Cumberland Council No. 586, Knights of Columbus, will hold its annual communion breakfast Sunday at St. Patrick's Social Center following 8:30 mass in the parish church.

Rev. James T. McDermott, O.M.I., professor at House of Studies, Catholic University, Washington, will deliver the principal address. Toastmaster will be Joseph F. Stakem.

Grand Knight Peter J. Carpenti, who will give the "Welcome Address," said charter members will be honored at the breakfast.

Very Rev. J. Lawrence Kilkenny, pastor of St. Patrick's Church and rural dean of Western Maryland, will preside at the invocation and Rev. John U. Lyness, assistant pastor, will have charge of the benediction.

WM Revenue Hits Record In April

Gross operating revenues of the Western Maryland Railway during April established a new record for that month, but net income dipped below last year because of higher operating expenses and increased taxes, according to company estimates.

Operating revenues for last month were figured at approximately $3,967,000, up 16 per cent over $3,415,301 for April last year. The previous peak for April was that of $3,830,505 marked up in 1949.

Net income for last month was tentatively figured at $412,000 as compared with $494,794 for the corresponding period of 1950. Maintenance outlays and transportation costs rose about $500,000 in April over those of same month last year, and taxes were up more than $100,000.

Former Rector Named Dean In Texas

Rev. David C. Clark, former rector of Emmanuel Episcopal Church here, has been appointed the first dean of the Northwestern Deanery of the Episcopal Diocese of Dallas.

Since leaving here, Rev. Mr. Clark has served as rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd in Lexington, Ky., and is now rector of St. Luke Episcopal Church in Mineral Wells, Texas.

He was named to the new post by the Rt. Rev. C. Avery Mason, bishop of the diocese, at an organizational meeting of the deanery.

Dean Clark will assist and help direct the activities of Episcopal parishes and missions in 12 counties in Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark have been in Mineral Wells for nine months. Their children are attending the University of Kentucky in Lexington. Joanne is a sophomore and Thomas will graduate in June.

COLLECT VOTES FROM CUSTOMERS OF AMERICAN STORES AND ACME SUPER-MARKETS

Visual education through television is today vitally important in the planned educational programs of leading schools. Many programs are telecast daily for this purpose. And most schools need television receivers to take advantage of television . . . The American Stores Company and Philco Corporation have set aside 900 Philco 16-inch television receivers, to be given FREE OF CHARGE to schools . . . public, parochial and private. The American Stores — Philco Plan for Television Receivers in schools is NOT A CONTEST . . . there is NO COMPETITION between schools. Every school in this community can participate.

Through a system of votes, you, the customers of American Stores and ACME Super-Markets have the privilege of deciding which schools get the television receivers. Every 25-cent purchase entitles the customer to one vote . . . your cash register receipt is your vote. Everyone may take part by saving votes. Votes are in turn collected by the schools through parent-teacher organizations and similar groups. As soon as a school has accumulated the required number of votes, a new 16-inch Philco Television Receiver will be installed WITHOUT CHARGE! Start saving votes now . . . help your school!

The line formerly operated between Charles Town, W. Va., and Cumberland, but since November 1 has not come in here. Metropolitan Trailways, managed by R. L. Emery, has two buses daily between Cumberland and Paw Paw, part of his former Emery franchise.

Controlling interest in the Potomac company serving Berkeley Springs, Martinsburg and Charlestown, was bought by Gardner W. Pierce, who has been manager of the firm's Martinsburg branch, and Edgar C. Albright, another Martinsburg branch official, and Floyd E. Wilburn.

In addition to the Berkeley Springs-Charles Town run, the Martinsburg inter-city operation operated by Wilburn was consolidated with the new firm.

Officers are Pierce, president; Albright, vice president; Wilburn, treasurer, and Gray Silver, secretary.

Pierce said that the company is purchasing $10,000 worth of equipment, principally buses, and will also use the vehicles owned by Wilburn for his city line.

There is to be no change in schedules or other operations at this time, Pierce said.

Pierce, Albright and Wilburn have purchased all of the stock in the company which was previously owned by Jack Bowers and Francis Urner, both of Hagerstown, who are also the controlling stockholders in Potomac Motor Lines, Inc., which operates a bus service in Maryland.

Rubber Local Election Brings Brisk Vote

Voting yesterday morning in the annual election of Local 26, United Rubber, Linoleum, Cork and Plastic Workers of America, CIO, was reported brisk at the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company plant.

Booths have been set up in the conference room and were open yesterday 5 to 6:30 p. m. and from 10:30 p. m. to 12:30 a. m.

Ballots will be counted today at Rubber Workers Hall, South Mechanic Street.

Running for president are the incumbent head, R. C. Burkhart, and the present vice president, Ralph C. Beard, who is a former president.

Members of the election committee are Thomas Boone, L. G. Jenkins, F. E. Robinson, Joseph Schnibbe and G. M. Caruthers.

The game of curling originated in Scotland before 1600.

Plane Crash Victim Will Lose Leg

Richard Adair, 23, Danville, Ill., who was badly hurt Saturday in a plane crash atop the Allegheny Mountains near Somerset, Pa., will lose one of his legs.

Physicians at Somerset Community Hospital said a gangrenous infection will require the broken limb to be amputated today.

Adair lay helpless until surveyors found him Tuesday.

The pilot, Robert Seymour, also of Danville, was killed instantly.

The light plane was following the Pennsylvania Turnpike, enroute from Columbus, Ohio, to Baltimore, when it crashed into the rugged mountain area.

Allegany High School Will Present Concert

Junior music groups of Allegany High School will present a spring concert today at 8 p. m. at the school auditorium.

They include the choral club, choir, gleemen, octet, band, orchestra, treble boy's glee club and treble clef club.

The band, directed by S. Lua Syckes, will open the program with a group of four numbers, "Corinthian Overture" by Brockton; "Bolero Non" by Kortz; "Plantation Echoes" arranged by Bennett, and "Crestwood March" by Leonard.

Bible Class Plans Sunday Program

A Mother's Day program will be held Sunday at 9:45 a. m. at Central YMCA by the Duke Memorial Bible Class.

Wilton Syckes, accompanied by Paul Merriott, will present several violin selections while Donald Tharp, accompanied by Miss Maxine Conrad, will sing several numbers.

Andrew Wilson, chorister for the class, will lead group singing. Gifts will be presented to the youngest and oldest mothers attending.

Arrangements are being handled by the entertainment committee comprised of Florian Wilson, chairman; Dr. William Firey and Charles U. Wiebel.

Bananas, 12c lb., 10 lb. basket 98c. Good selection, beautifully ripened fruit. Hager's at Lovers Leap.

Communion Breakfast Planned By K Of C

Cumberland Council No. 586, Knights of Columbus, will hold its annual communion breakfast Sunday at St. Patrick's Social Center following 8:30 mass in the parish church.

Rev. James T. McDermott, O.M.I., professor at House of Studies, Catholic University, Washington, will deliver the principal address. Toastmaster will be Joseph F. Stakem.

Grand Knight Peter J. Carpenti, who will give the "Welcome Address," said charter members will be honored at the breakfast.

Very Rev. J. Lawrence Kilkenny, pastor of St. Patrick's Church and rural dean of Western Maryland, will preside at the invocation and Rev. John U. Lyness, assistant pastor, will have charge of the benediction.

WM Revenue Hits Record In April

Gross operating revenues of the Western Maryland Railway during April established a new record for that month, but net income dipped below last year because of higher operating expenses and increased taxes, according to company estimates.

Operating revenues for last month were figured at approximately $3,967,000, up 16 per cent over $3,415,301 for April last year. The previous peak for April was that of $3,830,505 marked up in 1949.

Net income for last month was tentatively figured at $412,000 as compared with $494,794 for the corresponding period of 1950. Maintenance outlays and transportation costs rose about $500,000 in April over those of same month last year, and taxes were up more than $100,000.

Former Rector Named Dean In Texas

Rev. David C. Clark, former rector of Emmanuel Episcopal Church here, has been appointed the first dean of the Northwestern Deanery of the Episcopal Diocese of Dallas.

Since leaving here, Rev. Mr. Clark has served as rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd in Lexington, Ky., and is now rector of St. Luke Episcopal Church in Mineral Wells, Texas.

He was named to the new post by the Rt. Rev. C. Avery Mason, bishop of the diocese, at an organizational meeting of the deanery.

Dean Clark will assist and help direct the activities of Episcopal parishes and missions in 12 counties in Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark have been in Mineral Wells for nine months. Their children are attending the University of Kentucky in Lexington. Joanne is a sophomore and Thomas will graduate in June.

U. N. Gals Gain Ground In Drive For Equal Rights

By A. I. GOLDBERG

LAKE SUCCESS, May 10 (AP) — You don't have to take to the hills, men. The equal-rights-for-women gals have tamed down.

Fifteen of them, representing all women all over the world, have been meeting quietly out at the United Nations in the only all-women group boasted by the U. N.

They're still after votes for women but in their fifth session they have agreed pretty generally that men should have the vote, too, and that the best man should win in the race for office, be he man or woman.

These women on the U. N. Commission on the Status of Women are teachers, lawyers, housewives, writers and just plain woman's-righters.

It's true that the commission is subsidiary to a group made up mainly of men, the Economic and Social Council, but one way or another, the women get across their ideas of extending property, nationality, political, social and economic rights as women. However, there has been some talk in the council of killing the commission and turning its work over to some other body. A decision may be made late this year.

This only all-women group—with only the barest sprinkling of men advisers — does just about the same amount of talking and gets the same amount of work done as the men in all-male groups.

The debates include the same catfights between East and West that distinguish arguments between the Russians, the British, the Poles, the Americans and other side-takers throughout the U. N.

Mrs. Olive Remington Goldman, writer, lecturer, former faculty member at the University of Illinois and a consultant to the U. S. Department of Interior, is the U. S. delegate.

Mrs. Elizavieta Aleksievna Popova, is the Russian member. One of the few delegates who lists her age — she is 49 — she is a lawyer.

The two tangled most in the East-West fights, with Miss Mary Sutherland, British delegate from Aberdeen, occasionally tossing in a broadside with her drawling Scottish burr.

Mrs. Popova set the pace for her colleague, mild-mannered Mrs. Zofia Dembinska, who is Polish deputy minister for education and a new member of the group.

Mrs. Popova boycotted last year's meetings because they wouldn't seat Red Chinese instead of Nationalist Chinese. She came back this year primed to oust the Nationalist Chinese and to get the newest Communist peace propaganda campaign on the commission program.

The commission turned her down cold on both scores. Undaunted, Mrs. Popova — aided by Mrs. Dembinska — started injecting the peace theme into every long discourse, and accusing the United States of leading preparations for war.

But when Mrs. Popova began sounding like Andrei Vishinsky and Jacob Malik on how to get peace, the women reared back and voted they didn't want to hear any more.

Mrs. Popova and Mrs. Dembinska both took a line that only in Russia and the Cominform countries were women properly represented in the government. They rattled off how many women were in this or that body of national or local lawmakers and then recited figures to show that there weren't very many in the U. S. Congress, Britain's Parliament, or in other governments. Underlying their argument was a hidden one that if a woman ran for office she ought to be elected automatically.

Mrs. Goldman had several retorts for this reasoning. First, she said, we have free elections in the United States and a free choice of candidates. More than half the voters in the 1948 elections were women. There are thousands of women officeholders and thousands more teachers throughout the U. S. The U. S. has named women as delegates to the General Assembly, but Russia never has. Women are high in U. S. policy-making councils, furthermore, women do have financial independence and control more financial holdings than men.

How about Russia, Mrs. Goldman asked? How many women were in the Russian cabinet, how many women are in the party (central) Politburo? For that matter, she asked, how many women are members of the Communist Party, the first step to getting anywhere in Russia? Wasn't the figure only 20.7 per cent? Was that because women shun Communism? Or are they barred?

Mrs. Popova, usually at no loss for words, answered lamely "this is not the place to talk about the makeup of the politburo."

Mrs. Goldman and others agreed that many men, as well as women, were politically illiterate and she cited that the League of Women Voters in the U. S. is allowing men to be associate members to help their political education.

Miss Sutherland, who attacked Mrs. Popova's diatribes as "dishonest," also agreed that women should have rights equal to men but there was no need to demand anything farther.

Marine In Korea Campaigns To Bolster Spirits At Home

COLUMBUS, O.— (AP) —Are you troubled by war jitters and inflation blues?

Then let the letters from a Marine in Korea bolster your morale.

Pfc. Daniel D. Duffey, of Columbus, is conducting a one-man campaign through the mails to keep up spirits on the home front. His mother, Mrs. Richard B. Sherts, says the letters have been coming for eight months.

She says he makes the letters cheerful by using "ha, ha" phrases for punctuation marks.

One letter told how a Marine calmly went ahead getting his hair cut during a North Korean banzai (suicide) charge. Duffey wrote

"The bullets were flying around this guy getting the haircut. They didn't bother him, but the gook (a captured North Korean) was hackin' the heck out of his hair because he was so scared. Ha, ha."

Duffey injured his hand in February when he fell down a mountainside. Three weeks later he was back in combat. Then he was wounded in the left foot, near Chunchon. He now is in a naval hospital in Japan.

The Marine once wrote that if everyone back home was as healthy as he was, "you'll put the docs out of business."

He heard about Ohio's battle last winter with below zero temperatures and ice-glazed streets and wrote:

"Well, you watch those icy streets. You're worse off there than I am here."

American railroads had 1,641 new locomotives on order on Feb. 1, 1951.

Then let the letters from a Marine in Korea bolster your morale.

Pfc. Daniel D. Duffey, of Columbus, is conducting a one-man campaign through the mails to keep up spirits on the home front. His mother, Mrs. Richard B. Sherts, says the letters have been coming for eight months.

She says he makes the letters cheerful by using "ha, ha" phrases for punctuation marks.

One letter told how a Marine calmly went ahead getting his hair cut during a North Korean banzai (suicide) charge. Duffey wrote

"The bullets were flying around this guy getting the haircut. They didn't bother him, but the gook (a captured North Korean) was hackin' the heck out of his hair because he was so scared. Ha, ha."

Duffey injured his hand in February when he fell down a mountainside. Three weeks later he was back in combat. Then he was wounded in the left foot, near Chunchon. He now is in a naval hospital in Japan.

The Marine once wrote that if everyone back home was as healthy as he was, "you'll put the docs out of business."

He heard about Ohio's battle last winter with below zero temperatures and ice-glazed streets and wrote:

"Well, you watch those icy streets. You're worse off there than I am here."

American railroads had 1,641 new locomotives on order on Feb. 1, 1951.

Soup-Sauce For Spring Vegetables

Guaranteed to melt in your mouth are fresh spring vegetables in a rich cream sauce. And for a quick grand sauce, you can use condensed soups.

Cream of mushroom, chicken, and celery soups all have flattering ways with vegetables. Try the chicken or mushroom soup with new little green peas or tender asparagus. And any of these soup-sauces team well with cooked carrots, green snap beans, or corn. The sauces have two special advantages besides their good eating qualities: They're quick to fix. And they help your campaign to "be kind to the budget."

When preparing a condensed soup for a sauce, stir in ¼ cup milk; then heat it. You may use slightly more or less milk according to your likes. And each can of soup makes enough sauce for about a pound of vegetables (before they are cooked). Here are some pleasing vegetable-sauce combinations.

Spring Vegetable Trio

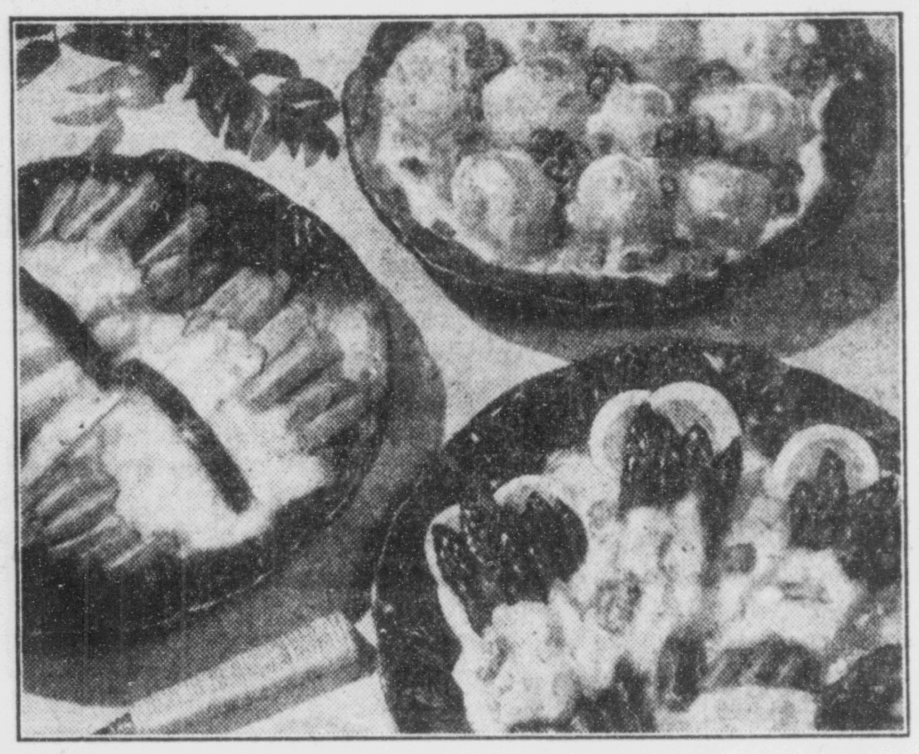
(Serve any one of these as a special treat for dinner or lunch).

Potatoes and Peas in Mushroom Sauce: Stir 2 cups of cooked peas into 1 can of condensed cream of mushroom soup (blended and heated with ¼ cup milk). Pour over cooked new potatoes (6 to 8 small ones).

Asparagus with Chicken Cream Sauce: Over 1 pound of cooked asparagus, pour this sauce: Mix 1 can condensed cream of chicken soup with ¼ cup milk; heat well and serve.

Carrots in Celery Cream Sauce. Over 1 pound of cooked sliced carrots pour this sauce: Mix 1 can condensed cream of celery soup with ¼ cup milk; heat and serve.

Soup-Sauces for Spring Vegetables



BREATH o' spring for your table is this garden trio of vegetables. Each vegetable is more delectable served with a condensed soup sauce—cream of mushroom, chicken, or celery soup.

RYE CROUTONS

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 pint toasted ½" rye bread cubes

Melt butter in a skillet. Add toasted bread cubes and stir until all sides are coated with butter. Serve with all varieties of soups. Yield: 1 pint Rye Croutons.

BABY'S BOWL OF SOUP

When the whole family is dining on soup, serve it to your one-year-old also. He's ready for condensed soup as soon as he's eating soft chewing foods.

Veal Steaks Take On Variety

Serving a good balance of beef, veal, pork and lamb keeps meals interesting. Likewise, serving each cut in different ways can overrule monotony.

Take veal steaks and chops for example. The basic method of cooking is by braising. First, they are browned in a small amount of fat, a little liquid is added, the pan covered and the meat allowed to finish cooking. This takes from 45 minutes to 1 hour, depending upon their thickness.

Variety in serving is attained by using different seasonings and different liquids in which to cook the veal. A paprika sauce in an interesting cooking liquid. Or the steaks may be seasoned with a bit of ginger, mustard, and onion and cooked in milk or cream. For other servings, veal may be braised in a tomato sauce, in sour cream or mushroom sauce. Some fruit flavors are appealing with veal, Examples are prunes and apricots.

BACON CROUTONS

2 tablespoons bacon drippings
1 pint soft ½" bread cubes

Melt drippings in a skillet. Add bread cubes and stir until each one is coated with the fat. Spread on a cookie sheet and toast under low broiler heat for five minutes, or until golden brown. Serve with soup or as a snack.

Yield: 1 pint Bacon Croutons.

Meat Calls For Rice In These Dishes

Meat and rice are a time-proven combination. A review of the known combinations gives a hint to further opportunities for joint serving of these two foods.

Chop suey made with pork strips is the usual. Taking a cue from this prepare heart chop suey or liver chop suey. Both of these are served with rice for a popular conbination and are an economical choice at your market.

A stuffing for meat is a second use for rice. It may be the stuffing for a beef flank steak, lamb shanks, lamb breast, lamb or pork cushion style shoulder, pork chops or a frankfurter crown. To rice stuffing the same as bread stuffing, all chopped celery, minced onion or mushroom bits.

Ground beef adds a satisfying touch to Spanish rice for another combination. A top of the range dish or an oven casserole may be prepared of bulk pork sausage, tomatoes and rice. Ground pork combines with rice to stuff hollowed green peppers.

Chicken Pie All Time Favorite

Nearly everyone likes a good chicken pie. Any cafeteria manager will say that it is one of the most popular dishes on his menu. It is just as well received at home, especially if a new touch is added in its preparation.

For instance, a simple-to-make chicken pie uses buttered corn flakes for topping. This was first introduced by a famous hotel chef. There are two other schools of thought regarding a topping for chicken pie. One holds for biscuits—the other says the top must be pastry. Here are two chicken pie suggestions for your consideration:

Chicken Pie Palmer House

3 cups cooked chicken; 1 cup cooked carrots; 12 small cooked onions; 12 cooked potato balls; ½ cup button mushrooms; 4 tablespoons shortening or chicken fat; 4 tablespoons flour; ½ teaspoon salt; dash pepper; 1½ cups chicken stock; 1 cup thin cream or milk; 2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine; 3 cups corn flakes.

Arrange pieces of chicken which have been removed from bone, carrots, onions, potato balls and mushrooms in six individual casseroles.

Melt shortening, add flour and seasonings; add chicken stock and cream slowly, stirring constantly. Cook over low heat, stirring frequently until thickened. Pour over chicken and vegetables. Sprinkle melted butter over corn flakes and stir until each flake is buttered. Cover top of casseroles with corn flakes. Bake in very hot oven (500 degree F.) 10 to 15 minutes.

Yield: 6 individual casseroles.

Or try this same chicken pie filling with Bran Biscuits and bake in a moderately hot oven (325 degree F.) for about 20 minutes, or until biscuits are done.

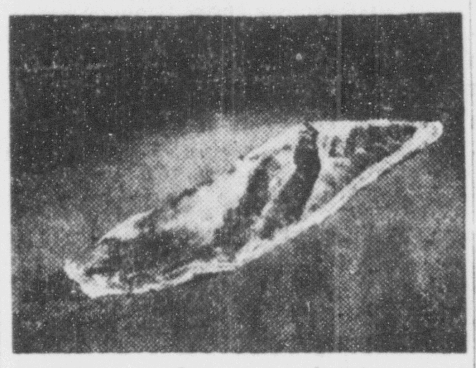
Bran Biscuits

½ cup ready-to-eat bran; ¾ cup milk; 1½ cups sifted flour; 3 tablespoons baking powder; 1 teaspoon salt; ⅓ cup shortening.

Soak bran in milk. Sift flour, baking powder, and salt together. Cut in shortening until mixture is like coarse cornmeal. Add soaked bran; stir until well blended. Turn onto floured board, knead lightly; roll or pat to ½ inch thickness. Cut with floured cutter. Place on top of chicken pie mixture.

Yield: 8 large biscuits.

MEAT CUT Quiz



Q. What is the name of this cut of meat?

A. Lamb breast.

SAVE MONEY ON EVERY JAR!

1. Save the coupons on the label. They're good for hundreds of wonderful premiums.
2. Save the mason-type jar. Grand for home canning and leftovers!

Mrs. M. V. Filbert, Pres.

Read why 7-STEP Mayonnaise makes salads burst with flavor!

"It's my own recipe, made up in small batches so it tastes homemade!" says Mrs. Filbert. "The egg-rich, real-lemon flavor makes the simplest salad greens taste grand. You get genuine mayonnaise—spooned right from the jar!"

So easy for you ... so delicious! Mrs. Filbert takes these 7 steps:

1. First, her own secret spices are carefully blended in.
2. They're creamed together with fresh-frozen whole eggs.
3. Fresh-pressed salad oil is beaten in.
4. Then real lemon juice, and more egg yolks for extra rich, full-bodied flavor.
5. Pure vinegar seals in the salad oil. (No oily look or flavor in this 7-Step Mayonnaise—ever!)
6. The whole delicious mix is extra-whipped in a big eggbeater.
7. And more real lemon juice gives the final flavor touch!

Tastes fresh off the eggbeater!

NEW! MRS. FILBERT'S 7-STEP MAYONNAISE WITH EXTRA EGGS, REAL LEMON JUICE!

SAVE MONEY ON EVERY JAR!
1. Save the coupons on the label. They're good for hundreds of wonderful premiums.
2. Save the mason-type jar. Grand for home canning and leftovers!

Mrs. M. V. Filbert, Pres.

Read why 7-STEP Mayonnaise makes salads burst with flavor!

"It's my own recipe, made up in small batches so it tastes homemade!" says Mrs. Filbert. "The egg-rich, real-lemon flavor makes the simplest salad greens taste grand. You get genuine mayonnaise—spooned right from the jar!"

So easy for you . . . so delicious! Mrs. Filbert takes these 7 steps:

1. First, her own secret spices are carefully blended in.
2. They're creamed together with fresh-frozen whole eggs.
3. Fresh-pressed salad oil is beaten in.
4. Then real lemon juice, and more egg yolks for extra rich, full-bodied flavor.
5. Pure vinegar seals in the salad oil. (No oily look or flavor in this 7-Step Mayonnaise—ever!)
6. The whole delicious mix is extra-whipped in a big eggbeater.
7. And more real lemon juice gives the final flavor touch!

If you like taste-rich salads, plump, flavorful sandwiches, make 'em with Mrs. Filbert's 7-Step Mayonnaise. So rich, you can thin it and lose none of the flavor. So good, the fussiest families like salads. It's a new taste thrill! Buy a jar today!

Mrs. Filbert's Real Home-Style MAYONNAISE

DON'T WAIT! YOU CAN TASTE IT TONIGHT!

MRS. FILBERT'S 7 STEP MAYONNAISE

Shirred Eggs Mexican Style Adds Menu Variety

Rice and eggs make good dish. The eggs baked in a tasty chili-powder flavored tomato sauce are delicious with the white rice. And this dish is a "quickie". Don't be afraid to add plenty of salt and pepper to the sauce, for both eggs and rice are better with high seasoning.

Ingredients

½ onion, minced (medium size)
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 can tomato sauce (8 oz.)
1¼ teaspoons chili powder
Salt and pepper
6 eggs
1 cup rice (uncooked measurement)

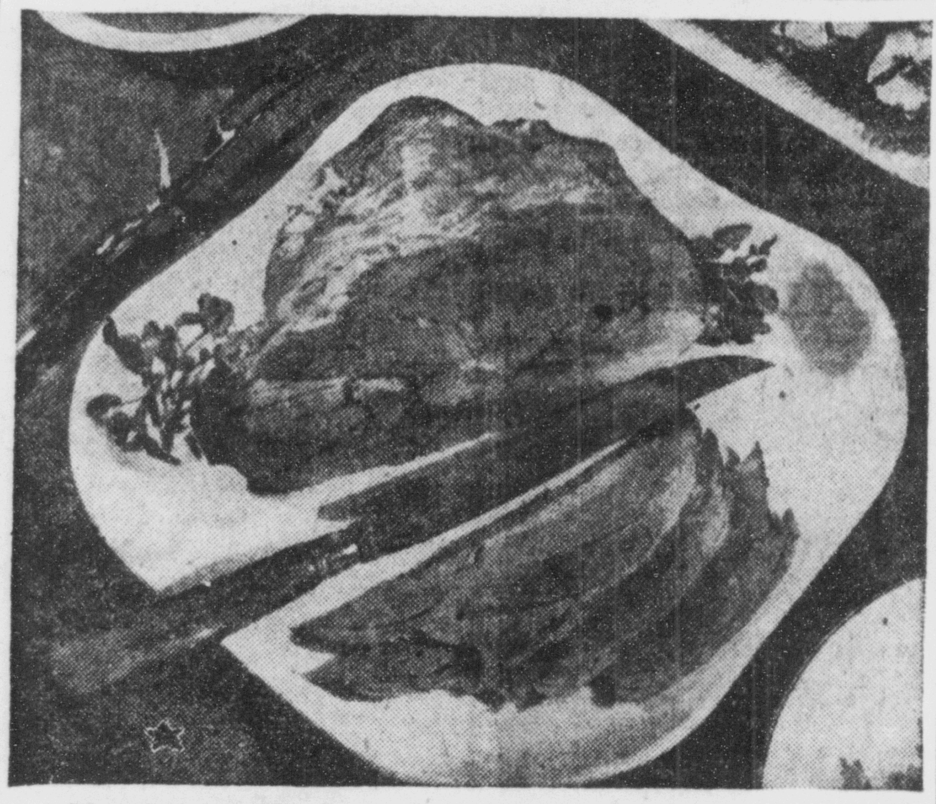
Preparing The Rice

Put 1 up of uncooked rice, 2 cups of cold water and 1 teaspoon of salt in a two-quart saucepan and cover with a tight-fitting lid. Set over a hot flame until it boils vigorously. Then reduce the heat as low as possible and steam for 14 minutes more or until all the water is absorbed, leaving the separate rice grains with their full nutritional value. This makes very firm rice grains. (If you prefer more tender rice grains, add ⅛ cup more water and increase the slow cooking time 4 or 5 minutes.) Remove the lid, permit the rice to steam dry to the desired consistency and the grains will be separate and fluffy. Never stir rice; lift rice gently with a fork.

Method

Fry onion in butter or margarine until tender, but do not brown. Add tomato sauce, chili powder and a small amount of water if sauce is very thick. Add salt and pepper to taste. Divide sauce into 6 greased custard cups, and break one egg into each cup. Place cups in a shallow pan of hot water and bake from 12 to 15 minutes in a 375 degrees F. oven. Scoop the eggs out and serve on a bed of fluffy rice. Makes 6 servings.

WHEN MOTHER PLANS "HER" MEAL



This choice for Mother's Day, a veal rump roast, is easily carved into attractive, even slices because it has been correctly prepared—that is, roasted in a slow oven (300°F.) and allowed to set for 30 minutes before serving.

Spice Cookies

Blend shortening and sugar. Combine soda with molasses and add to first mixture; beat well. Add bran and nutmeats. Sift flour with baking powder, salt, cinnamon, cloves and ginger and add to creamed mixture alternately with water. Chill thoroughly. Roll dough to about ⅛ inch thickness and cut with cookie cutter. Place raisin or small amount of jelly in center if desired. Bake in moderately hot oven (400 degree F.) about 10 minutes.

Yield: 5 dozen cookies (3½ inches in diameter).

"Pillafi," Rice With Mushrooms

Rice recipes galore are to be found in the first American cookbook featuring Near Eastern food. Yes, recipes from twelve countries, are compiled in the book, GOOD FOOD FROM THE NEAR EAST, by Joan Rowland (M. Barrows and Company). Many of these recipes include rice.

This Grecian dish, Pillafi (Rice with Mushrooms), from Miss Rowland's book is a delightful one for buffet suppers or simple family meals. It is a dish with a "meaty flavor" although no meat is required for the making.

INGREDIENTS

1 pound mushrooms
1 medium sized onion, chopped
1 green pepper, chopped
Few sprigs parsley, chopped
1 cup canned tomatoes
1 tablespoon tomato paste
¼ cup oil
1 tablespoon butter
Salt and pepper
1 cup rice (uncooked)
1 cup water

METHOD: Cut the mushrooms into small pieces with a silver knife. Add the onion, green pepper, parsley, tomatoes, tomato paste, oil, butter, salt and pepper. Place on low heat; in about 10 minutes add the rice and the water. Cook 20 minutes in all. Add hot water, a little at a time, as needed, if the mixture gets too dry; but when the rice is tender, the liquid should all be absorbed.

Yield: 4 to 6 servings.

Note: Watch carefully to keep from burning. We found that if a lid is put on the skillet during part of the cooking time, the rice cooks more quickly and is in less danger of sticking.

Soup In 1951 Food Picture

Right at the side of the American women, who fix meals for families all over the country, are the prepared foods. Condensed soup is one of these foods, playing its own special part each day in millions of American homes.

Spring of '51 finds homemakers in serious need of kitchen help in the form of quick-fix food. There are 18 million women working in business; about half of these are married and run homes. Also many of these women are mothers; more than a fifth of all mothers of children under 18 are working outside the home, according to the U. S. Department of Labor. Meanwhile, there is critical need for mothers to share more time with youngsters.

Besides the great push for time these days, there's heavier pressure on family incomes. Food prices are at a new high; however, condensed soup has stayed at a lower price level than many food items.

With soup on hand, a main part of any lunch or supper is right on the kitchen shelf. What a joy on a summer day when no one wants heat in the kitchen. Have it with family-favorite meat or cheese sandwiches and a refreshing dessert like a fruit cup. This menu pattern has been voted one of America's most popular soup meals in a survey of 3100 homemakers. As you know, the 10 favorite soups are: tomato, chicken noodle, vegetable, vegetable-beef, chicken with rice, cream of mushroom, cream of chicken, beef noodle, green pea and chicken gumbo.

SAUCE USES: Besides being a grand dish by itself, soup is the perfect sauce to go over and with meats and vegetables. More than half of all housewives use condensed soup as a sauce or ingredient, with tomato and mushroom by far the most popular for this. These soup-sauces are especially useful with summer foods.

MEATS: Those items now in good supply—pork, chicken, fish—take well to combination with a soup-sauce. That last bit of roast or chicken makes just enough to go round when mixed with cream of mushroom or chicken soup; pour this over hot rice or mashed pottoes for an all-in-one dish. Fish becomes more tempting in a sauce of cream of celery soup seasoned with chopped pickle and prepared mustard.

EGGS: In numerous egg dishes, condensed soup can be an important ingredient. Hard-cooked eggs may be creamed with any of the cream-soup sauces. And these soups are fine for fixing Eggs Benedict. An omelet filled with cooked asparagus makes elegant eating when cream of chicken soup is poured over all.

Vegetables: The garden-goodness of the current vegetable crop is enhanced by special sauces. Three cream soups—celery, chicken, mushroom—go well with almost any of these fresh things. Here are good sauce-and-vegetable teams:

Cream of Mushroom Soup: Delicious with all spring vegetables and those that come a little later—green snap beans, cauliflower and lima beans.

Cream of Chicken Soup: Especially pleasant company for new potatoes and green peas. Also grand with summer squash, carrots, onions, celery, corn and broccoli.

Cream of Celery Soup: Teams well with most vegetables.

Casseroles: Countless main dishes call for a creamy sauce as a basic ingredient—another place for soup sauces to shine. The special flavor in cream of chicken or mushroom soup perks up the blandness of noodles or rice in a casserole. In just a twist of the wrist the perfect soup sauce is ready; our test kitchen staff finds this takes less than half the time to make white sauce.

Chilled Soups: Menu planners can feature chilled condensed soups to refresh the family on "scorcher" days. How delightful is ice cold cream of chicken or tomato soup. The chilled soups are generally best if mixed with about an equal amount of milk. And they should be chilled at least 4 hours so they are good and cold.

If there's going to be a wedding at your house or if you want to delight one of your friends who's going to be married, here's an idea: make a bride's cake of white cake mix.

It's a lovely cake, quick, easy and beautiful. And inexpensive, too. Just figure it out for yourself—three packages of Instant Cake Mix, three and a half cups of milk, and sugar and egg whites for frosting. It cuts into pieces enough for 25 or 30 people, downy light and delicious, a bride-cake masterpiece.

After you've frosted the cake smoothly, you can decorate it with flutings and curlicues put on with a pastry tube, and for extra trimming add a few little birds or flowers sold for cake decorating. Practice with the pastry tube by squirting a sample of your fluting on a piece of waxed paper. You can scrape up the practice frosting and put it back in the tube to use again, so no waste is involved in perfecting your technique.

WEDDING CAKE

(Two-tiered oblong cake for 25 to 30 people)

Preparations. Line 13x9x2-inch pan and 9x9x2-inch pan on bottoms with paper. Start oven for moderate heat (350°F.).

3 packages Swans Down Instant Cake Mix
3½ cups milk

Combine contents of two packages Swans Down Instant Cake Mix in mixing bowl. Add 1 cup milk. Blend, then beat 2 minutes. Add 1⅓ cups milk. Blend, then beat 1 minute longer.

Pour batter into prepared 13x9x2-inch pan. Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) 55 minutes, or until done. Remove from oven and increase oven heat to 375°F. Cool cake in pan 10 minutes, then turn out on cake rack to finish cooling.

Place contents of third package of Swans Down Instant Cake Mix in mixing bowl. Add ½ cup milk. Blend, then beat 2 minutes. Add ⅔ cup milk. Blend, then beat 1 minute longer.

Pour batter into prepared 9x9x2-inch pan. Bake in moderate oven (375°F.) 30 minutes, or until done. Cool.

Frosting. Prepare seven-minute frosting, using 2 egg whites. Then place the large cake on an attractive oblong serving plate or tray. Spread top and sides of cake with frosting. Trim the 9x9x2-inch cake to measure 9x7x2-inches by cutting a 1-inch slice from opposite sides of the cake. Place on top of the frosted layer, centering evenly. Prepare another batch of seven-minute frosting and spread on top and sides of small cake, reserving some for decorating. With a knife, go over entire cake, making a smooth flat surface for decorating.

Decorating. Using a pastry bag or decorating tube, decorate frosted cake as desired with the reserved frosting. Place wedding bell or other suitable ornament in center of top layer, if desired.

HORSE-RADISH MUSTARD CROUTONS

2 tablespoons corn oil
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
2 teaspoons prepared horse-radish
1 pint soft ½" bread cubes

Combine corn oil, mustard and horse-radish. Add bread cubes and stir until each one is coated with the oil mixture. Spread on a cookie sheet and toast under low broiler heat for five minutes, or until golden brown. Serve as a snack.

Yield: 1 pint Horse-radish Mustard Croutons.

CHEESE FLOATERS

On top each bowlful of tomato soup, float a toasted slice of French or Italian bread, sprinkled with grated cheese. A flavorful flourish. Also good on hot consomme' or bouillon.

Soup In 1951 Food Picture

Right at the side of the American women, who fix meals for families all over the country, are the prepared foods. Condensed soup is one of these foods, playing its own special part each day in millions of American homes.

Spring of '51 finds homemakers in serious need of kitchen help in the form of quick-fix food. There are 18 million women working in business; about half of these are married and run homes. Also many of these women are mothers; more than a fifth of all mothers of children under 18 are working outside the home, according to the U. S. Department of Labor. Meanwhile, there is critical need for mothers to share more time with youngsters.

Besides the great push for time these days, there's heavier pressure on family incomes. Food prices are at a new high; however, condensed soup has stayed at a lower price level than many food items.

With soup on hand, a main part of any lunch or supper is right on the kitchen shelf. What a joy on a summer day when no one wants heat in the kitchen. Have it with family-favorite meat or cheese sandwiches and a refreshing dessert like a fruit cup. This menu pattern has been voted one of America's most popular soup meals in a survey of 3100 homemakers. As you know, the 10 favorite soups are: tomato, chicken noodle, vegetable, vegetable-beef, chicken with rice, cream of mushroom, cream of chicken, beef noodle, green pea and chicken gumbo.

SAUCE USES: Besides being a grand dish by itself, soup is the perfect sauce to go over and with meats and vegetables. More than half of all housewives use condensed soup as a sauce or ingredient, with tomato and mushroom by far the most popular for this. These soup-sauces are especially useful with summer foods.

MEATS: Those items now in good supply—pork, chicken, fish—take well to combination with a soup-sauce. That last bit of roast or chicken makes just enough to go round when mixed with cream of mushroom or chicken soup; pour this over hot rice or mashed pottoes for an all-in-one dish. Fish becomes more tempting in a sauce of cream of celery soup seasoned with chopped pickle and prepared mustard.

EGGS: In numerous egg dishes, condensed soup can be an important ingredient. Hard-cooked eggs may be creamed with any of the cream-soup sauces. And these soups are fine for fixing Eggs Benedict. An omelet filled with cooked asparagus makes elegant eating when cream of chicken soup is poured over all.

Vegetables: The garden-goodness of the current vegetable crop is enhanced by special sauces. Three cream soups—celery, chicken, mushroom—go well with almost any of these fresh things. Here are good sauce-and-vegetable teams:

Cream of Mushroom Soup: Delicious with all spring vegetables and those that come a little later—green snap beans, cauliflower and lima beans.

Cream of Chicken Soup: Especially pleasant company for new potatoes and green peas. Also grand with summer squash, carrots, onions, celery, corn and broccoli.

Cream of Celery Soup: Teams well with most vegetables.

Casseroles: Countless main dishes call for a creamy sauce as a basic ingredient—another place for soup sauces to shine. The special flavor in cream of chicken or mushroom soup perks up the blandness of noodles or rice in a casserole. In just a twist of the wrist the perfect soup sauce is ready; our test kitchen staff finds this takes less than half the time to make white sauce.

Chilled Soups: Menu planners can feature chilled condensed soups to refresh the family on "scorcher" days. How delightful is ice cold cream of chicken or tomato soup. The chilled soups are generally best if mixed with about an equal amount of milk. And they should be chilled at least 4 hours so they are good and cold.

Bread Sticks Croutons Add To Meals

Croutons and Bread Sticks make the fullest use of bread, and add materially to the good eating of the foods for which they are designed as accompaniments. Croutons not only add zest and nutritive value to soups, but also make interesting "snack" eating; Bread Sticks too serve as snacks, and are delicious with salads.

BACON-CHEESE BREAD STICKS

½ cup grated processed cheese
2 tablespoons chopped, cooked bacon
4 slices toasted enriched or rye bread

Spread 2 tablespoons cheese and 1½ teaspoons bacon on each slice of toast. Toast on a cookie sheet in a moderate oven (350° F.) for twelve minutes, or until crisp. Cut each slice into 6 equal size strips. Serve with salad or soup.

Yield: 2 dozen Bacon-Cheese Bread Sticks.

DILL BREAD STICKS

4 slices enriched bread
2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
1½ tablespoons dill seeds

Remove crust from bread and brush both sides of bread slices with butter. Cut each slice into 6 equal size strips. Roll strips in dill seeds. Toast on a cookie sheet in a moderate oven (350° F.) for twelve minutes, or until crisp. Serve with soup or as a snack.

Yield: 2 dozen Dill Bread Sticks.

HORSE-RADISH BREAD STICKS

2 tablespoons soft butter or margarine
1 tablespoon horse-radish
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
5 slices toasted enriched bread

Combine butter, horse-radish and mustard. Remove crusts from bread and spread 2 teaspoons horse-radish butter on each slice of toast. Place toast, spread side up, on an ungreased cookie sheet. Toast under low broiler heat for five minutes. Cut each slice into 6 equal strips. Serve with soup.

Yield: 2½ dozen Horse-radish Bread Sticks.

PARMESAN BREAD STICKS

1 egg, beaten
1 tablespoon melted butter or margarine
3 slices enriched bread
6 tablespoons finely grated Parmesan cheese.

Combine egg and butter. Remove crusts from bread and cut each slice into 6 equal size strips. Roll strips in Parmesan cheese. Toast on a cookie sheet in a moderate oven (350° F.) for fifteen minutes, or until crisp. Turn them so they will be golden brown on all sides. Serve with salad or soup.

Yield: 1½ dozen Parmesan Bread Sticks.

CARAWAY SEED BREAD STICKS

4 slices enriched bread
2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
2 tablespoons caraway seeds

Remove crusts from bread and brush both sides of bread slices with butter. Cut each slice into 6 equal size strips. Roll strips in caraway seeds. Toast on a cookie sheet in a moderate oven (350° F.) for twelve minutes, or until crisp. Serve with salad or soup.

Yield: 2 dozen Caraway Seed Bread Sticks.

GARLIC BREAD STICKS

2 tablespoons soft butter or margarine
2 tablespoons mayonnaise or salad dressing
1 teaspoon garlic salt
6 slices enriched bread

Combine butter, mayonnaise and garlic salt. Remove crusts from bread and spread 1 teaspoon garlic butter on both sides of bread slices. Toast on an ungreased cookie sheet in a moderate oven (400° F.) for twelve minutes, or until crisp. Cut each slice into 6 equal size strips. Serve with salad or soup.

Yield: 3 dozen Garlic Bread Sticks.

ONION-CHEESE BREAD STICKS

½ cup grated processed cheese
4 teaspoons minced onion
4 slices toasted enriched or rye bread

Spread 2 tablespoons cheese and 1 teaspoon onion on each slice of toast. Toast on a cookie sheet in a moderate oven (350° F.) for twelve minutes, or until crisp. Cut each slice into 6 equal size strips. Serve with salad or soup.

Yield: 2 dozen Onion-Cheese Bread Sticks.

PARSLEY-CHEESE BREAD STICKS

2 tablespoons soft butter or margarine
1 tablespoon grated processed cheese
1 teaspoon minced parsley
½ teaspoon prepared mustard
6 slices toasted enriched bread

Combine butter, cheese, parsley and mustard. Remove crusts from toasted bread and spread 1 tablespoon cheese mixture on each slice of toast. Toast on a cookie sheet under low broiler heat for five minutes. Cut each slice into 6 equal size strips. Serve with salad or soup.

Yield: 3 dozen Parsley-Cheese Bread Sticks.

ONION CROUTONS

2 tablespoons corn oil
2 teaspoons minced onion
1 pint soft ½" bread cubes

Combine corn oil and onion. Add bread cubes and stir until each one is coated with the oil mixture. Spread on a cookie sheet and toast under low broiler heat for five minutes, or until golden brown. Serve with soup or as a snack.

Yield: 1 pint Onion Croutons.

WHOLE WHEAT CROUTONS

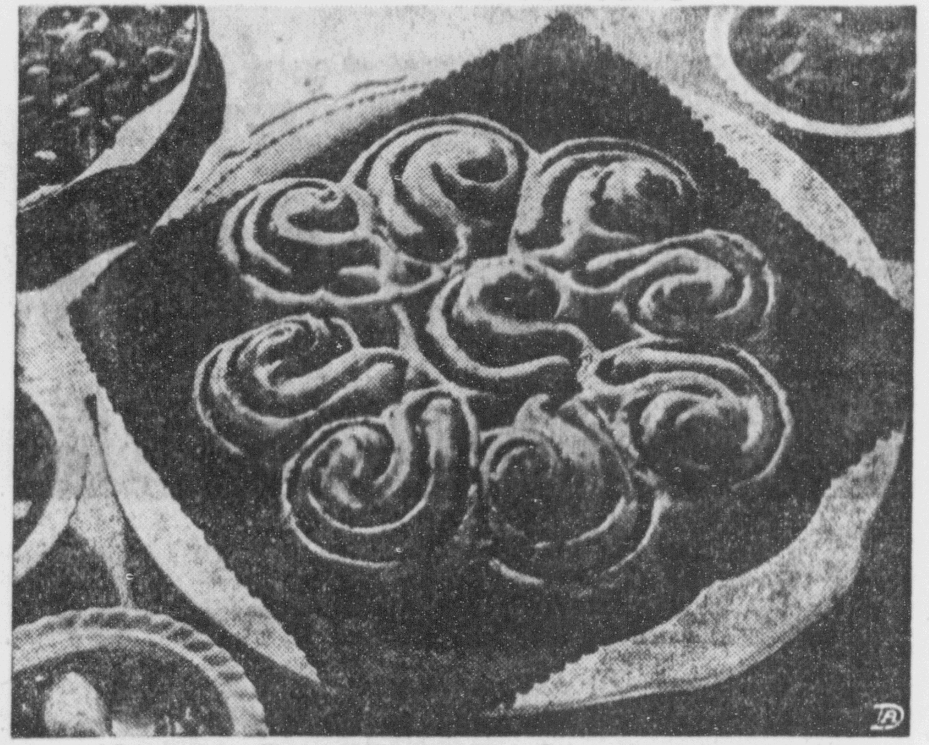
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 pint toasted ½" whole wheat bread cubes

Melt butter in a skillet. Add toasted bread cubes and stir until all sides are coated with butter. Serve with all varieties of soups.

Yield: 1 pint Whole Wheat Croutons.

Scientists have designed a machine which electrically measures the potency of a kiss.

Carrousel Coffee Cake



"It's a party!" the children will exclaim when you serve a a frosted Carrousel Coffee Cake that goes 'round and 'round like a merry-go-round.

Menu charmer for spring is a gay Carrousel Coffee Cake, a spicy-sweet bread that you can make at home by varying your cinnamon bun recipe.

This coffee cake has a party-going glamor at a penny-wise price. It can be made for as little as 30 cents. In addition, Carrousel Coffee Cake is a versatile bread or dessert. You'll like its feathery lightness and cinnamon flavor with stewed fresh rhubarb for luncheon dessert or with preserves and coffee for teatime or canasta refreshments. Any left over can be toasted for family breakfast.

Carrousel Coffee Cake is another of the delicious enriched breads that give your family lots of good nourishment—especially protein, essential B-vitamins, and food iron. These food values are important in building strong bodies, good red blood and in maintaining healthy skin, vitality, and general good health.

In fact, you'll find all breads made with enriched white flour have a way of making vitamins taste as good as calories!

CARROUSEL COFFEE CAKE

1 package yeast, compressed or dry
¼ cup lukewarm water
½ cup milk
¼ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons shortening
2½ cups sifted enriched flour (about)
1 egg
3 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
½ cup sugar mixed with
1½ teaspoons cinnamon
Confectioners' Sugar Icing

Soften yeast in lukewarm water. Scald milk. Add sugar, salt and shortening. Cool to lukewarm. Add flour to make a thick batter. Mix well. Add softened yeast and egg. Beat well. Add enough more flour to make a soft dough. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead until smooth and satiny. Place in greased bowl, cover and let rise in warm place until doubled (about 1½ hours). When light, punch down and let rest 10 minutes. Roll out in rectangular sheet 9 x 18-inches. Spread with butter or margarine and sprinkle with cinnamon sugar. Fold over in thirds making sheet 9 x 6-inches. Cut into strips 1 inch wide and 6 inches long. Roll one strip starting at narrow end. Stand on edge in center of greased baking sheet. Roll remaining strips in similar manner, rolling only half of strip, leaving about 2 inch end. Stand these half rolls on edge around center roll with unrolled end toward center. Let rise until doubled (about 45 minutes). Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) 20 to 25 minutes. When cool, frost with Confectioners' Sugar Icing.

Bread Sticks Croutons Add To Meals

Croutons and Bread Sticks make the fullest use of bread, and add materially to the good eating of the foods for which they are designed as accompaniments. Croutons not only add zest and nutritive value to soups, but also make interesting "snack" eating; Bread Sticks too serve as snacks, and are delicious with salads.

BACON-CHEESE BREAD STICKS

½ cup grated processed cheese
2 tablespoons chopped, cooked bacon
4 slices toasted enriched or rye bread

Spread 2 tablespoons cheese and 1½ teaspoons bacon on each slice of toast. Toast on a cookie sheet in a moderate oven (350° F.) for twelve minutes, or until crisp. Cut each slice into 6 equal size strips. Serve with salad or soup.

Yield: 2 dozen Bacon-Cheese Bread Sticks.

DILL BREAD STICKS

4 slices enriched bread
2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
1½ tablespoons dill seeds

Remove crust from bread and brush both sides of bread slices with butter. Cut each slice into 6 equal size strips. Roll strips in dill seeds. Toast on a cookie sheet in a moderate oven (350° F.) for twelve minutes, or until crisp. Serve with soup or as a snack.

Yield: 2 dozen Dill Bread Sticks.

HORSE-RADISH BREAD STICKS

2 tablespoons soft butter or margarine
1 tablespoon horse-radish
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
5 slices toasted enriched bread

Combine butter, horse-radish and mustard. Remove crusts from bread and spread 2 teaspoons horse-radish butter on each slice of toast. Place toast, spread side up, on an ungreased cookie sheet. Toast under low broiler heat for five minutes. Cut each slice into 6 equal strips. Serve with soup.

Yield: 2½ dozen Horse-radish Bread Sticks.

PARMESAN BREAD STICKS

1 egg, beaten
1 tablespoon melted butter or margarine
3 slices enriched bread
6 tablespoons finely grated Parmesan cheese.

Combine egg and butter. Remove crusts from bread and cut each slice into 6 equal size strips. Roll strips in Parmesan cheese. Toast on a cookie sheet in a moderate oven (350° F.) for fifteen minutes, or until crisp. Turn them so they will be golden brown on all sides. Serve with salad or soup.

Yield: 1½ dozen Parmesan Bread Sticks.

CARAWAY SEED BREAD STICKS

4 slices enriched bread
2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
2 tablespoons caraway seeds

Remove crusts from bread and brush both sides of bread slices with butter. Cut each slice into 6 equal size strips. Roll strips in caraway seeds. Toast on a cookie sheet in a moderate oven (350° F.) for twelve minutes, or until crisp. Serve with salad or soup.

Yield: 2 dozen Caraway Seed Bread Sticks.

GARLIC BREAD STICKS

2 tablespoons soft butter or margarine
2 tablespoons mayonnaise or salad dressing
1 teaspoon garlic salt
6 slices enriched bread

Combine butter, mayonnaise and garlic salt. Remove crusts from bread and spread 1 teaspoon garlic butter on both sides of bread slices. Toast on an ungreased cookie sheet in a moderate oven (400° F.) for twelve minutes, or until crisp. Cut each slice into 6 equal size strips. Serve with salad or soup.

Yield: 3 dozen Garlic Bread Sticks.

ONION-CHEESE BREAD STICKS

½ cup grated processed cheese
4 teaspoons minced onion
4 slices toasted enriched or rye bread

Spread 2 tablespoons cheese and 1 teaspoon onion on each slice of toast. Toast on a cookie sheet in a moderate oven (350° F.) for twelve minutes, or until crisp. Cut each slice into 6 equal size strips. Serve with salad or soup.

Yield: 2 dozen Onion-Cheese Bread Sticks.

PARSLEY-CHEESE BREAD STICKS

2 tablespoons soft butter or margarine
1 tablespoon grated processed cheese
1 teaspoon minced parsley
½ teaspoon prepared mustard
6 slices toasted enriched bread

Combine butter, cheese, parsley and mustard. Remove crusts from toasted bread and spread 1 tablespoon cheese mixture on each slice of toast. Toast on a cookie sheet under low broiler heat for five [illegible]. Cut each slice into 6 equal size strips. Serve with salad or soup.

Yield: 3 dozen Parsley-Cheese Bread Sticks.

ONION CROUTONS

2 tablespoons corn oil
2 teaspoons minced onion
1 pint soft ½" bread cubes

Combine corn oil and onion. Add bread cubes and stir until each one is coated with the oil mixture. Spread on a cookie sheet and toast under low broiler heat for five minutes, or until golden brown. Serve with soup or as a snack.

Yield: 1 pint Onion Croutons.

WHOLE WHEAT CROUTONS

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 pint toasted ½" whole wheat bread cubes

Melt butter in a skillet. Add toasted bread cubes and stir until all sides are coated with butter. Serve with all varieties of soups.

Yield: 1 pint Whole Wheat Croutons.

Scientists have designed a machine which electrically measures the potency of a kiss.

Carrousel Coffee Cake

"It's a party!" the children will exclaim when you serve a a frosted Carrousel Coffee Cake that goes 'round and 'round like a merry-go-round.

Menu charmer for spring is a gay Carrousel Coffee Cake, a spicy-sweet bread that you can make at home by varying your cinnamon bun recipe.

This coffee cake has a party-going glamor at a penny-wise price. It can be made for as little as 30 cents. In addition, Carrousel Coffee Cake is a versatile bread or dessert. You'll like its feathery lightness and cinnamon flavor with stewed fresh rhubarb for luncheon dessert or with preserves and coffee for teatime or canasta refreshments. Any left over can be toasted for family breakfast.

Carrousel Coffee Cake is another of the delicious enriched breads that give your family lots of good nourishment—especially protein, essential B-vitamins, and food iron. These food values are important in building strong bodies, good red blood and in maintaining healthy skin, vitality, and general good health.

In fact, you'll find all breads made with enriched white flour have a way of making vitamins taste as good as calories!

CARROUSEL COFFEE CAKE

1 package yeast, compressed or dry
¼ cup lukewarm water
½ cup milk
¼ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons shortening
2½ cups sifted enriched flour (about)
1 egg
3 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
½ cup sugar mixed with 1½ teaspoons cinnamon
Confectioners' Sugar Icing

Soften yeast in lukewarm water. Scald milk. Add sugar, salt and shortening. Cool to lukewarm. Add flour to make a thick batter. Mix well. Add softened yeast and egg. Beat well. Add enough more flour to make a soft dough. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead until smooth and satiny. Place in greased bowl, cover and let rise in warm place until doubled (about 1½ hours). When light, punch down and let rest 10 minutes. Roll out in rectangular sheet 9 x 18-inches. Spread with butter or margarine and sprinkle with cinnamon sugar. Fold over in thirds making sheet 9 x 6-inches. Cut into strips 1 inch wide and 6 inches long. Roll one strip starting at narrow end. Stand on edge in center of greased baking sheet. Roll remaining strips in similar manner, rolling only half of strip, leaving about 2 inch end. Stand these half rolls on edge around center roll with unrolled end toward center. Let rise until doubled (about 45 minutes). Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) 20 to 25 minutes. When cool, frost with Confectioners' Sugar Icing.

Makes 1 coffee cake.

ever before in Japan's history e the people been given this asure of freedom; never before e they had anybody to appeal never before have they had leader try to understand their blem. And while all aspects of occupation may not be perfect, cArthur's superb psychological ndling of the occupation so far counts for his having achieved so ch in a short time.

acArthur is not superhuman; makes just as many mistakes as next person. He has made many ring the last five years in Ja- n. But his batting average has en high, and his real genius ows in the psychological game of ess he has been playing with Japanese not only since the beginning of the occupation, but indeed since Pearl Harbor.

Concentrated Study

As far as MacArthur is concerned it is something more than "when in Rome live like the Romans." It is a concentrated study of the way the Oriental lives, works, and, above all, thinks. Yet privately he insists that "even after 50 years of living among these people I still do not understand them. But his whole career in the Orient makes that statement a contradiction in terms. He has studied the folklore of the people; read their military, political and economic histories. This constant study, plus his practical experience, has given MacArthur a greater understanding of the Oriental mind than possibly any other living American statesman or soldier.

He has made this study a life's work, and his every move seems to be predicated, not on what the Western world will think, as so many of his critics would have us believe, but rather on what the Oriental will think. For MacArthur has repeatedly pointed out that Occidentals should not compare their reasoning or interpretation of values with the Oriental and expect it to come out equal. The War Department fully realized this ability of MacArthur years ago.

It must be understood that much of MacArthur's actions and utterances have been for the Oriental mind only and not for consumption of the Western world. If we are to judge MacArthur's actions by Western standards, some moves must seem silly, pompous, and indeed stupid. For example, take the extremely controversial saying of the General's, "I shall return!"

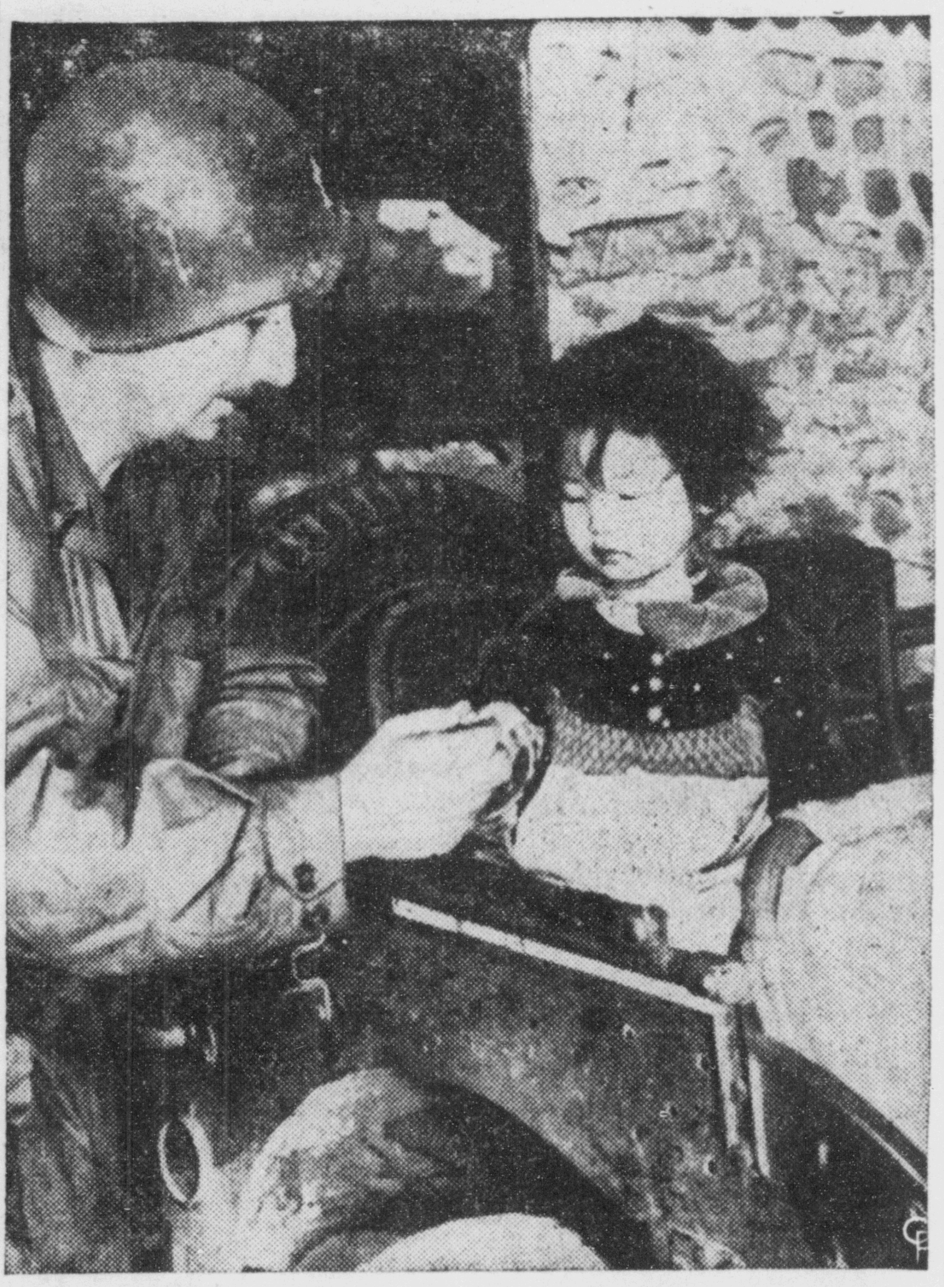
Psychological experts today say that that one phrase struck more terror into the hearts of the Japanese than any other single psychological warfare effort throughout the whole Pacific war. Over and over that one slogan was driven home. It was as nerve-racking to the Japanese as the European variety thought up by Mr. Churchill, the three dots and the long dash spelling out slowly V for victory, which was repeated in drumbeats every available moment on all radio bands of the BBC. Unfortunately, "I shall return" became synonymous with some of the less attractive sides fo MacArthur's extraordinary personality.



WHILE WAITING for medical corpsmen to arrive, Chaplain Capt. Wilkinson Alsworth, of Hattiesburg, Miss., comforts a tiny Korean orphan on a roadside north of Seoul. The child was among the refugees being sent southward to safety. (Defense Department Photo from International)

Word Was His Bond

That same slogan served as a rallying call to the Filipinos, Gen. Carolos P. Romulo, president of the United Nations, says that the phrase "served as a promise and command to the Philippine peoples. They knew his word was his bond."

All over the Pacific on Japanese-held islands the words "I shall return" mysteriously appeared on walls, doors — even on parade grounds—in white paint. Thousands of small white sheets of paper bearing just the three-word sentence began to appear in Japanese files, books and in supply cases. There is one story of how a Japanese unit in the Philippines broke open a case of shells in the middle of an action and on each shell was neatly stenciled the famous pronouncement. Air Force planes and submarines supplied thousands of match-boxes, playing cards, colored buttons, chewing gum and even money bearing the message to guerrilla fighters on Japanese-held islands. The Japanese command reluctantly admitted, with the ending of hostilities, that this war of nerves weakened morale among the troops; in fact it gave them a bad case of jitters.

MacArthur's greatest psychological gamble was the initial occupation of Japan made by only a handful of armed men. He felt that the Japanese would respect the surrender of the Emperor Hirohito. Yet it seemed like dropping out of the sky into a vast armed camp of 82,000,000 people, who for all anybody knew might have been preparing a hot reception. The decision to do this was MacArthur's and MacArthur's alone. True, he had been promised by the Japanese emissaries in Manila that there would be no opposition to the landing of troops. Yet it was still "one of the greatest gambles in history."

The occupation army in Japan at no time ever exceeded 200,000 men—except at the very beginning, when units which had been fighting through the Pacific converged on Japan at the end of the hostilities. This occupation force was to control some 82,000,000 people—a population of more than half that of the United States. MacArthur's shrewd handling of the Japanese people saved him another 1,800,000 men. He reasoned that control of Japan lay with control of the emperor and the imperial institution. Without the emperor he once said "we would have needed a force of two million men."

MacArthur's own psychological warfare experts had held during the war that one of the first acts of the occupation was that Hirohito should be immediately treated as a war criminal.

After MacArthur landed in Japan he didn't see it quite that way; he made no direct move to oust Hirohito. This negative procedure ran counter to the desires of the Chinese, Australians, New Zealanders, and of course the Russians. They frankly wanted the Emperor out and named a war criminal. MacArthur said no.

His reasoning went something like this: Let's remove all the trappings surrounding the Emperor and the imperial institution such as State Shintoism and the thraldom of militarists such as Konoye, Tojo, et al.; let's prove to the Japanese people that he is not a god, that he is not divine, and then let's see just what sort of emperor he would make if given the reins. MacArthur warned, however: "Let's not martyrize the Emperor; in their good time the Japanese will whittle him down to size."

Emperor Sweat It Out

It worked. For months, as the axe swept closer to Hirohito, as one top adviser after another was grabbed and tried as a war criminal, MacArthur let the Emperor sweat it out, wondering all the time if he wouldn't be next. These moves, plus the issuing of MacArthur's "Four Freedoms" directive turned the pitiless spotlight of publicity on the imperial institution. For the first time the once blindly obedient millions of Japanese began to question Hirohito's authority, his descent, his supposed divinity.

His greatest stroke occurred on January 1, 1946. The Chaplinesque Hirohito, who claimed descent unbroken for ages from Japan's feudal gods, climbed shakily on to the podium in the Japanese Diet and read his New Year's message to the Japanese people in which he calmly told them that he was not divine and, what was more, he never had been. Furthermore, his subjects were told flatly that they were not superior to other races nor were they fated "to bring the eight corners of the world under one roof"—a Japanese roof. Hirohito did not think of all this himself; neither did his advisers. The speech, it is suspected, was written at MacArthur's headquarters by none other than the general himself.

MacARTHUR —MAN OF ACTION

Another example of Macthur's understanding of the Oriental mind was his commanding the Emperor to come before him. If ever an emperor lost face before his people, Hirohito did at this time. Just what the Japanese expected Hirohito to do is not quite clear. In fact, their conception of the occupation is not clear. They met the troops with cameras and great beaming welcomes. They soon found out that the occupation under MacArthur was not going to be a picnic. And the first person who came to this realization was Hirohito.

Wearing an ancient morning suit, silk topper and striped pants, Hirohito and his chief adviser (at that time the Marquis Kido, who a few days later was led off to a cold cell as a war criminal) stepped out of an early vintage Daimler to pay their respects to MacArthur.

They were escorted into the embassy. As they walked through the door, the Marquis Kido was politely asked to step into an anteroom. For one awful moment Hirohito realized that he was alone. Kido couldn't believe that anybody would treat the Emperor of Japan in such a manner. He tried to protest. Everybody was just oh, so polite. "The Supreme Commander wishes to talk to the Emperor alone," Kido was told. So the man behind the throne cooled his heels while timorous, shabby Hirohito walked with uncertain steps down the hall into the study. Never before had he been without an adviser; never before had he been asked to do any real thinking for himself. Always it had been Kido or some other stooge who had answered for him with "The Emperor feels that. . ." or "The Emperor, after great consideration. . ." Nobody had ever left him alone before.

Some idea of the terror which gripped this emperor can best be shown by his puny political and childlike effort at public relations which he later tried on Robert Patterson. Patterson, then Secretary of War, arrived in Japan sometime later. For some strange reason Hirohito—whose fate still hung in the balance, so he thought—decided that Patterson might be able to save him, or at least influence those in authority to have mercy on him. One night as Patterson was dining with MacArthur, a messenger left a parcel for Mr. Patterson. It was a solid-gold cigaret case with an inscription. Patterson sent it back—immediately. There was no balm to Hirohito's troubled mind here.

In the early months the Japanese, born imitators that they are, tried hard to be more American than the Americans. Hirohito was no exception. Prompted by his old guard, who urged him to seek a good press, correspondents were invited to a duck hunt in the Imperial Palace grounds. This failed miserably, too, for the correspondents were treated to the most sumptuous meal—everything from caviar to "brandied guinea hen in aspic"—they had ever seen in Japan or elsewhere. Outside the palace walls, three-quarters of Tokyo's population was starving.

Took A Long Time

It took Hirohito and his ilk a long time to learn; a long time to think for themselves without the constant prodding of MacArthur. The army of occupation was wooed with parties and entertainment of every sort. This "kill with kindness" plan included such items as "Friendship Houses" with assembly-line staging. Prostitution operated 24 hours out of the 24. MacArthur would have none of that. Gradually it dawned on the Japanese promoters of this sort of thing that they had better toe the line or else. MacArthur was swift and harsh where he had to be, but he always followed one theory: The Japanese people in good time will whittle down not only Hirohito but also the diehards.

Today in the new Japan, the people are their own masters, no longer dominated by a rubber-stamp government. Of course, there is still a long way to go. The Japanese have still to produce a postwar leader, but Hirohito is now trying to be an emperor. His people respect him, they are loyal to him. There it ends. He is simply a figurehead. This insignificant little man now kisses babies, opens flower shows, and acts like a good Tammany Hall politician. Indeed it is not surprising nowadays to find him wading in the surf, his trousers rolled above his knees—still wearing the fedora—playing with the children on the beach. He still collects mosses and lichens; he still writes fantastic poetry. Perhaps this little item is significant of the trend of events in Japan. Around Hirohito's palace there is a well-stocked moat containing mostly carp. These have always been the Emperor's private property and only by royal decree were special friends of his allowed to fish for the carp, which, incidentally, were considered "sacred." It is actually on record that several Japanese many years ago were executed for daring to cast a line into the waters. Today Japan's Joe Doakes fish the moat. Hirohito, too, was tied by the militarists. MacArthur once said: "Hirohito was so controlled by the militarists that he nearly had to get permission to go to the bathroom." Times have changed.

It would seem on the face of it that the Korean war might have been the Kremlin's chance to call on Japan's Communists and the thousands of Soviet-indoctrinated Japanese prisoners of war, to strike while MacArthur's hands were tied. General MacArthur was gambling again; he believed in the Japanese people. And it would appear that they believed in him.

NEXT: MacArthur and the Russians.

MacARTHUR —MAN OF ACTION

jects were told flatly that they were not superior to other races nor were they fated "to bring the eight corners of the world under one roof"—a Japanese roof. Hirohito did not think of all this himself; neither did his advisers. The speech, it is suspected, was written at MacArthur's headquarters by none other than the general himself.

Another example of Macthur's understanding of the Oriental mind was his commanding the Emperor to come before him. If ever an emperor lost face before his people, Hirohito did at this time. Just what the Japanese expected Hirohito to do is not quite clear. In fact, their conception of the occupation is not clear. They met the troops with cameras and great beaming welcomes. They soon found out that the occupation under MacArthur was not going to be a picnic. And the first person who came to this realization was Hirohito.

Wearing an ancient morning suit, silk topper and striped pants, Hirohito and his chief adviser (at that time the Marquis Kido, who a few days later was led off to a cold cell as a war criminal) stepped out of an early vintage Daimler to pay their respects to MacArthur.

They were escorted into the embassy. As they walked through the door, the Marquis Kido was politely asked to step into an anteroom. For one awful moment Hirohito realized that he was alone. Kido couldn't believe that anybody would treat the Emperor of Japan in such a manner. He tried to protest. Everybody was just oh, so polite. "The Supreme Commander wishes to talk to the Emperor alone," Kido was told. So the man behind the throne cooled his heels while timorous, shabby Hirohito walked with uncertain steps down the hall into the study. Never before had he been without an adviser; never before had he been asked to do any real thinking for himself. Always it had been Kido or some other stooge who had answered for him with "The Emperor feels that. . ." or "The Emperor, after great consideration. . ." Nobody had ever left him alone before.

Some idea of the terror which gripped this emperor can best be shown by his puny political and childlike effort at public relations which he later tried on Robert Patterson. Patterson, then Secretary of War, arrived in Japan sometime later. For some strange reason Hirohito—whose fate still hung in the balance, so he thought—decided that Patterson might be able to save him, or at least influence those in authority to have mercy on him. One night as Patterson was dining with MacArthur, a messenger left a parcel for Mr. Patterson. It was a solid-gold cigaret case with an inscription. Patterson sent it back—immediately. There was no balm to Hirohito's troubled mind here.

In the early months the Japanese, born imitators that they are, tried hard to be more American than the Americans. Hirohito was no exception. Prompted by his old guard, who urged him to seek a good press, correspondents were invited to a duck hunt in the Imperial Palace grounds. This failed miserably, too, for the correspondents were treated to the most sumptuous meal—everything from caviar to "brandied guinea hen in aspic"—they had ever seen in Japan or elsewhere. Outside the palace walls, three-quarters of Tokyo's population was starving.

Took A Long Time

It took Hirohito and his ilk a long time to learn; a long time to think for themselves without the constant prodding of MacArthur. The army of occupation was wooed with parties and entertainment of every sort. This "kill with kindness" plan included such items as "Friendship Houses" with assembly-line staging. Prostitution operated 24 hours out of the 24. MacArthur would have none of that. Gradually it dawned on the Japanese promoters of this sort of thing that they had better toe the line or else. MacArthur was swift and harsh where he had to be, but he always followed one theory: The Japanese people in good time will whittle down not only Hirohito but also the diehards.

Today in the new Japan, the people are their own masters, no longer dominated by a rubber-stamp government. Of course, there is still a long way to go. The Japanese have still to produce a post-war leader, but Hirohito is now trying to be an emperor. His people respect him, they are loyal to him. There it ends. He is simply a figurehead. This insignificant little man now kisses babies, opens flower shows, and acts like a good Tammany Hall politician. Indeed it is not surprising nowadays to find him wading in the surf, his trousers rolled above his knees—still wearing the fedora—playing with the children on the beach. He still collects mosses and lichens; he still writes fantastic poetry. Perhaps this little item is significant of the trend of events in Japan. Around Hirohito's palace there is a well-stocked moat containing mostly carp. These have always been the Emperor's private property and only by royal decree were special friends of his allowed to fish for the carp, which, incidentally, were considered "sacred." It is actually on record that several Japanese many years ago were executed for daring to cast a line into the waters. Today Japan's Joe Doakes fish the moat. Hirohito, too, was tied by the militarists. MacArthur once said: "Hirohito was so controlled by the militarists that he nearly had to get permission to go to the bathroom." Times have changed.

It would seem on the face of it that the Korean war might have been the Kremlin's chance to call on Japan's Communists and the thousands of Soviet-indoctrinated Japanese prisoners of war, to strike while MacArthur's hands were tied. General MacArthur was gambling again; he believed in the Japanese people. And it would appear that they believed in him.

NEXT: MacArthur and the Russians.

Va. Branch WSWS Has Election

Officers were elected and installed at the final session of the fifth annual convention of the Virginia Branch of the Women's Society of World Service held Tuesday afternoon, Wednesday and yesterday morning, in Bethany Evangelical United Brethren Church. Rev. Floyd Fulk, conference superintendent, officiated at the installation.

Mrs. J. E. Oliver, Winchester, Va., was elected president. Mrs. Oliver resided here about nine years, when her husband served as pastor of Bethany United Brethren Church about 16 years ago. She is also a past president of the Cumberland Council of Church Women, and is a frequent visitor here.

Other officers are Mrs. James Swain, Harrisonburg, Va., first vice president; Mrs. Howard Fulk Singersglenn, Va., second vice president; Mrs. Robert Craghead, Roanoke, Va., recording secretary; Mrs. George Elliott, Martinsburg W. Va., treasurer.

Secretaries are Mrs. J. Paul Link, Stanton, Va., Christian Social Relations; Mrs. Glenn Smith, Keyser, Missionary Education; and Miss Jeanette Tedrick, Reliance, Va., daughter of Rev. Luther Tedrick, former Cumberlander, Young Peoples Work.

Mrs. L. G. Bridgers, Westernport, served as president for the past 11 years. Mrs. J. W. Linaburg, city, reported 84 registered delegates and 80 visitors attended. The branch includes 44 societies.

Guest speakers at the various sessions were Rev. and Mrs. Leslie O. Shirley, West Africa Mission; Rev. Frederick W. Brandauer, Central China Mission; Mrs. Leona Hansen, secretary of Missionary Education for Children and Youth from Dayton, Ohio; and Miss Gertrud Kuechklich, Germany, a student in Albright College, who told of their work.

Entertainment included a playlet by the Youth Fellowship of the Local Church; and one by the Keyser group.

INSTALLED AS BRANCH OFFICERS—New officers of the Virginia Branch of the Women's Society of World Service were installed yesterday. They are left to right, Mrs. J. Paul Link, Mrs. George Elliott, Mrs. Howard Fulk, Mrs. J. W. Lineburg, Mrs. L. G. Bridgers, Mrs. J. E. Oliver, Mrs. James Swain, Mrs. Robert Craghead, Mrs. Glen Smith and Miss Jeanette Tedrick.

Jr., High Groups To Give Concert

The Spring concert of Allegany Junior High School will be presented at 8 o'clock tonight in observance of National Music Week.

Opening the program, the Junior Band, with Lua Syckes, conductor, will play, "Corinthian Overture," "Bolero Non," "Plantation Echoes," and "Crestwood March." The Treble Boys Glee Club, conducted by Miss Dorothy Willison, will sing, "John Peel," Old English; "Beautiful Dreamer," "O Sole Mio," and "Camptown Races."

Also under the direction of Miss Willison, the Treble Clef Club will present, "Lullaby," "Nearest and Dearest," "Over the Rainbow," and "Orchestra Song." The Junior Boys Octet will sing, "Barber Shop Medleys." Closing the first part of the program the Junior Choral Club with Miss Joyce Bestwick will sing, "In the Boat," "Robin in the Rain," and "Jaunting to the Fair."

Following intermission, the Junior Orchestra, Lua Syckes conductor will play, "Stouthearted Men," "Amaryllis," and "Graduation Overture."

The Junior Gleemen, Miss Bestwick, conducting, will sing, "Savior of All We Adore Thee," "An Eventide Medley," "Street Urchin Song," and "Your Land and My Land." The Junior Choir, also directed by Miss Bestwick, will sing, "All in the April Evening," "Ho La Le," "Wooden Shoes," and "Dry Bones." Concluding the evening, "America, My Wonderous Land," will be sung by the combined vocal groups with Miss Bestwick, conductor.

A word to the people of Cumberland

What's New York got that Cumberland hasn't got?

The grass always looks greener on the other side of the fence. And we people who live in Cumberland have a bad habit of selling our city short.

Take this business of shopping. How many times have you gone off on a trip and bought yourself a dress in some exclusive shop . . . only to come home and see the same dress big as life right in a Cumberland store window? And often for less money.

Well, lady, you're not the first one that's happened to. And it happens to lots of Cumberland men too. They go off to Pittsburgh or Baltimore or New York and come home loaded up with things they could have bought right here in town.

Our Cumberland merchants have everything! Hot dogs to hot rods . . . diamonds to diapers . . . kiddie kars to convertibles . . . champagne to milk shakes . . . they're yours! They're here! Right in your favorite Cumberland store!

So let's quit selling Cumberland short! Let's stop thinking we've got to go out of town to buy.

Do your shopping right here in Cumberland! Give our local merchants your business.

Remember, they're our fellow citizens . . . the people that make our town. They're the ones who work with you on charity drives; they support those drives . . . they help to make Cumberland a better place to live in. They're our friends, our next door neighbors.

We've got fine stores here in Cumberland; and they will be still finer if we'll support them. And this support will create employment and prosperity in our city.

Buy in our own home town . . . from our own home merchants . . . keep Cumberland growing!

Substance Developed By Germans May Save Lives After Atom Blast

WASHINGTON (INS)—American medical scientists report that a synthetic substance developed by the Germans in World War II may play a top role in saving lives after an atomic bomb blast.

The clear, water-like appearing substance, known as PVP-macrose is developed by researchers as a "blood expander" which if made generally available may virtually do away with the need for costly blood banks in another World War.

PVP-macrose is now being made in limited quantity by Schenley Laboratories, Inc., of Lawrenceburg, Ind. Further research with the material is being conducted under the auspices of the National Research Council and some of the nation's leading medical experts on shock.

A spokesman for the new "blood expander," Dr. Charles E. Dutchess, claimed that if five atomic bombs of the Hiroshima type were dropped simultaneonsly on an equal number of American cities as much as 20,000,000 pints of blood, plasma or blood expanders would be needed immediately.

He contrasted this need with the fact that a total of only 13 million pints of whole blood were collected during the entire period of World War II.

The vice president and medical director of the laboratories said that the cost of collecting and making whole blood available in an atomic disaster would run as much as 15 dollars a pint.

While emphasizing that "there is no substitute for blood," scientists speaking for the new "expander" claim that it is a superior substitute for whole blood or plasma in point of ease of use and availability.

The new material, which is completely synthetic and requires no refrigeration, is available for immediate use.

Dutchess said the Germans, who used the substance under the name of "periston" described its results as "dramatic."

Dutchess said the material proved so satisfactory to the Germans both for civilian and military use that they made no attempt to maintain bloodbanks such as the U.S. operated during the war.

The substance under its new name has not been given complete approval by the Federal Food and Drug Administration.

More than 1,950 people were lynched in the United States between 1900 and 1948.

Executions — by burning and beheading—of alleged witches began in England in 1541.

Friend Of Mother's Day Founder Struggles To Extend Observance

PHILADELPHIA, May 10 (INS)—Millions of persons throughout the world officially will remember their mothers on Sunday, because of the devotion of a spinster daughter.

There will be kisses and gifts for the living — and sentinels at gravesides.

American Legion bugles will play softly over the grave of Miss Anna Jarvis in tribute to the daughter who founded Mother's Day. There also will be a tribute to Miss Maude O. Hickman, her friend who has struggled to further the international observance after a promise to Miss Jarvis who died in poverty and blindness in 1948.

The mother of Miss Jarvis, Anna Reeves Jarvis, died in 1906. Her daughter, an insurance company employe who later was to deplore the "commercialization" of Mother's Day, conceived the idea of a national observance after a memorial service for her mother.

Miss Hickman attended that service and today still sends letters to influential leaders to further the wishes of Miss Jarvis, whom she terms "one of God's angels."

"Will you write the letters?" Miss Jarvis asked Miss Hickman when Miss Jarvis was dying. "I am blind. Someone must carry on."

"Don't worry," said Miss Hickman, "I will attend to it."

Today Mother's Day is observed in 46 nations outside the United States. As a result of Miss Jarvis' work, Philadelphia observed the second Sunday in May as Mother's Day as early as 1908. England began to observe the day as early as 1913.

In the United States, Miss Hickman said, only Gov. James F. Byrnes of South Carolina has refused an official proclamation for Mother's Day. He has said that if he issued proclamations in response to all requests, such proclamations soon would be meaningless.

Miss Hickman has told him with tact that President Woodrow Wilson formally proclaimed the day in 1912. Gov. Byrnes did not reply to that message and Miss Hickman says she is "a bit miffed."

The woman who is carrying on Miss Jarvis' work said:

"I never dreamed I would spend the rest of my life furthering this work. But I go on."

She pointed at her cane and said she is worried about what will happen after she dies. "I am not as active as I used to be," she said, and added:

"The best way to honor your mother is to live a good life — with honor, without shame. Every human being is a living memorial to mother."

The first pure food law in this country was passed by Michigan in 1895.

There are more motion picture theaters in Texas than in any other state.

Early light bulbs were so fragile that they were often shipped, wrapped in cotton, in wooden boxes suspended on spiral springs.

BRIDGE OVER GEORGE'S CREEK AT BROPHYTOWN—Shown above is a swinging bridge which spans George's Creek at Brophytwon, Md., near Westernport. It was presumed by county officials who investigated the drowning of three-year-old William Michael Bowley on Tuesday afternoon that the child fell from the bridge into the water. Neighbors think that since many large rocks are located in the creek below the bridge it would have been impossible for the child to have fallen and floated downstream where he was found by a searching party. About 100 school children cross the span daily to catch their bus to nearby classrooms.

Brophytown Swinging Bridge Gets Considerable Comment

WESTERNPORT — A swinging bridge which spans George's Creek at Brophytown has received much comment since a drowning occurred near there last Tuesday.

Three-year-old William Michael Bowley was found downstream from the bridge and county officials who investigated the mishap think possibly the child fell from the bridge.

Neighbors reason that large rocks located just below the bridge would have prevented the child from being carried downstream.

The wooden span which is about 50 or 60 feet in length and about three feet wide is situated 10 feet above the water, and is used daily by school children and residents of the community.

Paul O'Neil, a bus driver who resides in Brophytown, said that he transports about 100 children each day to Hammond Street School and Bruce High School, Westernport. The only protection from falling from the bridge is cables used to support the structure.

Several days ago O'Neil replaced some broken boards in the flooring. The original bridge was built by J. S. Brophy, owner of the George's Creek Coal Company, but it was washed away by the 1936 flood. Jesse Wolfe and Charles Habreter built the present bridge with lumber and material furnished by residents of Brophytown. Maintenance on the structure is kept up by the community.

Actually the bridge is used as a "short cut" by residents and a more stable bridge used by vehicles and pedestrians is located at the other end of the community. In 1946 a resident of Brophytown fell from the span when part of it collapsed. He was uninjured. The water is about three feet deep directly under the span and measures about 40 feet in width.

Apple Bloom Pollenized

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., May 10 (AP)—Apple bloom pollenization has been completed here "under generally favorable conditions," according to orchardists.

The process was completed before a series of rains which may have washed the pollen away.

Growers say the peak bloom period of the Appalachian Belt was passed May 3.

The bloom was reported heavy, but the effects of the pollenization have not yet appeared.

One adverse angle of the pollenizing, some growers felt, was the shortage of bees to carry the pollen. Spraying has been started in some areas.

Growers said there was no material damage to apple and peach stock in the Maryland-West Virginia - Pennsylvania-Upper Virginia area.

Sincell To Speak At Potomac State Press Banquet

Pasquino Staff Will be Named

KEYSER, W. Va.—Robert Benjamin Sincell, former student editor of Potomac State School's newspaper, will be guest speaker at the staff's annual Press Banquet, May 22 at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club, Cumberland.

Sincell, advertising manager of the Oakland (Md.) Republican, served as editor of the college newspaper here in 1947-48. A graduate of Oakland High School, he served with the Navy in the Pacific theater prior to enrolling at Potomac State.

Following his graduation here, he entered West Virginia University's School of Journalism, graduating in June 1950. During his senior year he served as business manager of the Daily Athenaeum and was a member of the Journaliers and the Press Club.

The speaker will bring his wife, the former Hannah G. Wagoner, Springfield, with him. He met her while they were attending Potomac State School. They have a young son.

Sincell's father, Donald R. Sincell, managing editor of the Oakland Republican, was speaker at the Press Banquet at Potomac State in 1947.

Melvin McKenzie, circulation manager of Pasquino and a sophomore at State, will serve as toastmaster. Carl F. Davis, businesss manager, will be in charge of transportation.

President and Mrs. E. E. Church and Dean and Mrs. K. S. McKee will be guests.

Dr. Elizabeth A. Atwater, faculty adviser, will announce the chief Pasquino staff positions for the coming year at the banquet.

Contest Scheduled

KEYSER, W. Va.—The annual Mineral County Typewriting Contest for classes in the county public schools, will be held Saturday in the Keyser High School.

Two students will be selected from the classes of each school teaching typing, representing the Typing I and II classes in each. The contest will be staged in the typing room starting at 1:15 p. m., DST.

Some appropriate and valuable prizes have been donated by merchants in the county and the typewriter companies in Cumberland, to be awarded winners in the various sections of the contest.

Many Mineral County Teachers Appointed

KEYSER, W. Va.—Many teachers for the 1951-52 school year have been appointed by the Mineral County Board of Education.

However, the position of principal of Keyser High School and a number of other posts will be filled by the board later. The board has let it be known that R. R. Lowe will not be reappointed principal of Keyser High School.

County Superintendent H. L. Idleman said that this post probably will be filled at the regular meeting in June. He added that there is a surplus of teachers this year, with qualified certificates, for the first time in a long period.

AHS-Fort Hill Clash Today For 1st Place In City Race

Campobello Is Scene, Beall To Seek 7th In Row Over Bruce

Allegany and Fort Hill will battle it out today for first place in the annual triangular race for the city scholastic baseball championship at 4 p. m. at Campobello.

It will be the first meeting of the city rivals this season. The Campers hold a 6-2 decision over LaSalle while the Sentinels turned back the Explorers to the tune of 9-4.

AHS has a 3-2 record in the Bi-State Conference while Fort Hill's is 2-4.

Beck or Lewis will be on the firing line for Fort Hill with Ronnie Sisk slated to throw 'em platward for the Campers.

Beall High will go after its 7th straight Bi-State win when it plays host to Bruce of Westernport today at 4 p. m. in Westernport.

Other conference games are LaSalle at Barton and Hyndman at Central.

In the Potomac Valley Conference, Keyser winds up its campaign by battling Romney High's Pioneers at Romney. The Hampshire countians hold a 3-1 win over KHS.

Circleville is host to Petersburg's Vikings in another PVC test.

BROOKLYN WINS, 6-1

Brooklyn, May 10 (AP)—Don Newcombe went the route and won his first game in three weeks today as the Brooklyn Dodgers whipped the Chicago Cubs, 6-1, to capture the rubber of their three-game series.

The giant negro righthander allowed seven hits. He fanned five and walked two.

Newcombe's teammates supported him with an 11-hit barrage against Cal McLish and Bob Kelly. Gil Hodges' ninth home run of the season, climaxing a three-run rally against loser McLish in the fifth, was the most telling blow. Duke Snider, with three runs batted in via a single and long fly, also contributed to the victory.

The Dodgers' victory in conjunction with the Cardinals' loss to the Giants moved Brooklyn into second place, a game behind the league-leading Boston Braves. Box:

This is the third year for the circuit, officers of which are Richard Deremer, president; Edward Rider, vice president; John Haines, secretary, and Donald Kenny, Treasurer.

The league will also play Thursday games at 6 p. m.

Opening contests billed for Sunday are: Fort Ashby Vets at Fort Ashby Lions, Ridgeley Legion at Turn Around and Short Gap at Wiley Ford.

First Methodist, Cresaptown And St. Luke Victors

St. Luke's Lutheran defeated Calvary Methodist of Ridgeley, 10-6, First Methodist topped United Brethren, 10-3, and Cresaptown Methodist downed First Presbyterian, 11-5, in Central YMCA Sunday School Softball League games played yesterday.

Bob Smith had a perfect day at the plate for St. Luke's with three hits in three trips—two doubles and a single. Bradley hit two homers for Calvary.

Blair, Stafford and Robinette shared six of First Methodist's nine bingles while McGregor hit safely three times for U. B.

Cresaptown rapped five home runs, two by Hedrick and one each by Toey, Turner and Breedlove. The scores:

Lavelli Rejected For Fourth Time

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 10 (AP)—Tony Lavelli, holder of Yale's all-time scoring record in basketball and probably close to the holder of the national record for draft examinations—is on his way back to Rio de Janiero, rejected for the fourth time.

For his latest rejection he travelled nearly 5,000 miles-Rio to New Haven-and now he's winging his way south again.

His latest rejection came yesterday. He'll rejoin the College All-Stars of which he is player-coach at Sao Paulo, about 300 miles south of Rio.

Ferrier Leads In Greenbrier Open Tourney

Posts 6-Under-Par 64 For Opening Round

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., May 10 (AP)—Jim Ferrier "didn't feel he was hitting the ball well" today but the white pellet went rolling into the cups for five birdies on the last nine holes to give the San Franciscan the first-round lead in the Greenbrier Open .

Ferrier, second leading money winner on the 1951 pro circuit with $11,254 to his credit, scorched the back nine of the first 18 holes to post a six-under par 64. The course record of 62 is held by Sam Snead, the host pro, who was tied for third with George Fazio of Conshohocken, Pa., and Tony Penna of Cincinnati at 67 each.

Bob Hamilton of Evansville was on the heels of Ferrier with a 65.

Four strokes away from the leader in fourth position were Ben Hogan, the defending titleholder, Dutch Harrison, and Henry Picard.

The scores for 30 pros in the first round of the 72-hole, four-day push ranged up to 75 for Skee Riegel, second in the last Masters to Hogan.

Hogan ripped off a 259, 21 under par to win last year's Greenbrier.

The winning pro at the end of Sunday's round will bank $1,500. In all, a total of $10,000 will be distributed. On Saturday and Sunday, the pros will be joined by amateurs for a pro-amateur contest.

First round leaders were:

Jim Ferrier, 33-31—64
Bob Hamilton, 33-32—65
Toney Penna, 34-33—67
Sam Snead, 32-35—67

GIANTS EDGE CARDS

NEW YORK, May 10 (INS)—The New York Giants scored three runs in the first two innings off rookie Tom Poholsky today and went on to beat the St. Louis Cardinals, 3 to 2, before 6,530 fans at the Polo Grounds.

It was the fourth win in a row for the rebounding Giants who now have copped nine of their last eleven games.

Roger Bowman and Dave Koslo divided the pitching chores for the Giants, allowing the flu-stricken Redbirds seven hits. Box:

BLACKWELL IS VICTOR

BOSTON, May 10 (AP)—Lathe-like Ewell Blackwell snapped a three-game losing streak for the lowly Cincinnati Reds today with an effective seven-hit pitching performance that gave him a 4-1 decision over the top-place Boston Braves.

Blackwell, usually a soft touch for the Tribesmen in their own wigwam, missed a shutout because of an eighth inning miscue by third baseman Grady Hatton.

The latter let an Earl Torgeson pop fly drop for two bases and Sig Gordon followed with a single to left field.

The Reds pounded starter Johnny Sain for all of their runs and nine of their 11 hits before he was yanked for a pinch-hitter in the seventh. Box:

The B. P. O. Elks took the measure of the Outdoor Club, 4-1, and the Cumberland Loyal Order of Moose won over the Knights of Columbus, 4-2, in Rocking Chair Softball League games staged yesterday.

Frank Williams was the hero in the Moose team's victory as he slammed a two-run homer to break a 2-2 deadlock in the 6th frame. A sensational catch by Walt Davis in short field when two Knights aboard in the 6th was the fielding gem Williams and Bob Wade of the Moose and Jim Browning and Benny LaNeve of the K. of C. had two hits each.

The Elks won their game with O.D.C. by scoring all their runs in the first inning on five hits, including a homer by Junior Hardy.

Hardy also got a double while Bruce Mackey and Bill Underdonk had a two-bagger and single each.

The Elks executed three double plays in the first three innings. Hardy started two of the twin killings and handled eight chances at short in flawless style.

Jones had two singles for O.D.C., which scored its lone run in the 7th on two singles and an overthrow at first base.

The Eagles are reported to have defeated the Amvets 9-3. No details were available. Scores:

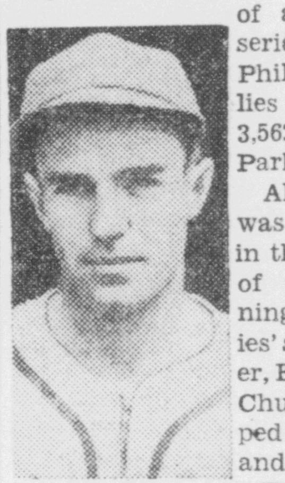
Dickson Hurls Four-Hitter, Blanks Phils

Pittsburgh Defeats Bubba Church, 2-0

PHILADELPHIA, May 10—Murray Dickson pitched a four-hit shutout today as the surprising Pittsburgh Pirates won the rubber game of a three game series from the Philadelphia Phillies 2 to 0 before 3,562 at Shibe Park.



Murry Dickson

All the scoring was wrapped up in the Pirates' half of the sixth inning when Phillies' starting pitcher, Emory (Bubba) Church was rapped for three hits and two runs.

Ted Beard started the sixth with a single and scored on a right field double by George Metkovich. Metkovich was out at third trying to stretch the hit.

Gus Bell accounted for the other run with a mighty blast over the right center field scorboard for his third home run of the season.

Dickson hurled a masterful game, only five balls being hit out of the infield. First sacker Ralph Kiner was credited with 18 putouts as Dickson kept the National League champions hitting into the ground to record his fourth victory against one defeat. It was the second loss for Church who has won two.

The Phillies lost more than the ball game. The Pirates' Wally Westlake smacked into Catcher Del Wilber in a play at the plate. Wilber was knocked unconscious, suffered a deep cut under his right eye and across the nose. Several stitches were required to close the cut under the eye.

Third string catcher Ken Silvestri took over. First string catcher Andy Seminick is still resting at home after being hit in the head by a pitched ball against St. Louis. Box:

All Tracks Expected To Abide By Ruling Made In Maryland

Baltimorean Accused Of Betting Against Horse He Was Riding

BALTIMORE, May 10 (AP) — Jockey Robert J. Martin today was banned from racing for 10 years for betting against the horse he was riding.

The Maryland Racing Commission handed down the order after an all-day session. Although the ban covers only Maryland tracks, all other tracks by custom abide by such rulings.

Martin, 23-year-old Baltimorean, was accused specifically of betting $300 on Shine On in the first race at Laurel April 10. Martin was up on Librab. Shine On came in third, and Martin's mount finished second.

Set Down 26 Times

Martin, who has been set down 26 times for various infractions since he started racing six years ago, denied the charge.

Commission Chairman H. Courtenay Jenifer asked the jockey who would have won the race if Shine On and Librab were going for the wire and the actual winner, In-faith, were running third.

The little jockey replied he wouldn't have "pulled" his horse.

One of the key witnesses at the hearing was an agent of the Thoroughbred Racing and Protective Bureau, John F. Loome. He testified he overheard Martin bet against his mount on the day of the race.

Loome said the wager was telephoned from a Baltimore hotel, where he occupied a room next to Martin's.

The agent said he heard Martin place phone calls to National 5460 in Washington and to phone number 333 in Bellevernon, Pa.

He gave the details of the Pennsylvania call, only, saying he determined by subsequent investigation that the man Martin talked to at that number was Dominick Anzalone.

Loome identified Anzalone as a gambler and fruit dealer "with a criminal record." He said Anzalone was the subject of a magazine (Collier's) article Nov. 11, 1950, entitled "Something Is Rotten In Pennsylvania."

Wanted To Bet $300

Loome testified he heard Martin say over the telephone, "I want to bet $300 on Shine On in the first race.

"No, I don't ride him, but I've got a good tip on him."

Loome said Martin also wanted a bet of $300 on "Teddie's Imp" in the seventh. Later testimony indicated that Shine On finished third behind Librab, the horse Martin rode in that race, and another

Junior Brelsford tossed a no-run, no-hit game yesterday as LaVale defeated Wellersburg on the latter's field in the County Softball League by the score of 7-0.

Only 24 batsmen faced Brelsford in the 7 inning contest, three getting on base on walks in the first, fourth and fifth frames. It was the LaVale twirler's third straight win of the season.

Don Basilio rapped out two hits and Bob Horn garnered a two-bagger to pace the winners' nine-hit attack. Horworth and Starkey starred afield for the Pennsylvanians.

Corriganville blew up in the third inning and yielded seven runs but managed to hang on to win its third straight game at Ellerslie, 11 to 8. "Nip" Rice banged two triples and single in three official trips while Glen Kauffman posted his third mound victory and larruped a three-bagger and single. LaRue paced Ellerslie with two hits.

Potomac Valley's Cubs trimmed Stringtown at the latter place by the score of 16-8 in a game marked by two homers by Cecil and one by Lucas. Cecil belted his four-baggers in the 5th and 6th stanzas. Lease was the winning pitcher.

Two games are scheduled for today, Stringtown at Wellersburg and Corriganville vs. LaVale at Narrows Park. Scores:

AHS-Fort Hill Clash Today For 1st Place In City Race

Campobello Is Scene, Beall To Seek 7th In Row Over Bruce

Allegany and Fort Hill will battle it out today for first place in the annual triangular race for the city scholastic baseball championship at 4 p. m. at Campobello.

It will be the first meeting of the city rivals this season. The Campers hold a 6-2 decision over LaSalle while the Sentinels turned back the Explorers to the tune of 9-4.

AHS has a 3-2 record in the Bi-State Conference while Fort Hill's is 2-4.

Beck or Lewis will be on the firing line for Fort Hill with Ronnie Sisk slated to throw 'em platward for the Campers.

Beall High will go after its 7th straight Bi-State win when it plays host to Bruce of Westernport today at 4 p. m. in Westernport.

Other conference games are LaSalle at Barton and Hyndman at Central.

In the Potomac Valley Conference, Keyser winds up its campaign by battling Romney High's Pioneers at Romney. The Hampshire countians hold a 3-1 win over KHS.

Circleville is host to Petersburg's Vikings in another PVC test.

BROOKLYN WINS, 6-1

Brooklyn, May 10 (AP)—Don Newcombe went the route and won his first game in three weeks today as the Brooklyn Dodgers whipped the Chicago Cubs, 6-1, to capture the rubber of their three-game series.

The giant negro righthander allowed seven hits. He fanned five and walked two.

Newcombe's teammates supported him with an 11-hit barrage against Cal McLish and Bob Kelly. Gil Hodges' ninth home run of the season, climaxing a three-run rally against loser McLish in the fifth, was the most telling blow. Duke Snider, with three runs batted in via a single and long fly, also contributed to the victory.

The Dodgers' victory in conjunction with the Cardinals' loss to the Giants moved Brooklyn into second place, a game behind the league-leading Boston Braves. Box:

St. Luke's Lutheran defeated Calvary Methodist of Ridgeley, 10-6, First Methodist topped United Brethren, 10-3, and Cresaptown Methodist downed First Presbyterian, 11-5, in Central YMCA Sunday School Softball League games played yesterday.

Bob Smith had a perfect day at the plate for St. Luke's with three hits in three trips—two doubles and a single. Bradley hit two homers for Calvary.

Blair, Stafford and Robinette shared six of First Methodist's nine bingles while McGregor hit safely three times for U. B.

Cresaptown rapped five home runs, two by Hedrick and one each by Toey, Turner and Breedlove. The scores:

Lavelli Rejected For Fourth Time

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 10 (AP)—Tony Lavelli, holder of Yale's all-time scoring record in basketball and probably close to the holder of the national record for draft examinations—is on his way back to Rio de Janiero, rejected for the fourth time.

For his latest rejection he travelled nearly 5,000 miles-Rio to New Haven-and now he's winging his way south again.

His latest rejection came yesterday. He'll rejoin the College All-Stars of which he is player-coach at Sao Paulo, about 300 miles south of Rio.

Ferrier Leads In Greenbrier Open Tourney

Posts 6-Under-Par 64 For Opening Round

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., May 10 (AP)—Jim Ferrier "didn't feel he was hitting the ball well" today but the white pellet went rolling into the cups for five birdies on the last nine holes to give the San Franciscan the first-round lead in the Greenbrier Open.

Ferrier, second leading money winner on the 1951 pro circuit with $11,254 to his credit, scorched the back nine of the first 18 holes to post a six-under par 64. The course record of 62 is held by Sam Snead, the host pro, who was tied for third with George Fazio of Conshohocken, Pa., and Tony Penna of Cincinnati at 67 each.

Bob Hamilton of Evansville was on the heels of Ferrier with a 65.

Four strokes away from the leader in fourth position were Ben Hogan, the defending titleholder, Dutch Harrison, and Henry Picard.

The scores for 30 pros in the first round of the 72-hole, four-day push ranged up to 75 for Skee Riegel, second in the last Masters to Hogan.

Hogan ripped off a 259, 21 under par to win last year's Greenbrier.

The winning pro at the end of Sunday's round will bank $1,500. In all, a total of $10,000 will be distributed. On Saturday and Sunday, the pros will be joined by amateurs for a pro-amateur contest.

First round leaders were:

Jim Ferrier, 33-31—64
Bob Hamilton, 33-32—65
Toney Penna, 34-33—67
Sam Snead, 32-35—67
George Fazio, 33-34—67

Bob Toski, 35-36—71

GIANTS EDGE CARDS

NEW YORK, May 10 (INS)—The New York Giants scored three runs in the first two innings off rookie Tom Poholsky today and went on to beat the St. Louis Cardinals, 3 to 2, before 6,530 fans at the Polo Grounds.

It was the fourth win in a row for the rebounding Giants who now have copped nine of their last eleven games.

Roger Bowman and Dave Koslo divided the pitching chores for the Giants, allowing the flu-stricken Redbirds seven hits. Box:

BLACKWELL IS VICTOR

BOSTON, May 10 (AP)—Lathe-like Ewell Blackwell snapped a three-game losing streak for the lowly Cincinnati Reds today with an effective seven-hit pitching performance that gave him a 4-1 decision over the top-place Boston Braves.

Blackwell, usually a soft touch for the Tribesmen in their own wigwam, missed a shutout because of an eighth inning miscue by third baseman Grady Hatton.

The latter let an Earl Torgeson pop fly drop for two bases and Sig Gordon followed with a single to left field.

The Reds pounded starter Johnny Sain for all of their runs and nine of their 11 hits before he was yanked for a pinch-hitter in the seventh. Box:

The B. P. O. Elks took the measure of the Outdoor Club, 4-1, and the Cumberland Loyal Order of Moose won over the Knights of Columbus, 4-2, in Rocking Chair Softball League games staged yesterday.

Frank Williams was the hero in the Moose team's victory as he slammed a two-run homer to break a 2-2 deadlock in the 6th frame. A sensational catch by Walt Davis in short field when two Knights aboard in the 6th was the fielding gem Williams and Bob Wade of the Moose and Jim Browning and Benny LaNeve of the K. of C. had two hits each.

The Elks won their game with O.D.C. by scoring all their runs in the first inning on five hits, including a homer by Junior Hardy.

Hardy also got a double while Bruce Mackey and Bill Underdonk had a two-bagger and single each.

The Elks executed three double plays in the first three innings. Hardy started two of the twin killings and handled eight chances at short in flawless style.

Jones had two singles for O.D.C., which scored its lone run in the 7th on two singles and an overthrow at first base.

The Eagles are reported to have defeated the Amvets 9-3. No details were available. Scores:

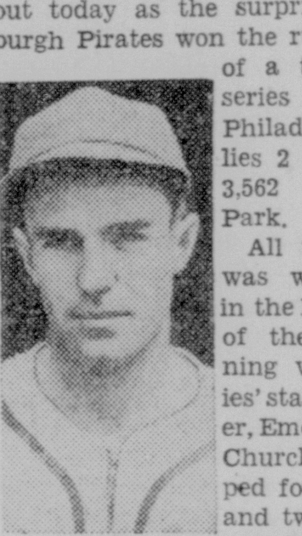
Dickson Hurls Four-Hitter, Blanks Phils

Pittsburgh Defeats Bubba Church, 2-0

PHILADELPHIA, May 10—Murray Dickson pitched a four-hit shutout today as the surprising Pittsburgh Pirates won the rubber game of a three game series from the Philadelphia Phillies 2 to 0 before 3,562 at Shibe Park.



Murry Dickson

All the scoring was wrapped up in the Pirates' half of the sixth inning when Phillies' starting pitcher, Emory (Bubba) Church was rapped for three hits and two runs.

Ted Beard started the sixth with a single and scored on a right field double by George Metkovich. Metkovich was out at third trying to stretch the hit.

Gus Bell accounted for the other run with a mighty blast over the right center field scorboard for his third home run of the season.

Dickson hurled a masterful game, only five balls being hit out of the infield. First sacker Ralph Kiner was credited with 18 putouts as Dickson kept the National League champions hitting into the ground to record his fourth victory against one defeat. It was the second loss for Church who has won two.

The Phillies lost more than the ball game. The Pirates' Wally Westlake smacked into Catcher Del Wilber in a play at the plate. Wilber was knocked unconscious, suffered a deep cut under his right eye and across the nose. Several stitches were required to close the cut under the eye.

Third string catcher Ken Silvestri took over. First string catcher Andy Seminick is still resting at home after being hit in the head by a pitched ball against St. Louis. Box:

All Tracks Expected To Abide By Ruling Made In Maryland

Baltimorean Accused Of Betting Against Horse He Was Riding

BALTIMORE, May 10 (AP) — Jockey Robert J. Martin today was banned from racing for 10 years for betting against the horse he was riding.

The Maryland Racing Commission handed down the order after an all-day session. Although the ban covers only Maryland tracks, all other tracks by custom abide by such rulings.

Martin, 23-year-old Baltimorean, was accused specifically of betting $300 on Shine On in the first race at Laurel April 10. Martin was up on Librab. Shine On came in third, and Martin's mount finished second.

Set Down 26 Times

Martin, who has been set down 26 times for various infractions since he started racing six years ago, denied the charge.

Commission Chairman H. Courtenay Jenifer asked the jockey who would have won the race if Shine On and Librab were going for the wire and the actual winner, Infaith, were running third.

The little jockey replied he wouldn't have "pulled" his horse.

One of the key witnesses at the hearing was an agent of the Thoroughbred Racing and Protective Bureau, John F. Loome. He testified he overheard Martin bet against his mount on the day of the race.

Loome said the wager was telephoned from a Baltimore hotel, where he occupied a room next to Martin's.

The agent said he heard Martin place phone calls to National 5460 in Washington and to phone number 333 in Bellevernon, Pa.

He gave the details of the Pennsylvania call, only, saying he determined by subsequent investigation that the man Martin talked to at that number was Dominick Anzalone.

Loome identified Anzalone as a gambler and fruit dealer "with a criminal record." He said Anzalone was the subject of a magazine (Collier's) article Nov. 11, 1950, entitled "Something Is Rotten In Pennsylvania."

Wanted To Bet $300

Loome testified he heard Martin say over the telephone, "I want to bet $300 on Shine On in the first race.

"No, I don't ride him, but I've got a good tip on him."

Loome said Martin also wanted a bet of $300 on "Teddie's Imp" in the seventh. Later testimony indicated that Shine On finished third behind Librab, the horse Martin rode in that race, and another

A's And Tribe Trade Players

Chapman Swapped For Clark, Klein

PHILADELPHIA, May 10 (AP) — The Philadelphia Athletics took another step today to bolster their sagging baseball fortunes, swapping veteran centerfielder Sam Chapman to the Cleveland Indians for Outfielder Allie Clark and Infielder Lou Klein.

Chapman, long a favorite with A's fans and players alike, has been a fixture in centerfield. General Manager Art Ehlers, who announced the trade, admitted the A's "hate to part with Sam but we're doing everything we can to bolster the club."

That the Athletics need help is evidenced by their current last-place tie with the St. Louis Browns in the American League. That they're trying to improve is evidenced by the fact this is the club's second major trade in less than two weeks.

Chapman, former University of California football star, is 35. He came to the A's fresh from the college campus in 1938, recommended by Ty Cobb as a "natural hitter." For a couple seasons he lived up to advance billing, roling up a .322 batting average, 25 homers and 106 runs batted in for 1941.

Then he went to the navy, was out of baseball for nearly four seasons while he became a fighter plane pilot. After he came back he never regained his pre-war power, could hit only .251 last season and had a dismal .169 average for 1951 to date. Most of the time he has been No. 4 in the A's batting lineup.

Both Clark and Klein are younger. Allie, 27, played one season with the New York Yankees before being traded to Cleveland in 1947. Last year he hit .215 in 59 games.

Kline, 32, was one of the Mexican League "jumpers" who left the St. Louis Cardinals in 1946. He was reinstated in 1949, then traded to Cincinnati Reds and came up to Cleveland from Los Angeles where he hit .332 last year.

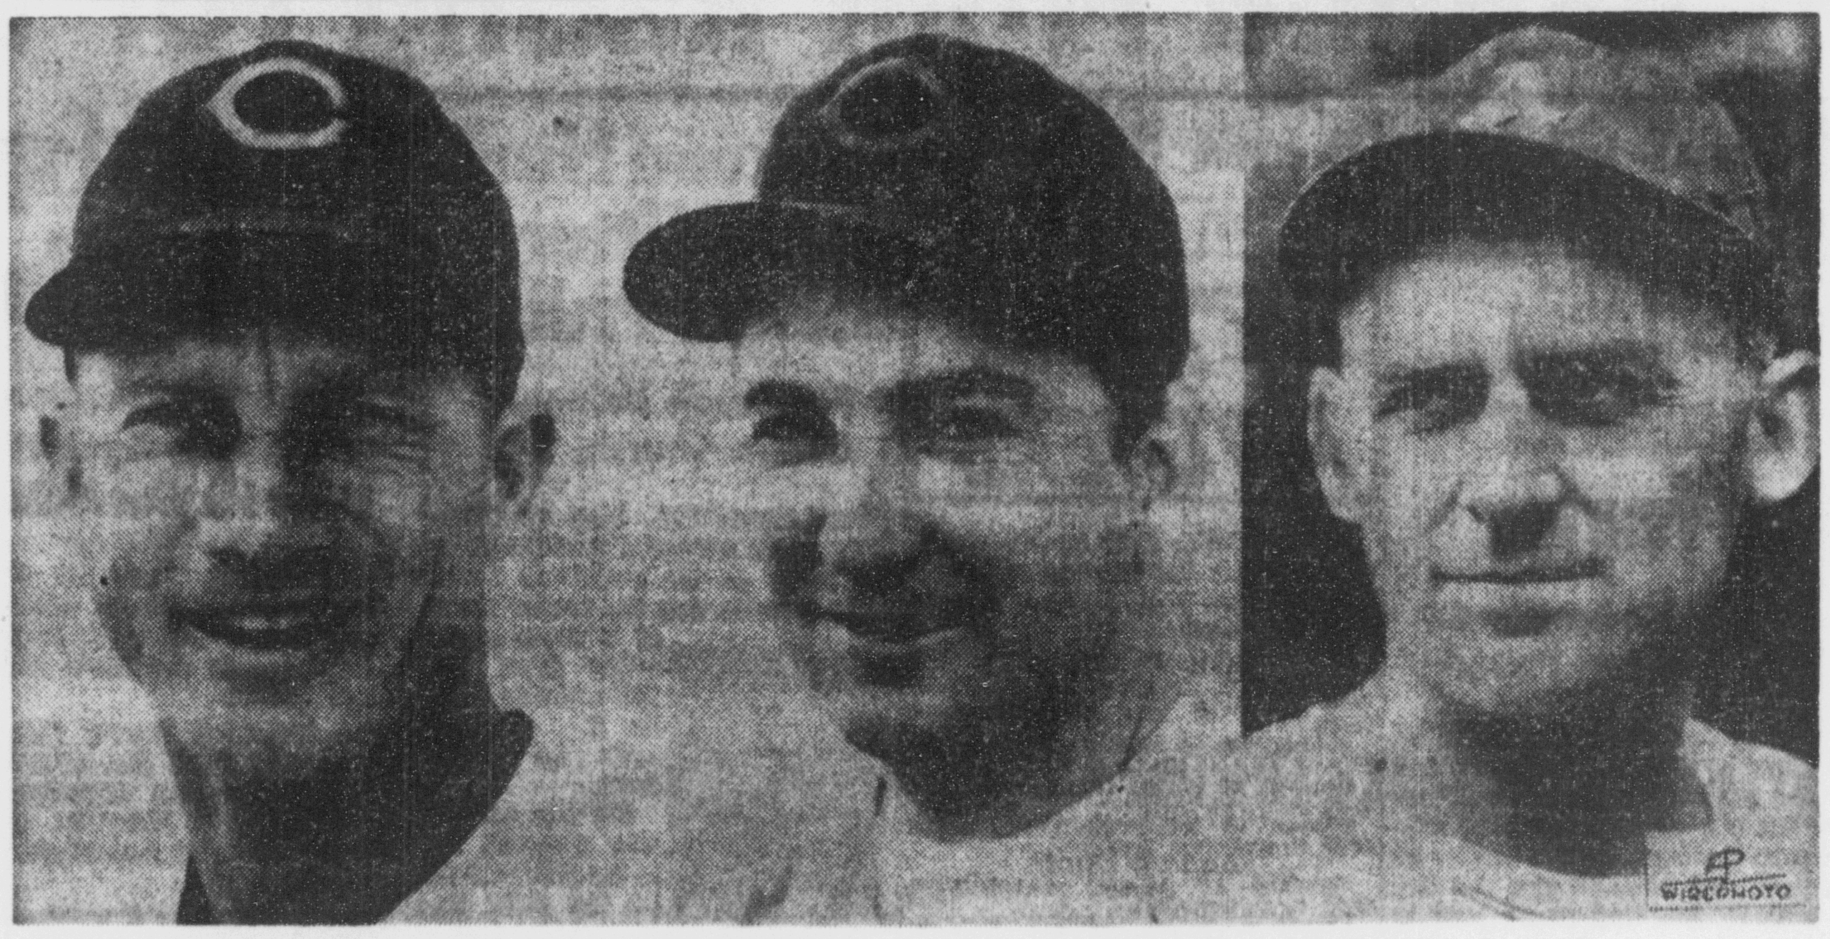

FIGURE IN MAJOR LEAGUE TRADE — Veteran Philadelphia Athletics' outfielder Sam Chapman (right) was traded to the Cleveland Indians yesterday for outfielder Allie Clark (center) and reserve infielder Lou (Chuck) Klein. Athletics' General manager Art Ehlers said it was a straight player transaction, with no cash involved.

Pen-Mar League Schedules Three Games Saturday

Three Pen-Mar Baseball League games that were washed out by rain have been rescheduled for Saturday at 3:30 p. m.

Barrelville plays at Ellerslie, Klondyke at Wellersburg and Zihlman at Mt. Savage.

Kenneth Robertson, secretary-treasurer of the league, announces that five players have been added to the league's list of eligibles.

Eckhart has signed Enardo Arnone, Ellerslie had added Curtis R. Stahlman to its roster and Barrelville has received signed contracts from William Buser, Donald Buser and Robert Yonker.

During the 1913 season Walter Johnson of Washington hiurled 56 consecutive scoreless innings. That record stands today.

West Virginia U. Cops Double Bill

WILLIAMSBURG, Va., May 10 (AP) — West Virginia University's baseball team swept past William and Mary in a doubleheader here today, 10-1 and 5-1, on the stellar pitching of Dick Leposky and Dick Morgan.

Leposky limited the Indians to two hits in the seven-inning opener while Morgan yielded only three safeties in the afterpiece.

The wins were West Virginia's seventh and eighth of the season in Southern Conference Northern Division play and gave the Mountaineers an 8-4 record in the circuit. William and Mary, which has won only three games all year, lost its 15th and 16th contests. Scores:

Arcaro Will Ride Bold In Preakness

BALTIMORE, May 10 (AP)—Jockey Eddie Arcaro signed up today to ride Bold in The Preakness, and thereby hangs a tale—or maybe two or three.

First, it means that Brookmeade Stable and Eddie think Bold is a good bet in next week's $75,000-added classic.

Second, it means that Joe Culmone apparently is out of favor with Brookmeade which holds his contract. Culmone has been in a slump since his great year of 1950 when he tied the all-time record of 388 winners.

Third, it indicates that Cain Hoy Stable's Battle Morn, beaten favorite in the Derby, won't be running for the black-eyed susans. Battle Morn, ridden by Arcaro in the Derby, was injured in that race.

Bold, 3-year-old son of By Jimminy, easily won his 1951 debut yesterday in the $3,500 Jacobus Purse at a mile and a sixteenth by 12 lengths.

horse. In Faith, which finished first. Teddie's Imp came in first.

Martin, however, denied he was placing bets. He admitted making the phone call, but said he was only replying to a request Anzalone had made of him for tips on good horses.

He told the commission he first met Anzalone in a night club after a day of racing at Hialeah and had dinner with Anzalone and another person he identified as Willie Carroll.

He testified that Anzalone gave him three hundred dollars "for a stake", and then told Martin to call if he ever "heard of any good horses."

Said He Gave Advice

Martin said that when he later called Anzalone as was testified, he was not placing a bet but was advising Anzalone as to what horses were good bets.

He said, however, that he would probably have gotten "a gift" if both horses had won. Since they didn't, he testified, he got nothing.

Prosecutor Kenneth C. Proctor, assistant attorney general, introduced into evidence a statement he said Martin signed in which Martin admitted giving Anzalone information on horses.

Walker Cup Tests Open

U. S., British Play Three Matches Today

BIRKDALE, Eng., May 10 (INS)—United States golfers, seeking their 12th victory in 13 Walker Cup matches with England, expected tonight to make off with three of tomorrow's four scotch foursomes.

Such a performance—equalling that of a year ago—would give Americans an overwhelming [illegible] going into Saturday's eight singles matches with Britain's best amateur linksmen.

Only Willie Turnesa of White Plains, N. Y., neophyte captain of the Americans, and U. S. amateur champion Sam Urzetta of Rochester will be underdogs in the opening test.

Turnesa, 37-year-old former British and U. S. champion, and the 25-year-old Urzetta, a newcomer to International play, will face Britain's strongest pair, Irish Jim Bruen and former pro John Morgan, a Welshman.

Other pairings are:

Defending British amateur champion Frank Stranahan of Toledo, O., and Bill Campbell of Huntington, W. Va., vs. Ronnie White and Joe Carr, only British pair to win a scotch foursome last year.

Former U. S. Champion Charley Coe of Oklahoma City and Jim McHale of Philadelphia vs. Cecile Ewing and John Langley.

Dick Chapman of Pinehurst, N. C., former U. S. titlist and 1950 British runner-up, and Bob Knowles of Boston vs. Ian Caldwell and Alex Kyle.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Sealed bids will be received at the office of the City Clerk, City Hall, Cumberland, Maryland, until 12 o'clock noon, E D S T., May 28, 1951, for one (1) ELECTRAMATIC SPEEDMETER for use in the Police Department.

The bidder shall specify the earliest delivery date.

The Mayor and City Council reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

A's And Tribe Trade Players

Chapman Swapped For Clark, Klein

PHILADELPHIA, May 10 (AP) — The Philadelphia Athletics took another step today to bolster their sagging baseball fortunes, swapping veteran centerfielder Sam Chapman to the Cleveland Indians for Outfielder Allie Clark and Infielder Lou Klein.

Chapman, long a favorite with A's fans and players alike, has been a fixture in centerfield. General Manager Art Ehlers, who announced the trade, admitted the A's "hate to part with Sam but we're doing everything we can to bolster the club."

That the Athletics need help is evidenced by their current last-place tie with the St. Louis Browns in the American League. That they're trying to improve is evidenced by the fact this is the club's second major trade in less than two weeks.

Chapman, former University of California football star, is 35. He came to the A's fresh from the college campus in 1938, recommended by Ty Cobb as a "natural hitter." For a couple seasons he lived up to advance billing, roling up a .322 batting average, 25 homers and 106 runs batted in for 1941.

Then he went to the navy, was out of baseball for nearly four seasons while he became a fighter plane pilot. After he came back he never regained his pre-war power, could hit only .251 last season and had a dismal .169 average for 1951 to date. Most of the time he has been No. 4 in the A's batting lineup.

Both Clark and Klein are younger. Allie, 27, played one season with the New York Yankees before being traded to Cleveland in 1947. Last year he hit .215 in 59 games.

Kline, 32, was one of the Mexican League "jumpers" who left the St. Louis Cardinals in 1946. He was reinstated in 1949, then traded to Cincinnati Reds and came up to Cleveland from Los Angeles where he hit .332 last year.

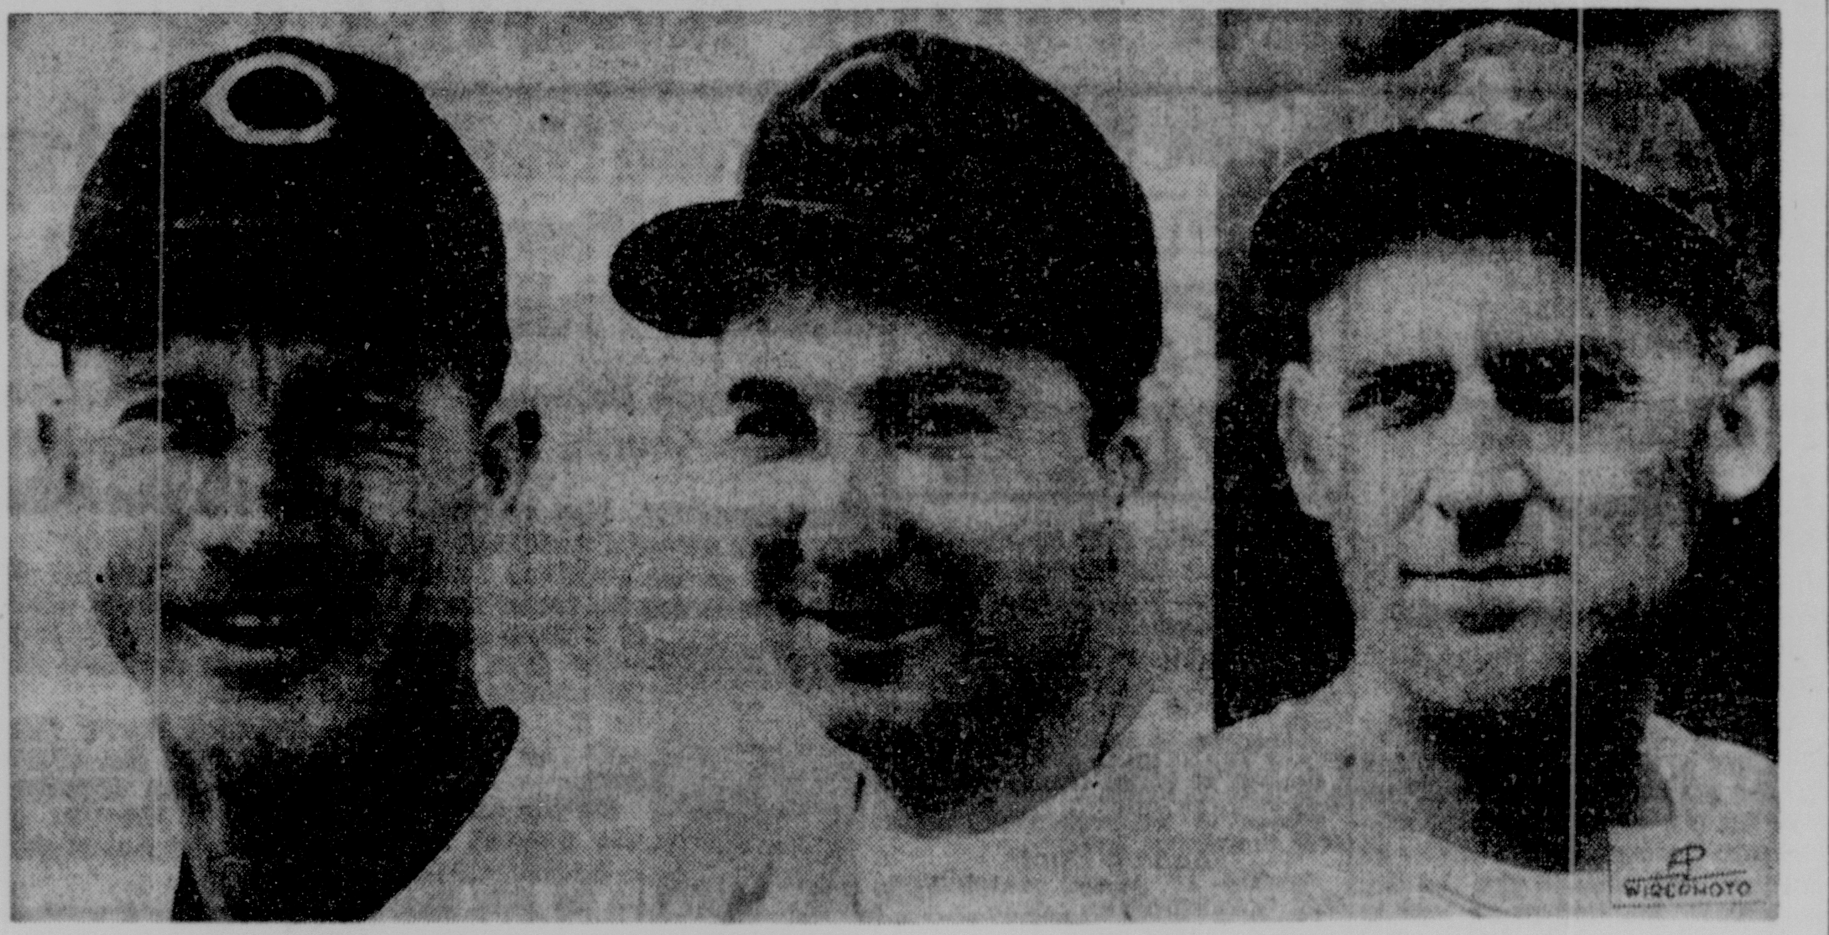

FIGURE IN MAJOR LEAGUE TRADE — Veteran Philadelphia Athletics' outfielder Sam Chapman (right) was traded to the Cleveland Indians yesterday for outfielder Allie Clark (center) and reserve infielder Lou (Chuck) Klein. Athletics' General manager Art Ehlers said it was a straight player transaction, with no cash involved.

Pen-Mar League Schedules Three Games Saturday

Three Pen-Mar Baseball League games that were washed out by rain have been rescheduled for Saturday at 3:30 p. m.

Barrelville plays at Ellerslie, Klondyke at Wellersburg and Zihlman at Mt. Savage.

Kenneth Robertson, secretary-treasurer of the league, announces that five players have been added to the league's list of eligibles.

Eckhart has signed Enardo Arnone, Ellerslie had added Curtis R. Stahlman to its roster and Barrelville has received signed contracts from William Buser, Donald Buser and Robert Yonker.

During the 1913 season Walter Johnson of Washington hiurled 56 consecutive scoreless innings. That record stands today.

West Virginia U. Cops Double Bill

WILLIAMSBURG, Va., May 10 (AP) — West Virginia University's baseball team swept past William and Mary in a doubleheader here today, 10-1 and 5-1, on the stellar pitching of Dick Leposky and Dick Morgan.

Leposky limited the Indians to two hits in the seven-inning opener while Morgan yielded only three safeties in the afterpiece.

The wins were West Virginia's seventh and eighth of the season in Southern Conference Northern Division play and gave the Mountaineers an 8-4 record in the circuit. William and Mary, which has won only three games all year, lost its 15th and 16th contests. Scores:

FIRST GAME

WEST VIRGINIA ...	102 110 5—10	10	0
WM. & MARY	000 000 1— 1	2	4

Leposky and Cooper, Wellington. Hersey and Aubin.

SECOND GAME

WEST VIRGINIA	020 200 1—5	7	1
WM. & MARY	010 000 0—1	3	2

Morgan and Wellington. Carter and Yewcic.

Arcaro Will Ride Bold In Preakness

BALTIMORE, May 10 (AP)—Jockey Eddie Arcaro signed up today to ride Bold in The Preakness, and thereby hangs a tale—or maybe two or three.

First, it means that Brookmeade Stable and Eddie think Bold is a good bet in next week's $75,000-added classic.

Second, it means that Joe Culmone apparently is out of favor with Brookmeade which holds his contract. Culmone has been in a slump since his great year of 1950 when he tied the all-time record of 388 winners.

Third, it indicates that Cain Hoy Stable's Battle Morn, beaten favorite in the Derby, won't be running for the black-eyed susans. Battle Morn, ridden by Arcaro in the Derby, was injured in that race.

Bold, 3-year-old son of By Jimminy, easily won his 1951 debut yesterday in the $3,500 Jacobus Purse at a mile and a sixteenth by 12 lengths.

horse. In Faith, which finished first. Teddie's Imp came in first.

Martin, however, denied he was placing bets. He admitted making the phone call, but said he was only replying to a request Anzalone had made of him for tips on good horses.

He told the commission he first met Anzalone in a night club after a day of racing at Hialeah and had dinner with Anzalone and another person he identified as Willie Carroll.

He testified that Anzalone gave him three hundred dollars "for a stake", and then told Martin to call if he ever "heard of any good horses."

Said He Gave Advice

Martin said that when he later called Anzalone as was testified, he was not placing a bet but was advising Anzalone as to what horses were good bets.

He said, however, that he would probably have gotten "a gift" if both horses had won. Since they didn't, he testified, he got nothing.

Prosecutor Kenneth C. Proctor, assistant attorney general, introduced into evidence a statement he said Martin signed in which Martin admitted giving Anzalone information on horses.

Walker Cup Tests Open

U. S., British Play Three Matches Today

BIRKDALE, Eng., May 10 (INS)—United States golfers, seeking their 12th victory in 13 Walker Cup matches with England, expected tonight to make off with three of tomorrow's four scotch foursomes.

Such a performance—equalling that of a year ago—would give Americans an overwhelming lead going into Saturday's eight singles matches with Britain's best amateur linksmen.

Only Willie Turnesa of White Plains, N. Y., neophyte captain of the Americans, and U. S. amateur champion Sam Urzetta of Rochester will be underdogs in the opening test.

Turnesa, 37-year-old former British and U. S. champion, and the 25-year-old Urzetta, a newcomer to International play, will face Britain's strongest pair, Irish Jim Bruen and former pro John Morgan, a Welshman.

Other pairings are:

Defending British amateur champion Frank Stranahan of Toledo, O., and Bill Campbell of Huntington, W. Va., vs. Ronnie White and Joe Carr, only British pair to win a scotch foursome last year.

Former U. S. Champion Charley Coe of Oklahoma City and Jim McHale of Philadelphia vs. Cecile Ewing and John Langley.

Dick Chapman of Pinehurst, N. C., former U. S. titlist and 1950 British runner-up, and Bob Knowles of Boston vs. Ian Caldwell and Alex Kyle.

BURTON'S

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, May 10—(INS)—When I had dinner with Mervyn Leroy the other night he didn't know what his next picture would be at MGM. But he was eager to get to work again rarin' to go even though he had spent seven gruelling months directing "Quo Vadis."

Red Skelton

Well, today — Mervyn was handed "Lovely To Look At," his first musical in ages, and one of the "star-iest" casts ever assembled.

"Red Skelton has been added to the lineup," Mervyn told me enthusiatically. "Some setup—with Kathryn Grayson, Howard Keel, Marge and Gower Champion and Adrian designing the gowns."

As the picture doesn't start until June—Red Skelton will still have time to keep his date at the London Palladium.

• — • — •

That Don Taylor is certainly in demand. When he finishes "The Blue Veil" he reports to Anson Bond for "East Is East."

Again Don, who was so good in "Father Of The Bride" and "Father's Little Dividend," plays a young husband. This time he is a GI who marries a Japanese girl who will be beautiful Shirley Yamaguchi—maybe.

I say that because when the Japanese actress was here several months ago she used up all her time on her alien visa. To get back requires a special permit from the government.

King Vidor, who will direct, and Anson are hopeful it can be arranged and they will get Shirley for their modern 'Madame Butterfly."

• — • — •

No news travels like theatrical news—that's why I heard, I suppose, that Irving Berlin is coming to Hollywood before long to close a deal with 20th Century-Fox for three musicals.

I hear, through the grapevine that one of these musicals will be based on his song, "No Business Like Show Business," which is one of the great titles of all time.

Maybe you're asking how our popular composer can sell the title of "No Business Like Show Business" when Betty Hutton sang it so recently in "Annie Get Your Gun?" The reason is that Irving made a deal with MGM for all his songs to revert back to him after a certain time, and "No Business Like Show Business" will be his property in a year and nine months.

Chatter in Hollywood:

Ella Raines, in town for a few days to rent her house, tells me she is very unhappy over the reports that she has had trouble with her husband, Commander Robin Olds.

"Robin is on wartime bases," she said: "He's in Pittsburgh in charge of the jet combat planes, and at 28 he's a commander, which I think is terrific.

"We can only see each other weekends since all of his time during the week is spent on the Navy project. Don't you think it's unfair for people to say we've had trouble when we love each other and he is working for the government?"

I certainly do.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Joan Crawford, back from a whirl in New York, is in bed with a bad cold.

Evelyn Keyes, all well again, at the Lena Horne opening at the Cocoanut Grove with Freddie De Cordova.

Gale Storm and her husband Anita Louise and Buddy Adler, and the Donald O'Connors among the ringsiders.

What's this with Jimmy Cross and Sally Haines? They were glimpsed at the Mocambo two nights in a row.

Mary Pickford telephones to say hail and farewell. She left today (or planned to) for the east. She's due in my former hometown, Chicago, May 11, to open the campaign to raise $250,000 for the support of European war orphans.

From London comes word that Prince Philip with a stag party, attended Bob Hope's closing night.

Dr. Ralph Bunche left for New York for a conference with the U. N. He's a good friend of the motion picture industry and was guest of honor several weeks ago at an important dinner given him at the new Romanoff's at which Averell Harriman was the chief speaker.

The frequent conferences of Grad Sears, former U. A. head, with Joe Moscowitz, of 20th, in New York, bring rumors that Grad may be going with 20th.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Keyser Rotarians Hold Open Forum

KEYSER, W. Va.—An open forum was held by the Keyser Rotary Club in the Odd Fellows Hall a recent evening, following a dinner at which 25 local Rotarians participated.

The forum was held at the request of Rotary International, with the Keyser Club being selected as one of four clubs in the district to present such a meeting.

David G. Nuzum, moderator, led a lively discussion of club service. Kirkland S. McKee discussed "Young Men Needed," James H. Swadley, Jr., "Attendance Regulations," and Kenna Burke "Getting Acquainted with Rotary." "Public Relations" was the subject of a talk by Rev. John C. B. McLaughlin and Calvin McCoole spoke on "How to Inform New Members." Clyde Gardner discussed "Membership and Classification."

HOLLYWOOD
By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, May 10—(INS)—When I had dinner with Mervyn Leroy the other night he didn't know what his next picture would be at MGM. But he was eager to get to work again rarin' to go even though he had spent seven grueling months directing "Quo Vadis."

Red Skelton

Well, today — Mervyn was handed "Lovely To Look At," his first musical in ages, and one of the "star-iest" casts ever assembled.

"Red Skelton has been added to the lineup," Mervyn told me enthusiatically. "Some setup—with Kathryn Grayson, Howard Keel, Marge and Gower Champion and Adrian designing the gowns."

As the picture doesn't start until June—Red Skelton will still have time to keep his date at the London Palladium.

Radio And Television

By JOHN McNULTY

Kid Gloves

IN our 'dobe hut on East 72nd Street, we still use coal-oil lamps and scratch matches on our pants, so naturally we don't have any television.

We have rich friends with television, though, and by means of the daily papers—delivered, naturally, by a man in a coonskin cap—we keep track of what's going on the various channels so we can pack the baby in his butcher-basket and go over and visit them at television time when something decent is on.

By something decent I mean Jimmy Durante, Sam Levenson, or, best of all, "Kid Gloves." This last is a television program goes on Saturday nights 6:30 CBS-TV and it is the only fights a person can rely on, strictly on the level, everybody trying, no cook-up by the gonophs that hang around Madison Square Garden (no offense meant to Harry Markson, the honest entrepreneur, who is not a gonoph and therefore stands out like a sore thumb, meaning no offense).

In "Kid Gloves" bruisers aged three and one-half to ten or so go at each other with big padded gloves with such fury that hell wouldn't have it.

My wife and I always come near busting up over this wonderful program. She says is isn't wonderful. She says it is cruel. Sometimes I think my wife doesn't have all her marbles, she's out of her head, but she has other qualities which endear her to me and we won't go into them at this time.

"What's cruel about it, for God's sake?" I keep asking when we are on our way home again from the rich friend's house with the television in it. "What's cruel about it, for God's sake."

"Making those poor little babies fight each other like that," she usually says. "That what's cruel about it."

"There you go, getting all maudlin about babies again," I usually say. "Those kids are pretty near four years old, some of them, and if you had your way they'd still be dawdling around the house, sponging on the old folks, instead of being out manfully trying to learn a trade that will serve them in good stead, as I always say, later on in life."

"Making those poor kids hit each other and hold back the tears when they get hit!" she says, ignoring pure logic the way women always do.

"Did you ever see Marauder McManus, the three-year-old assassin, holding back a tear?" I throw at her. "You certainly didn't. The Marauder hasn't got a teardrop in him! And tonight, just to refresh your memory, Don (The Fiend) Finan was as far from tears as a man can get. Cut out that maudlin nonsense. The kids are crazy about it themselves, you spoilsport!"

• — • — •

Granting that the man who gives the spiel on "Kid Gloves," a man named Ox Something-or-Other, throws a horrid heap of mullarkey, this is a heartening show, enough to make me go out and hock my racing-binoculars to buy a television—almost. (I still have the binoculars).

Take a couple weeks ago one Saturday night. The main go, as far as I'm concerned, was Don The Fiend Finan, three-and-a-half, weighing thirty-five pounds, wearing cerise trunks, versus Jim The Motor McFarlane, same age, same weight. These boys were hot. The referee gave them their instructions and expected them to go back into their corners and wait for the bell. He expected wrong. No sooner was the last syllable out of his learned mouth than Zingo! The Fiend and The Motor started swinging. It was like Louis coming out for the first round in the second fight against Schmeling (the only time Louis was ever angry with an opponent; he kayoed the German in the first round). The Motor was true to his name, a human dynamo, never stopped going. The Fiend was a miniature Harry Greb, with a complete knowledge of every trick in the book. In our house, or, strictly speaking, the house we were using for television purposes, pandemonium reigned. The end was a draw and nobody booed. The boys stepped up to the mike and there was none of this "Hello Mom" hooey; these fighters are always beyond that cheap sentimentality. They simply stepped up to the mike, with expressions that said "Thank God my record isn't marred. A draw is nothing against a man."

"Who do you think would win between Dempsey and Louis?" the announcer asked The Fiend.

The Fiend pondered a moment, no doubt discounting a lot of stuff he had heard about these two fighters as only hearsay, since they were before his time.

"Dempsey," he said, succinctly.

"How about you, Motor, who do you think would win?" the announcer asked Jim The Motor McFarlane.

"Dempsey," he said, between rubbing his undeviated nasal septum with a brawny boxing-glove.

"Why?" the announcer pressed.

The Motor meditated.

"Because he sure would," he said.

No arguing with a guy who can say that. I don't want to argue with him anyway. The Motor's a tough baby, thanks be to God and never mind what my wife says about "Kid Gloves," it's a swell show.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Radio And Television

By JOHN McNULTY

Kid Gloves

IN our 'dobe hut on East 72nd Street, we still use coal-oil lamps and scratch matches on our pants, so naturally we don't have any television.

We have rich friends with television, though, and by means of the daily papers—delivered, naturally, by a man in a coonskin cap—we keep track of what's going on the various channels so we can pack the baby in his butcher-basket and go over and visit them at television time when something decent is on.

By something decent I mean Jimmy Durante, Sam Levenson, or, best of all, "Kid Gloves." This last is a television program goes on Saturday nights 6:30 CBS-TV and it is the only fights a person can rely on, strictly on the level, everybody trying, no cook-up by the gonophs that hang around Madison Square Garden (no offense meant to Harry Markson, the honest entrepreneur, who is not a gonoph and therefore stands out like a sore thumb, meaning no offense).

In "Kid Gloves" bruisers aged three and one-half to ten or so go at each other with big padded gloves with such fury that hell wouldn't have it.

My wife and I always come near busting up over this wonderful program. She says is isn't wonderful. She says it is cruel. Sometimes I think my wife doesn't have all her marbles, she's out of her head, but she has other qualities which endear her to me and we won't go into them at this time.

"What's cruel about it, for God's sake?" I keep asking when we are on our way home again from the rich friend's house with the television in it. "What's cruel about it, for God's sake."

"Making those poor little babies fight each other like that," she usually says. "That what's cruel about it."

"There you go, getting all maudlin about babies again," I usually say. "Those kids are pretty near four years old, some of them, and if you had your way they'd still be dawdling around the house, sponging on the old folks, instead of being out manfully trying to learn a trade that will serve them in good stead, as I always say, later on in life."

"Making those poor kids hit each other and hold back the tears when they get hit!" she says, ignoring pure logic the way women always do.

"Did you ever see Marauder McManus, the three-year-old assassin, holding back a tear?" I throw at her. "You certainly didn't. The Marauder hasn't got a teardrop in him! And tonight, just to refresh your memory, Don (The Fiend) Finan was as far from tears as a man can get. Cut out that maudlin nonsense. The kids are crazy about it themselves, you spoilsport!"

• — • — •

Granting that the man who gives the spiel on "Kid Gloves," a man named Ox Something-or-Other, throws a horrid heap of mullarkey, this is a heartening show, enough to make me go out and hock my racing-binoculars to buy a television—almost. (I still have the binoculars).

Take a couple weeks ago one Saturday night. The main go, as far as I'm concerned, was Don The Fiend Finan, three-and-a-half, weighing thirty-five pounds, wearing cerise trunks, versus Jim The Motor McFarlane, same age, same weight. These boys were hot. The referee gave them their instructions and expected them to go back into their corners and wait for the bell. He expected wrong. No sooner was the last syllable out of his learned mouth than Zingo! The Fiend and The Motor started swinging. It was like Louis coming out for the first round in the second fight against Schmeling (the only time Louis was ever angry with an opponent; he kayoed the German in the first round). The Motor was true to his name, a human dynamo, never stopped going. The Fiend was a miniature Harry Greb, with a complete knowledge of every trick in the book. In our house, or, strictly speaking, the house we were using for television purposes, pandemonium reigned. The end was a draw and nobody booed. The boys stepped up to the mike and there was none of this "Hello Mom" hooey; these fighters are always beyond that cheap sentimentality. They simply stepped up to the mike, with expressions that said "Thank God my record isn't marred. A draw is nothing against a man."

"Who do you think would win between Dempsey and Louis?" the announcer asked The Fiend.

The Fiend pondered a moment, no doubt discounting a lot of stuff he had heard about these two fighters as only hearsay, since they were before his time.

"Dempsey," he said, succinctly.

"How about you, Motor, who do you think would win?" the announcer asked Jim The Motor McFarlane.

"Dempsey," he said, between rubbing his undeviated nasal septum with a brawny boxing-glove.

"Why?" the announcer pressed.

The Motor meditated.

"Because he sure would," he said.

No arguing with a guy who can say that. I don't want to argue with him anyway. The Motor's a tough baby, thanks be to God and never mind what my wife says about "Kid Gloves," it's a swell show.

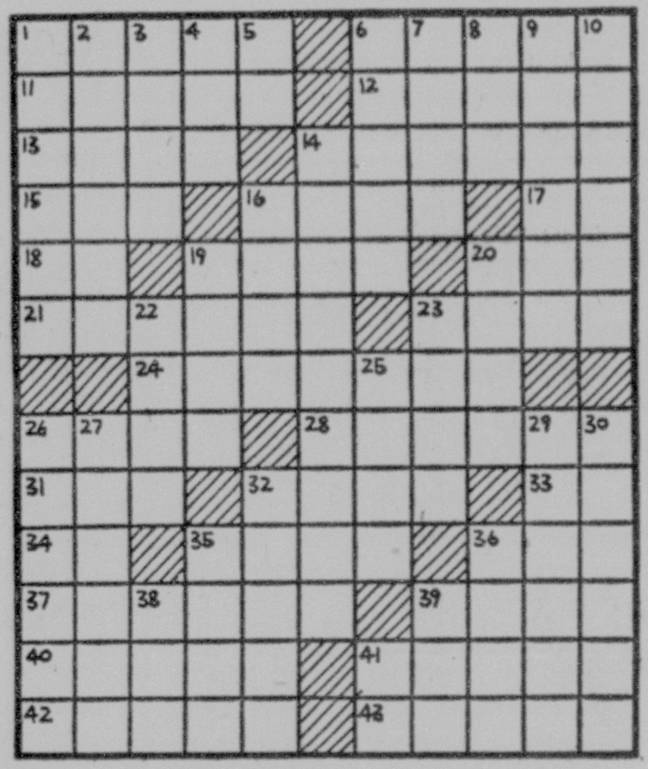
Yesterday's Answer



DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

WAHFKQYF FDC VUNACFH WA PDNF XKLH FX KQA, YXKKCYF XUE FWTC, NAE KCOQUNFC FDC HQA—VXVC.

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: HIGH MINDS OF NATIVE PRIDE AND FORCE, MOST DEEPLY FEEL THY PANGS, REMORSE!—SCOTT.

ORDINANCE NO. 1902

AN ORDINANCE OF THE MAYOR AND CITY COUNCIL OF CUMBERLAND, MARYLAND, ENTITLED, "AN ORDINANCE TO PLACE AN ADMISSIONS TAX OF FIVE CENTS ($.05) PER PERSON UPON ALL ADULT PERSONS ATTENDING RECREATIONAL EVENTS, SHOWS OR ENTERTAINMENTS WITHIN THE CITY OF CUMBERLAND, AND TO PROVIDE FOR THE COLLECTION OF THE SAME THROUGH ANY PERSON, FIRM, CORPORATION OR ORGANIZATION CONDUCTING SAID RECREATIONAL EVENTS, SHOWS OR ENTERTAINMENTS."

SECTION 1. BE IT ORDAINED BY THE MAYOR AND CITY COUNCIL OF CUMBERLAND, That from and after the 15th day of May, 1951, there shall be charged and collected the sum of five cents ($.05) as an admissions tax for each adult person attending any recreational event, show or entertainment held by any person, firm, corporation or organization lawfully entitled to conduct the same within the limits of the City of Cumberland.

SECTION 2. AND BE IT FURTHER ORDAINED, That each person, firm, corporation or organization conducting a recreational event, show or entertainment within the City of Cumberland, shall be and is hereby required to provide suitable admission tickets which shall be serially numbered and in roll form, perforated so that each ticket may be detached and containing the name of the person, firm, corporation or organization conducting said recreational event, show or entertainment. Said person, firm, corporation or organization shall collect from each adult person applying for admission to a recreational event, show or entertainment, the admissions tax hereinbefore set forth and shall detach one ticket for each adult person so admitted, and said ticket shall be immediately torn in two and the serial number thereof shall be preserved and held for the examination of the City Clerk, if he shall so require. Each roll of tickets, together with the serial numbers thereof, shall be registered before the use thereof with the City Clerk, and it shall be unlawful for any person, firm, corporation or organization to reissue or reuse any of said tickets after the same has been issued.

(b) Each person, firm, corporation or organization shall be and is hereby required to remit to the City Clerk for the use of the City, all sums of money collected for said admissions tax, and said remittance shall be made twice in each month, namely, upon the 15th day of the month and the last day of the month; provided that, if the said 15th or last day of the month shall fall upon a Sunday or holiday, then on the next succeeding business day, and said remittances shall be accompanied by a statement sworn to by the proper officer of the person, firm, corporation or organization making the remittance and setting forth the number of tickets sold during the period and giving the number of the first ticket sold for said period and the number of the last ticket sold for said period. Said sums of money when received by the City Clerk shall be properly receipted for by him and deposited with the City Treasurer.

(c) No admissions tax shall be charged and collected on tickets sold by any motion picture theatre or for any lecture on scientific, historical, benevolent, artistic, religious, educational, political or literary subjects and apparatus for the elucidation of the same.

(d) Said sums derived from the aforesaid charges shall be kept and maintained in a separate fund by the City Treasurer and distributed and paid over to the Recreational Program Director of the City, in addition to such funds as may be appropriated from time to time from the General Fund of the City for the Recreation Department.

SECTION 3. AND BE IT FURTHER ORDAINED, That any person, firm, corporation or organization violating any provision of this ordinance, shall upon conviction thereof, be fined not less than Fifty Dollars ($50.00) nor more than One Hundred Dollars ($100.00) for each offense.

Passed this 7th day of May, 1951.

ORDINANCE NO. 1902

AN ORDINANCE OF THE MAYOR AND CITY COUNCIL OF CUMBERLAND, MARYLAND, ENTITLED, "AN ORDINANCE TO PLACE AN ADMISSIONS TAX OF FIVE CENTS ($.05) PER PERSON UPON ALL ADULT PERSONS ATTENDING RECREATIONAL EVENTS, SHOWS OR ENTERTAINMENTS WITHIN THE CITY OF CUMBERLAND, AND TO PROVIDE FOR THE COLLECTION OF THE SAME THROUGH ANY PERSON, FIRM, CORPORATION OR ORGANIZATION CONDUCTING SAID RECREATIONAL EVENTS, SHOWS OR ENTERTAINMENTS."

SECTION 1. BE IT ORDAINED BY THE MAYOR AND CITY COUNCIL OF CUMBERLAND, That from and after the 15th day of May, 1951, there shall be charged and collected the sum of five cents ($.05) as an admissions tax for each adult person attending any recreational event, show or entertainment held by any person, firm, corporation or organization lawfully entitled to conduct the same within the limits of the City of Cumberland.

SECTION 2. AND BE IT FURTHER ORDAINED, That each person, firm, corporation or organization conducting a recreational event, show or entertainment within the City of Cumberland, shall be and is hereby required to provide suitable admission tickets which shall be serially numbered and in roll form, perforated so that each ticket may be detached and containing the name of the person, firm, corporation or organization conducting said recreational event, show or entertainment. Said person, firm, corporation or organization shall collect from each adult person applying for admission to a recreational event, show or entertainment, the admissions tax hereinbefore set forth and shall detach one ticket for each adult person so admitted, and said ticket shall be immediately torn in two and the serial number thereof shall be preserved and held for the examination of the City Clerk, if he shall so require. Each roll of tickets, together with the serial numbers thereof, shall be registered before the use thereof with the City Clerk, and it shall be unlawful for any person, firm, corporation or organization to reissue or reuse any of said tickets after the same has been issued.

(b) Each person, firm, corporation or organization shall be and is hereby required to remit to the City Clerk for the use of the City, all sums of money collected for said admissions tax, and said remittance shall be made twice in each month, namely, upon the 15th day of the month and the last day of the month; provided that, if the said 15th or last day of the month shall fall upon a Sunday or holiday, then on the next succeeding business day, and said remittances shall be accompanied by a statement sworn to by the proper officer of the person, firm, corporation or organization making the remittance and setting forth the number of tickets sold during the period and giving the number of the first ticket sold for said period and the number of the last ticket sold for said period. Said sums of money when received by the City Clerk shall be properly receipted for by him and deposited with the City Treasurer.

(c) No admissions tax shall be charged and collected on tickets sold by any motion picture theatre or for any lecture on scientific, historical, benevolent, artistic, religious, educational, political or literary subjects and apparatus for the elucidation of the same.

(d) Said sums derived from the aforesaid charges shall be kept and maintained in a separate fund by the City Treasurer and distributed and paid over to the Recreational Program Director of the City, in addition to such funds as may be appropriated from time to time from the General Fund of the City for the Recreation Department.

SECTION 3. AND BE IT FURTHER ORDAINED, That any person, firm, corporation or organization violating any provision of this ordinance, shall upon conviction thereof, be fined not less than Fifty Dollars ($50.00) nor more than One Hundred Dollars ($100.00) for each offense.

Passed this 7th day of May, 1951.

Rubber Issues Exception As Stock Market Declines

NEW YORK, May 10 (AP)—In a soggy and spiritless manner the stock market declined today.

The fall extended to around $2 a share throughout the list of leaders and $4 in the case of Nickel Plate which closed at $214.

Rails, steels, motors, chemicals, distillers, aircrafts and non-ferrous metals all were on the downside.

Rubbers and utilities alone among the major groups made headway. Sugars also were higher. These advances, together with those of individual issues, went to more than $2 a share in outstanding instances.

General Motors off 1⅛ at 52¾ unsettled the rest of the motor division. The big motor maker reported declining first quarter profits because of taxes and forecast a none too optimistic second quarter. It was the fourth most actively traded issue.

All of the major steels were off. U. S. Steel down ¼ at 44⅜ was seventh most active. Surveys show possibilities of a production slowdown because of a scrap shortage.

Nervous selling of distillers came along with talk of production cutbacks arising either through government fiat or consumer buying resistance. Schenley Industries off 1⅛ at 37¾ was sixth most active.

U. S. Rubber was up 2½ at 67⅛, and others in that division were higher, following the U. S. Rubber dividend of $1.50 as against $1 paid in March.

Montana-Dakota Utilities was the day's most active issue up 2¼ at 19½ with 33,200 shares changing hands. Reports show the company hopes to benefit in its gas and pipeline divisions from nearby oil discoveries.

Bond Stores was in second place up ¾ at 16¼. It opened unchanged at 15½ on the movement of a block of 25,000 shares.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dropped 50 cents to $96.60 with industrials off 80 cents and rails off 60, and with utilities up 10 cents. Prices on average were just about at the bottom when the market closed.

Totals trading came to only 1,650,000 shares, well under average. Yesterday in a rising market the total was 1,950,000 shares.

Rubber Issues Exception As Stock Market Declines

NEW YORK, May 10 (AP)—In a soggy and spiritless manner the stock market declined today.

The fall extended to around $2 a share throughout the list of leaders and $4 in the case of Nickel Plate which closed at $214.

Rails, steels, motors, chemicals, distillers, aircrafts and non-ferrous metals all were on the downside.

Rubbers and utilities alone among the major groups made headway. Sugars also were higher. These advances, together with those of individual issues, went to more than $2 a share in outstanding instances.

General Motors off 1⅛ at 52¾ unsettled the rest of the motor division. The big motor maker reported declining first quarter profits because of taxes and forecast a none too optimistic second quarter. It was the fourth most actively traded issue.

All of the major steels were off. U. S. Steel down ¼ at 44⅜ was seventh most active. Surveys show possibilities of a production slowdown because of a scrap shortage.

Nervous selling of distillers came along with talk of production cutbacks arising either through government fiat or consumer buying resistance. Schenley Industries off 1⅛ at 37¾ was sixth most active.

U. S. Rubber was up 2½ at 67⅛, and others in that division were higher, following the U. S. Rubber dividend of $1.50 as against $1 paid in March.

Montana-Dakota Utilities was the day's most active issue up 2¼ at 19½ with 33,200 shares changing hands. Reports show the company hopes to benefit in its gas and pipeline divisions from nearby oil discoveries.

Bond Stores was in second place up ¾ at 16¼. It opened unchanged at 15½ on the movement of a block of 25,000 shares.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dropped 50 cents to $96.60 with industrials off 80 cents and rails off 60, and with utilities up 10 cents. Prices on average were just about at the bottom when the market closed.

Totals trading came to only 1,650,000 shares, well under average. Yesterday in a rising market the total was 1,950,000 shares.

Decree Granted

Virginia Rees was granted a divorce from Evan Rees and custody of their 17-year-old son in a decree filed in Allegany County Circuit Court yesterday by Associate Judge George Henderson.

Kimble Says Liquor Board Has "Teeth"

Control Board Can Limit All Licenses

Senate Minority Leader Robert B. Kimble last night predicted that the Allegany County liquor control bill which becomes effective June 1 will result in strict enforcement for the benefit of all citizens of this county.

He declared the bill was designed to eliminate loopholes in the present measure and to provide positive enforcement.

Any additional loopholes which remain in the measure, he added, will be plugged when the General Assembly meets two years from now.

He said the measure which was signed by the governor recently should have been stricter than it is but it was the best that could be developed during the past session of the assembly.

Senator Kimble said he does not know who Governor McKeldin will appoint to the control board but if the board does not enforce the law rigidly he will not confirm them when their names are presented to the Senate for approval.

The measure, Senate Bill 209, was sponsored by Senator Kimble.

Spells Out Plan

The senator said the bill was not sponsored by any group in Allegany County but was designed to plug all the holes in the present bill, spell out just what the board and license holders could and could not do, and was written for the benefit of the public as a whole.

The heart of the bill, Senator Kimble said, was to strike at the greatest evil which has arisen in the county, 'teen age drinking.

Many places, he said, have been allowing 'teen agers to bring whiskey to taverns and, after buying a bottle of ginger ale, make up drinks.

He said the attempt to stop this evil is not directed at the beer dispensing places, who have licenses, as long as they obey the law which applies to all license holders.

Must Take Action

To put teeth in the bill, he said, the Board is required to take definite action if violations are found.

Senator Kimble said the law requires the Board to "suspend or revoke" licenses in case of violations and definitely does not allow "reprimanding".

Should a board revoke a license, no license may be issued to the same person or for the same premises for a year.

Senator Kimble said this provision, a substitute for the old padlocking of premises, will effectively stop "silent partners" from taking over if disciplinary action is taken by the Board.

The senator said he will seek to secure permission to appear before the Ministerial Association to discuss provisions of the new liquor control measure.

Defines Restaurants

The senator referred also to a provision in the bill referring to restaurants. The bill has this to say on the subject:

Any licensed place which sells beer or beer and wine only shall have displayed on the said premises at least four conspicuous notices with the following words: "Unlawful to drink or expose liquor upon these premises".

The word restaurant as used in the issuing of alcoholic beverage licenses shall mean a business establishment for the accomodation of the public, fully equipped with a proper and adequate dining room, tables and chairs and sufficient facilities for preparing and serving regular meals as may be approved by the Liquor Board and having sanitary facilities, running hot and cold water, equipment for the proper cleansing of dishes, adequate toilets and sufficient food on the premises for serving regular meals.

He said this provision was added in the interest of good health to protect the public which has a right to know, when they enter a food dispensing establishment, that they will receive wholesome food from clean dishes and that adequate sanitary facilities will be available.

Has Been Deleted

He said the number of Class C, or Club, licenses shall not exceed 60. "A provision that if a club license is revoked or surrendered, the total number of club licenses would be permanently reduced, was deleted from the bill," he explained.

Walter C. Capper, chairman of the Liquor Control Board, said the board has received numerous queries on reports that revocation of Class C licenses would permanently reduce the number available. The report is false, he emphasized.

The bill as signed set the max-

Play Senior Leads

Two of the main leads in Allegany High School's Senior Class Play, "Corny, But Sweet," are Helen Yoder who portrays Gloria, and Edwin Goetz, who plays Juker. The annual play, written and directed by Arthur W. Taylor, mathematics instructor at the school, will be presented at the school auditorium Friday, May 18. The plot concerns teen-age boys and girls and their problems during summer vacation.

AHS Senior Class Play Set May 18

Three-Act Show Was Written By Director

Production and rehearsals for this year's annual Allegany High School Senior Class Play, "Corny, But Sweet," are now underway. The original story concerning teen-agers and their problems, written and directed by Arthur W. Taylor, mathematics instructor at the school, will be presented in the school auditorium, Friday, May 18.

Cast for the three-act play includes Lee Lacy, as Howard Tennis; Mervin Trail, as Bung; Edwin Goetz, as Juker; and Helen Yoder as Gloria. Others in the cast are Marjorie Kinsinger, Lou Ann Burkett, Doris Platt, Richard Beeghly and Raymond Goetz.

The plot involves a house party given by a spoiled girl at the beginning of the summer vacation. All the students have gone to school together for six years and are reluctant to end their association.

Mary Dee Rice is mistress of properties, Pauline Likens, wardrobe mistress, and Wilda Winterberg, script girl. The stage crew is under the direction of Lee Chenowith and Joseph Strock will be in charge of the lighting effects. Joyce Often and Ann Riggleman are in charge of the ticket sales which are now underway. Eileen Ort and Joan Bosely are co-house managers.

Dig-Up Day Set At North End

Tomorrow is "dig-up day" at the North End Playgrounds. Leveling, grading and drainage ditches of the area will be done so as to make a safer place for the children to play.

Volunteer workers, especially drivers and field workers are needed. Residents of the area have agreed to "do their bit." Lunches will be served to the volunteers. Trucks, bulldozers and equipment have been donated by the city, local contractors, the State Roads Commission and the C. & A. Gas Company.

A concrete court measuring 50 feet by 50 feet will be built for dancing and skating.

The workers will be given a party on May 16 by the Queen City Brewery.

Jerry Yankelevitz To Be Bar Mitzvah

Jerry Yankelevitz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Yankelevitz, 317 Holland Street, will be Bar Mitzvah Saturday morning at 10 o'clock at special confirmation ceremonies at Beth Jacob Synagogue.

The youth's parents will receive relatives and friends Saturday evening from 8 to 10 o'clock in the vestry of the synagogue.

Out-of-town guests who are expected to attend the confirmation ceremonies include Mrs. Maurice Jacobson and Mrs. Leon Fine, Norfolk, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dworin and Peretz Michelson, all of New York City; Mr. and Mrs. Tobas Silverman and Mrs. Harry Olin, Washington, D. C., and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pierce, Baltimore.

The Yankelevitz boy will take part in the regular services of the synagogue tonight at 8 o'clock.

Improvement Is Noted In Health Of Area Youths

Dental Caries Lead List Of Defects

A marked improvement in the general health of Allegany County children was noted by Dr. Winter R. Frantz, city and county health officer, who recently conducted examinations of children who will enter school in the fall.

Dr. Frantz said the examinations of 944 children disclosed that the children are better nourished than in past years and that while the presence of dental caries remains the outstanding physical defect, there is a marked improvement in the health of the pre-school child.

Over the past decade, Dr. Frantz said, gradual improvement has been made in this area in children's health as people become more health conscious.

The economic status of the parents, he added is often reflected in the health of the children.

He reported that the axaminations disclosed a number of cases of rheumatic fever, tonsil, dental, heart and posture defects but added that in most cases parents were already aware of the conditions.

The pre-school examinations which ended recently included 43 clinics in public and parochial schools.

They included physical examinations of the children and vaccination against smallpox when the parents desired the service.

The examinations will be followed up by immunization clinics in the schools this fall.

Tests for eyes and ears, Dr. Frantz said, are made in the first year at school by technicians of the Board of Education, using the Massachusetts vision tests audiometer.

Flood Project Gets Shower

Workers and "sidewalk superintendents" of the Frederick Street conduit witnessed an unexpected geyser with resulting shower yesterday morning at the corner of Mechanic and Frederick Streets when a valve blew out of a six-inch water main.

David Harr, shovel operator, said that evidently the pounding of a hammer used to break the street bed caused the sudden spout which sent water about 80 feet into the air causing a small "cloudburst." Dirt was being removed from around the main when "it broke loose." Harr swung the bucket around and in doing so knocked over a lamp post.

The Water Department brought the gusher under control, although the area was sprayed for about 50 minutes. The pressure at that point, Fire Department spokesmen said, is about 130 pounds per square inch. Approximately 10,340 gallons of water went into the air, The interruption caused little damage and work on the project continued as usual during the afternoon.

Pair Gets Suspended Sentence In Theft

Donald O. Shoemaker, 19, Oldtown and Leroy J. Shoemaker, 25, North Branch, pleaded guilty Wednesday in Trial Magistrates court to theft of property of John Wilson, Pasadena, Md., and were sentenced to three months in the House of Correction by Magistrate William J. Gunter.

Sentence of the two brothers was suspended by Gunter upon payment of $53.50 damages and repair of damaged property within two weeks plus court costs.

The brothers were arrested last week by Trooper William F. Baker, State Police, and charged with stealing an army cot, ring, chairs and table cloth from a cottage near Little Orleans. The stolen articles were valued at about $24.

Two Men Fined

Two men each were fined $10 and costs in Trial Magistrates Court yesterday for fishing violations. Magistrate J. Milton Dick imposed the fines on Bonner T. Wilks, Virginia Avenue for fishing without a license and on Cloyd V. Owens, Lafayette Avenue, for fishing with more than two lines. Fine and costs for Wilks were suspended by the magistrate.

Equestrian Show Featured In King Bros. Circus To Exhibit Daring Horsemanship

Renowned Cristiani Family Are Starred

Is there anyone in this world who doesn't love horses, or who isn't struck speechless with admiration at graceful and daring feats of horsemanship?

Gracefulness, beauty, and daring. Those three words form a rare combination which, this year, gives the King Brothers Circus, coming to Cumberland, Monday, May 14 at Taylor Field in South Cumberland, the greatest and most skillful equestrian aggregation of all times.

Follow the hunt and horse show crowds where you will — from Long Island to San Diego — and you'll seldom see so many pretty and smartly turned out girls as you'll find in the high school and menage displays of the big show this season.

Yes, the booted and spurred youngsters with the show are extremely attractive in appearance and in person, and they are all horsewomen as well as expert equestriennes. They know their stuff and, besides, many of them have ridden in horse shows time and again. Several hail from the West Coast, some from the East, and there are several from 'Ol Kentuck', including Margie Cunningham, who rides "Bourbon King", a high-jumper.

As to their beauty and smart turnouts, you'll see and agree they are a bit of all right, when the huge show rolls into Cumberland next Sunday morning with a small army of people, three great herds of elephants, handsome horses and ponies, wild animals, and acres of tents.

The world renowned Christiani Family of somersaulting bareback riding stars, heads the long list of 1951 attractions.

Performances will be given at 1:30, 3:30 and 8 p.m., and as an extra special feature show day, "The Parade Of The Elephants" will be presented downtown at noon as a reminder of circus day and the scores of thrills in store for youngsters of all ages.

Maryland Pollution Control Commission Working On Laurel Run Contamination

Survey Discloses Mine Flooded; Company Asked To Seal Openings

An effort is being made by the State of Maryland Water Pollution Control Commission to stop contamination of Laurel Run in Garrett County and the Potomac River by mine water flowing from the abandoned operation at Kempton.

According to J. Henry Schilpp, sanitary engineer for the commission, a survey was made at Kempton last March 7 and the condition has been called to the attention of the Davis Coal and Coke Company, which abandoned the workings.

Schilpp points out that the Cumberland News gave considerable publicity to the condition two weeks ago when residents in the Kitzmiller area complained about the unusual amount of surphur mine water in the river. They described the stream as being in "the worst condition we have ever seen it."

Residents there investigated and found the polluted waters flowing from the old Kempton diggings.

Commission Notified

Schilpp said that on January 30, 1951, Melvin Lewis of Gormania wrote to Joseph A. Minke, regional game warden, and notified him that sulphur water was pouring from the old Kempton mines, killing the fish and driving out 30 or more colonies of beaver.

Minke forwarded the letter to Ernest A. Vaughn, director of the Fish and Game Commission, after investigating the complaint, and his communications were in turn sent to Paul W. McKee, executive secretary of the Water Pollution Control Commission.

Engineer Schilpp was notified and together with Game Wardens Lloyd Cook and Leo Friend visited the Kempton mines on March 7.

Investigation shows, Schilpp reports, that the Kempton operation at Shaft 39 and Slope No. 43 have filled with water and the overflow is going into Laurel Run which empties into the Potomac.

The main shaft at the mine is 428

April Reports Given To Chest

The treasurer of the Cumberland Community Chest reported $1167.13 in receipts from 1950-51 pledges for the month of April at a meeting held last night at the chest office.

The report also showed total disbursements of $6,386.93 and a balance in the bank of $24,038.27. A total of $63,434.67 or 72 percent of total receipts from 1950-51 pledges up until the first of this month has been realized.

During the Executive Committee meeting last night the monthly service and financial reports of the Red Feather Agencies were approved.

Mission Rally Program Set For Sunday

Rev. Vaeth To Give Out Student Awards

The program for the Catholic Students Mission Crusade religious rally Sunday at 3 p. m. at Fort Hill stadium has been completed, Rev. Robert F. Hopkins, assistant pastor of St. Mary's Catholic Church, said yesterday.

The recital will open with the National Anthem by the Arion Band of Frostburg and the assembly to be followed by Hymn to Christ the King by the Crusaders.

Vaeth To Give Awards

Presentation of awards to the outstanding members of the school units in the Catholic Students Mission Crusade will then be made by Rt. Rev. Louis C. Vaeth, archdiocesan director of the Sodality for the Propagation of the Faith.

Another hymn, Come Holy Ghost, will precede the sermon by Rev. John U. Lyness, assistant pastor of St. Patrick's Church. Following the sermon the hymn, Mother Dearest, Mother Fairest will be sung by the assembly. The recitation of the rosary will then be led by Rev. Hopkins with the assembly participating.

After the recitation of the rosary the members will sing the hymn, Mother Dear, Oh, Pray For Me, and the solemn benediction will be given by Very Rev. J. Lawrence Kilkenny, pastor of St. Patrick's Church, celebrant; Rev. Louis Glantz, pastor of SS. Peter and Paul Church, deacon; Rev. Francis Montgomery, administrator of St. Michael's Church in Frostburg, sub-deacon; and Rev. Regis Larkin, also of St. Michael's, master of ceremonies.

To Hold Parade

The assemblage will then sing the hymnal, Holy God, prior to final dismissal of the units.

A parade will precede the rally

Official Tells Kiwanis Club Of Gas Boom

Uncertain About Allegany County

Members of Cumberland Kiwanis Club learned more about the current natural gas boom in Garrett County at their weekly luncheon meeting yesterday but they received no assurance that gas might be found beneath the soil of Allegany County.

The speaker was Stephen Day, vice-president in charge of production of the Columbia Gas Company, Pittsburgh, Pa.

"You never can tell whether there is gas until you have drilled," Day stated when asked by a Kiwanian whether there was a supply of natural gas in Allegany County.

The speaker suggested that no doubt some leases have been taken on Allegany County land with the intention of exploring for a supply of gas. He added that he knew of no geologic work having been done in this county in preparation for well drilling.

Day told the Kiwanians yesterday that there now are 25 wells in Garrett County which have been drilled or are in process of being drilled. Nine of these have been brought in and the rest still are being drilled.

The first Garrett well, brought in on the Beachy Farm, now is yielding about 11,000,000 cubic feet daily, the gas company official explained. He offered an illustration as to how much a few feet can mean in well drilling. He said that one well in Garrett County was producing 10,000,000 cubic feet daily and when it was drilled just three feet deeper the yield jumped to more than 15,000,000 cubic feet.

Much of this new Garrett County gas is brought into the Cumberland area through a West Virginia pipeline that extends into Garrett County. Day said that the Columbia Gas Company, of which the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company is a subsidiary has considered connecting the Garrett County wells with two pipelines running into Pennsylvania. In this manner, he believes, the Garrett gas supply could be handled more effectively.

After the meeting some of the Kiwanians stayed and discussed the gas boom with Day for as long as an hour.

Radar Speed Meter Sought

Cumberland motorists who yield to the temptation to step on the gas may learn about radar the hard way.

John J. Long, police and fire commissioner, is asking bids for an Electra-Matic Speedmeter to be used by the Police Department.

He said that if the purchase of the equipment is approved by the Mayor and Council it will be placed in operation in Cumberland.

City officials authorized the department some months ago to seek bids on the equipment.

Commissioner Long said the chief benefit of the device so far has been psychological.

He said the Attorney General has ruled that he sees no reason why arrests cannot be made with the device.

Present plans call for the radar device as a warning to speeders, who would be informed clearly that a given stretch of street was under surveillance of the radar equipment.

285 License Sets Sold Before Deadline

About 285 sets of Maryland automobile license tags were sold yesterday at the office of Tax Collector Ernest B. Treat at the Court House as motorists made a rush to get their plates before the deadline at midnight last night.

Treat reports that he still has about 325 sets of plates for passenger cars out of a total of 14,500 that have been issued to him.

Now that the automobile deadline has passed, Treat will focus his attention on new tags for half and three-quarter ton commercial trucks and farm trucks. These tags must be acquired by midnight Thursday, May 31.

Permits Sought

Applications for permits have been been filed with the Allegany Sounty Liquor Control Board. Noel Beverlin and Edna Beverlin seek a beer and wine license for premises at 143 North Centre Street. Kenneth T. Hager wants a beer, wine and liquor permit for premises at 814-816 North Mechanic Street.

Mock Drill By Area Firemen Scheduled For Next Week

The time, date, and place for the "mock drill" to be held in conjunction with the Civil Defense Program have been set by area firemen. Plans were discussed Wednesday night at a meeting of Allegany-Garrett County firemen at Frostburg.

Twenty companies attended the meeting and Virgil A. Parker, acting assistant chief of the Cumberland Fire Department and liaison officer for the firemen, said last night that each unit received necessary instructions.

Parker said the drill will occur next week but the element of "surprise" will be used in order to get more effective results and also to test the alertness and quick action of the companies involved.

The drill will consist of part of the city's department and some of the area companies. The practice will be concentrated in one district, Parker said, and other companies will move into the places where those who respond leave.

Joseph G. Wenrich, Cresaptown, president of the area firemen branch of the Civil Defense Program, spoke at the meeting Wednesday night and told of future plans.

Frostburg cooperated fully last night as well as the other companies represented, Parker added.

Those companies attending included delegates from the George's Creek section, the Tri-Towns, Bowman's Addition, Baltimore Pike, Ellerslie, Cresaptown, Ridgeley, District 16, and Cumberland.

Youngsters Win Book Fair Art Contest Prizes

These seven Allegany County youngsters were prize winners in the art contest which the Centre Street School conducted in conjunction with its second annual Book Fair. They were pictured on the auditorium stage at Centre Street School where they received their awards. First prize was $5, second was $3, third was $2 and each of the four honorable mention winners was given a book. Standing on the stage, left to right, LaDonna Cashman, Cresaptown, honorable mention; Harry Little, St. Patrick's honorable mention; Gary Harbel, Midland, second; Lynn Workmeister, LaVale, first; Ruth Lee Schramm, Jackson, Westernport, third; Harold Milburn, Columbia Street, honorable mention, and Helen Shelley, Penn Avenue, honorable mention. Over 80 youngsters from 23 schools competed. The Book Fair will close today, with visitors being welcome from 9 a. m. until 4 p. m.

First Lonaconing Korean War Veteran Returns Home

Pfc. John Klipstein, twice wounded veteran of the Korean conflict, surprised his parents when he arrived at his home in Lonaconing last night after being overseas for the past year. He is the first veteran returning to Lonaconing from Korea.

Klipstein, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Klipstein, 56 Jackson Street, is home on a 28 day furlough under the present rotation plan. He came into the Queen City Railroad Station yesterday at two o'clock after travelling across country from Seattle, Wash.

"I'm sure glad to be back," the 19-year-old veteran said yesterday. He has been in Korea for the past nine and a half months fighting the Reds and was notified while at the front that he would get his furlough.

He enlisted in October 1949, received basic training at Fort Knox, Ky., went to Camp Stoneman, Calif. for further training and then left for overseas, in July of last year. He was wounded August 3 and September 15, 1950. He holds the Purple Heart, Silver Star with cluster among other citations. A member of the 1st Cavalry Infantry Division, he will report to Fort George G. Meade, for reassignment.

Kimble Says Liquor Board Has "Teeth"

Control Board Can Limit All Licenses

Senate Minority Leader Robert B. Kimble last night predicted that the Allegany County liquor control bill which becomes effective June 1 will result in strict enforcement for the benefit of all citizens of this county.

He declared the bill was designed to eliminate loopholes in the present measure and to provide positive enforcement.

Any additional loopholes which remain in the measure, he added, will be plugged when the General Assembly meets two years from now.

He said the measure which was signed by the governor recently should have been stricter than it is but it was the best that could be developed during the past session of the assembly.

Senator Kimble said he does not know who Governor McKeldin will appoint to the control board but if the board does not enforce the law rigidly he will not confirm them when their names are presented to the Senate for approval.

The measure, Senate Bill 209, was sponsored by Senator Kimble.

Spells Out Plan

The senator said the bill was not sponsored by any group in Allegany County but was designed to plug all the holes in the present bill, spell out just what the board and license holders could and could not do, and was written for the benefit of the public as a whole.

The heart of the bill, Senator Kimble said, was to strike at the greatest evil which has arisen in the county, 'teen age drinking.

Many places, he said, have been allowing 'teen agers to bring whiskey to taverns and, after buying a bottle of ginger ale, make up drinks.

He said the attempt to stop this evil is not directed at the beer dispensing places, who have licenses, as long as they obey the law which applies to all license holders.

Must Take Action

To put teeth in the bill, he said, the Board is required to take definite action if violations are found.

Senator Kimble said the law requires the Board to "suspend or revoke" licenses in case of violations and definitely does not allow "reprimanding".

Should a board revoke a license, no license may be issued to the same person or for the same premises for a year.

Senator Kimble said this provision, a substitute for the old padlocking of premises, will effectively stop "silent partners" from taking over if disciplinary action is taken by the Board.

The senator said he will seek to secure permission to appear before the Ministerial Association to discuss provisions of the new liquor control measure.

Defines Restaurants

The senator referred also to a provision in the bill referring to restaurants. The bill has this to say on the subject:

Any licensed place which sells beer or beer and wine only shall have displayed on the said premises at least four conspicuous notices with the following words: "Unlawful to drink or expose liquor upon these premises".

The word restaurant as used in the issuing of alcoholic beverage licenses shall mean a business establishment for the accomodation of the public, fully equipped with a proper and adequate dining room, tables and chairs and sufficient facilities for preparing and serving regular meals as may be approved by the Liquor Board and having sanitary facilities, running hot and cold water, equipment for the proper cleansing of dishes, adequate toilets and sufficient food on the premises for serving regular meals.

He said this provision was added in the interest of good health to protect the public which has a right to know, when they enter a food dispensing establishment, that they will receive wholesome food from clean dishes and that adequate sanitary facilities will be available.

Has Been Deleted

He said the number of Class C, or Club, licenses shall not exceed 60. "A provision that if a club license is revoked or surrendered, the total number of club licenses would be permanently reduced, was deleted from the bill," he explained.

Walter C. Capper, chairman of the Liquor Control Board, said the board has received numerous queries on reports that revocation of Class C licenses would permanently reduce the number available. The report is false, he emphasized.

The bill as signed set the max-

Play Senior Leads

Two of the main leads in Allegany High School's Senior Class Play, "Corny, But Sweet," are Helen Yoder who portrays Gloria, and Edwin Goetz, who plays Juker. The annual play, written and directed by Arthur W. Taylor, mathematics instructor at the school, will be presented at the school auditorium Friday, May 18. The plot concerns teen-age boys and girls and their problems during summer vacation.

AHS Senior Class Play Set May 18

Three-Act Show Was Written By Director

Production and rehearsals for this year's annual Allegany High School Senior Class Play, "Corny, But Sweet," are now underway. The original story concerning teen-agers and their problems, written and directed by Arthur W. Taylor, mathematics instructor at the school, will be presented in the school auditorium, Friday, May 18.

Cast for the three-act play includes Lee Lacy, as Howard Tennis; Mervin Trail, as Bung; Edwin Goetz, as Juker; and Helen Yoder as Gloria. Others in the cast are Marjorie Kinsinger, Lou Ann Burkett, Doris Platt, Richard Beeghly and Raymond Goetz.

The plot involves a house party given by a spoiled girl at the beginning of the summer vacation. All the students have gone to school together for six years and are reluctant to end their association.

Mary Dee Rice is mistress of properties, Pauline Likens, wardrobe mistress, and Wilda Winterberg, script girl. The stage crew is under the direction of Lee Chenowith and Joseph Strock will be in charge of the lighting effects. Joyce Often and Ann Riggleman are in charge of the ticket sales which are now underway. Eileen Ort and Joan Bosely are co-house managers.

Tomorrow is "dig-up day" at the North End Playgrounds. Leveling, grading and drainage ditches of the area will be done so as to make a safer place for the children to play.

Volunteer workers, especially drivers and field workers are needed. Residents of the area have agreed to "do their bit." Lunches will be served to the volunteers. Trucks, bulldozers and equipment have been donated by the city, local contractors, the State Roads Commission and the C. & A. Gas Company.

A concrete court measuring 50 feet by 50 feet will be built for dancing and skating.

The workers will be given a party on May 16 by the Queen City Brewery.

Jerry Yankelevitz To Be Bar Mitzvah

Jerry Yankelevitz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Yankelevitz, 317 Holland Street, will be Bar Mitzvah Saturday morning at 10 o'clock at special confirmation ceremonies at Beth Jacob Synagogue.

The youth's parents will receive relatives and friends Saturday evening from 8 to 10 o'clock in the vestry of the synagogue.

Out-of-town guests who are expected to attend the confirmation ceremonies include Mrs. Maurice Jacobson and Mrs. Leon Fine, Norfolk, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dworin and Peretz Michelson, all of New York City; Mr. and Mrs. Tobas Silverman and Mrs. Harry Olin, Washington, D. C., and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pierce, Baltimore.

The Yankelevitz boy will take part in the regular services of the synagogue tonight at 8 o'clock.

Improvement Is Noted In Health Of Area Youths

Dental Caries Lead List Of Defects

A marked improvement in the general health of Allegany County children was noted by Dr. Winter R. Frantz, city and county health officer, who recently conducted examinations of children who will enter school in the fall.

Dr. Frantz said the examinations of 944 children disclosed that the children are better nourished than in past years and that while the presence of dental caries remains the outstanding physical defect, there is a marked improvement in the health of the pre-school child.

Over the past decade, Dr. Frantz said, gradual improvement has been made in this area in children's health as people become more health conscious.

The economic status of the parents, he added is often reflected in the health of the children.

He reported that the examinations disclosed a number of cases of rheumatic fever, tonsil, dental, heart and posture defects but added that in most cases parents were already aware of the conditions.

The pre-school examinations which ended recently included 43 clinics in public and parochial schools.

Vaeth To Give Awards

Presentation of awards to the outstanding members of the school units in the Catholic Students Mission Crusade will then be made by Rt. Rev. Louis C. Vaeth, archdiocesan director of the Sodality for the Propagation of the Faith.

Another hymn, Come Holy Ghost, will precede the sermon by Rev. John U. Lyness, assistant pastor of St. Patrick's Church. Following the sermon the hymn, Mother Dearest, Mother Fairest will be sung by the assembly. The recitation of the rosary will then be led by Rev. Hopkins with the assembly participating.

After the recitation of the rosary the members will sing the hymn, Mother Dear, Oh, Pray For Me, and the solemn benediction will be given by Very Rev. J. Lawrence Kilkenny, pastor of St. Patrick's Church, celebrant; Rev. Louis Glantz, pastor of SS. Peter and Paul Church, deacon; Rev. Francis Montgomery, administrator of St. Michael's Church in Frostburg, sub-deacon; and Rev. Regis Larkin, also of St. Michael's, master of ceremonies.

To Hold Parade

The assemblage will then sing the hymnal, Holy God, prior to final dismissal of the units.

A parade will precede the rally

Fort Hill Elects Student Council

Vernon Smith was elected president of the student council at Fort Hill High School in balloting held Wednesday in which class officers of the 10th, 11th and 12th grades also were named.

Smith, a junior, gained the presidency of the council after a vigorous campaign and a primary several weeks ago. Members of the Senate of the Student Council are Earlene Grim, Lois Myers and David Ritter, seniors, and Joan Schaidt, Shirlee Twigg and James Squires, juniors.

Class officers for the coming year are: Senior Class—Maurice Miller, president; Allan Mease, vice president; Sherrell Parsons, secretary; and Jo Ann Cross, treasurer.

Balloting at the polls in the gymnasium was supervised by Donald Brake, a senior and secretary of industry of the Student Council and Miss Madeline Mewshaw, faculty advisor.

WEATHER

Cumberlanders had another summer day yesterday although the skies clouded up and rain threatened in the afternoon. The weather station at Constitution Park reported a high of 72, a low of 54 and at 8:15 p. m. last night it was 59 degrees. The dew point was 48.25 and humidity 70 percent. The forecast for today is mostly cloudy and somewhat cooler with showers and possible thunderstorms.

Official Tells Kiwanis Club Of Gas Boom

Uncertain About Allegany County

Members of Cumberland Kiwanis Club learned more about the current natural gas boom in Garrett County at their weekly luncheon meeting yesterday but they received no assurance that gas might be found beneath the soil of Allegany County.

The speaker was Stephen Day, vice-president in charge of production of the Columbia Gas Company, Pittsburgh, Pa.

"You never can tell whether there is gas until you have drilled," Day stated when asked by a Kiwanian whether there was a supply of natural gas in Allegany County.

The speaker suggested that no doubt some leases have been taken on Allegany County land with the intention of exploring for a supply of gas. He added that he knew of no geologic work having been done in this county in preparation for well drilling.

Day told the Kiwanians yesterday that there now are 25 wells in Garrett County which have been drilled or are in process of being drilled. Nine of these have been brought in and the rest still are being drilled.

The first Garrett well, brought in on the Beachy Farm, now is yielding about 11,000,000 cubic feet daily, the gas company official explained. He offered an illustration as to how much a few feet can mean in well drilling. He said that one well in Garrett County was producing 10,000,000 cubic feet daily and when it was drilled just three feet deeper the yield jumped to more than 15,000,000 cubic feet.

Much of this new Garrett County gas is brought into the Cumberland area through a West Virginia pipeline that extends into Garrett County. Day said that the Columbia Gas Company, of which the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company is a subsidiary has considered connecting the Garrett County wells with two pipelines running into Pennsylvania. In this manner, he believes, the Garrett gas supply could be handled more effectively.

After the meeting some of the Kiwanians stayed and discussed the gas boom with Day for as long as an hour.

Radar Speed Meter Sought

Cumberland motorists who yield to the temptation to step on the gas may learn about radar the hard way.

John J. Long, police and fire commissioner, is asking bids for an Electra-Matic Speedmeter to be used by the Police Department.

He said that if the purchase of the equipment is approved by the Mayor and Council it will be placed in operation in Cumberland.

City officials authorized the department some months ago to seek bids on the equipment.

Commissioner Long said the chief benefit of the device so far has been psychological.

He said the Attorney General has ruled that he sees no reason why arrests cannot be made with the device.

Present plans call for the radar device as a warning to speeders, who would be informed clearly that a given stretch of street was under surveillance of the radar equipment.

285 License Sets Sold Before Deadline

About 285 sets of Maryland automobile license tags were sold yesterday at the office of Tax Collector Ernest B. Treat at the Court House as motorists made a rush to get their plates before the deadline at midnight last night.

Treat reports that he still has about 325 sets of plates for passenger cars out of a total of 14,500 that have been issued to him.

Now that the automobile deadline has passed, Treat will focus his attention on new tags for half and three-quarter ton commercial trucks and farm trucks. These tags must be acquired by midnight Thursday, May 31.

Permits Sought

Applications for permits have been been filed with the Allegany Sounty Liquor Control Board. Noel Beverlin and Edna Beverlin seek a beer and wine license for premises at 143 North Centre Street. Kenneth T. Hager wants a beer, wine and liquor permit for premises at 814-816 North Mechanic Street.

Mock Drill By Area Firemen Scheduled For Next Week

The time, date, and place for the "mock drill" to be held in conjunction with the Civil Defense Program have been set by area firemen. Plans were discussed Wednesday night at a meeting of Allegany-Garrett County firemen at Frostburg.

Twenty companies attended the meeting and Virgil A. Parker, acting assistant chief of the Cumberland Fire Department and liaison officer for the firemen, said last night that each unit received necessary instructions.

Parker said the drill will occur next week but the element of "surprise" will be used in order to get more effective results and also to test the alertness and quick action of the companies involved.

The drill will consist of part of the city's department and some of the area companies. The practice will be concentrated in one district, Parker said, and other companies will move into the places where those who respond leave.

Joseph G. Wenrich, Cresaptown, president of the area firemen branch of the Civil Defense Program, spoke at the meeting Wednesday night and told of future plans.

Frostburg cooperated fully last night as well as the other companies represented, Parker added.

Those companies attending included delegates from the George's Creek section, the Tri-Towns, Bowman's Addition, Baltimore Pike, Ellerslie, Cresaptown, Ridgeley, District 16, and Cumberland.

Youngsters Win Book Fair Art Contest Prizes

These seven Allegany County youngsters were prize winners in the art contest which the Centre Street School conducted in conjunction with its second annual Book Fair. They were pictured on the auditorium stage at Centre Street School where they received their awards. First prize was $5, second was $3, third was $2 and each of the four honorable mention winners was given a book. Standing on the stage, left to right, LaDonna Cashman, Cresaptown, honorable mention; Harry Little, St. Patrick's honorable mention; Gary Harbel, Midland, second; Lynn Workmeister, LaVale, first; Ruth Lee Schramm, Jackson, Westernport, third; Harold Milburn, Columbia Street, honorable mention, and Helen Shelley, Penn Avenue, honorable mention. Over 80 youngsters from 23 schools competed. The Book Fair will close today, with visitors being welcome from 9 a. m. until 4 p. m.

First Lonaconing Korean War Veteran Returns Home

Pfc. John Klipstein, twice wounded veteran of the Korean conflict, surprised his parents when he arrived at his home in Lonaconing last night after being overseas for the past year. He is the first veteran returning to Lonaconing from Korea.

Klipstein, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Klipstein, 56 Jackson Street, is home on a 28 day furlough under the present rotation plan. He came into the Queen City Railroad Station yesterday at two o'clock after travelling across country from Seattle, Wash.

"I'm sure glad to be back," the 19-year-old veteran said yesterday. He has been in Korea for the past nine and a half months fighting the Reds and was notified while at the front that he would get his furlough.

He enlisted in October 1949, received basic training at Fort Knox, Ky., went to Camp Stoneman, Calif. for further training and then left for overseas, in July of last year. He was wounded August 3 and September 15, 1950. He holds the Purple Heart, Silver Star with cluster among other citations. A member of the 1st Cavalry Infantry Division, he will report to Fort George G. Meade, for reassignment.
